

CHARTER FOES
TO COLLECT LUG FROM MEMBERS
OF LEGISLATUREHilsman, Webbe at Meeting — Mayor's Opponents Plan to Set Up Own 'Citizens Committee.'

The anti-Tucker charter lug will be collected from St. Louis state legislators, as well as city and school patronage employees, as part of the scheme being devised by key members of the Democratic City Committee who fear a new charter will curtail patronage, the Post-Dispatch has told today.

Two state Senators, William A. Hilsman and James Webbe, were among Democratic leaders who attended a meeting Wednesday at Hotel Sheraton-Jefferson at which plans were discussed for raising $25,000 to defeat any slate of charter freeholders selected by Mayor Raymond R. Tucker and civic leaders.

Hilsman and Webbe have a dual role, being members of the Democratic City Committee in addition to serving as state legislators. Hilsman is committeeman from the Twenty-eighth ward; Webbe, from the Seventh. Get $125 a Month.

Representatives receive only $125 a month for their legislative post. It is considered likely that the "lug" on them will be on a different basis than the plan to have employees of city patronage offices contribute 1 per cent of their annual salary.

St. Louis has seven state Senators and 18 state Representatives, all Democrats except for the Republican Representative, Disclosure of Wednesday's meeting of Democratic politicians was made by the Post-Dispatch yesterday. Those attending, besides Senators Hilsman and Webbe, included City Treasurer John J. Dwyer, Sheriff Martin L. Tucker, Clerk James McKelvey, and Circuit Court for Criminal Causes and Clerk James Patrick Lavin of the Court of Criminal Correction.

The scheme to elect a politicians' slate of freeholders to defeat the Tucker slate, the politicians plan to announce formation of a "citizens committee" of their own to select a slate of freeholders.

This maneuver is intended to confuse voters who will go to the polls May 8 to elect the freeholders, since the Tucker slate is also being picked by a citizens' committee. A voter might become confused over which slate was picked by what "citizens committee."

Another tactic being employed by the anti-Tucker group is to tack the label "blue ribbon"—an opprobrious term in some sections of the city—on the Mayor's citizens' committee.

Actually, the Tucker citizens' committee has only selected a chairman and it plans to seek qualified candidates representing all segments of the community for election to the board of freeholders.

Politicians seeking to elect their own freeholders have been obtaining numerous copies recently of the charter proposed in 1950 by a freeholders board. This charter was defeated in a special election, chiefly because of the opposition stirred up by politicians.

In the move to elect their own freeholders, the politicians have picked several persons as prospective candidates, the Post-Dispatch reported yesterday.

One prospect, Michael L. Galli, a real estate dealer who has been active in party politics in the Twenty-fourth ward, was approached by Louis (Midge) Berra, a constable and Twenty-fourth ward committeeman, it was learned.

In a resolution apparently aimed at Mayor Tucker's citizens committee, the Food Employees Council of St. Louis, claiming to represent 75,000 persons in 76 local unions, called for a candidates' slate of freeholders to be chosen "by citizens rather than by bankers and industrialists, most of whom do not live in the city."

The resolution suggested that the council offer a slate that will "consider the interests of the people as a whole."

MARGARET SINGS WITH KAYE
AND HE CALLS HER "MA'AM"

LONDON, Feb. 10 (UP)—Princess Margaret joined Danny Kaye and a first-night audience in singing "Minnie the Moocher" last night and the American comedian made it a point to address her as "Ma'am" later.

Kaye made sure everyone within earshot heard him say "ma'am." The last time he was here several newspapers claimed he called the Princess "Honey" at a backstage meeting. Kaye vigorously denied any such impropriety.

The Princess attended the premiere of Kaye's film, "The Court Jester," and joined delightedly as Kaye led the audience through his repertoire after the film.

More than 22,000 home telephone users in St. Louis county will be able to dial long distance calls over one- and two-party lines beginning April 1, Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. announced today.

The new service, called direct distance dialing, will be the first in Missouri. It will be available to subscribers whose telephone prefixes are the following: TWInbrook 2, Wydown 3, HEMstead 2, TREmont 2, JACKson 1 and 2, University 4, TEMple 7, Taylor 1 and 2, and YOrktown 5.

A booklet explaining operation of direct dialing will be mailed to customers before service begins. Cities on the long distance dialing circuit include Akron, Boston, Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Detroit, Houston, Kansas City, Milwaukee, Newark, New York, San Francisco, Washington, D.C., and Little Rock.

RUSSIA AGREES
IN ATOMIC WORK

LONDON, Feb. 10 (UP)—Moscow radio announced tonight that Russia has agreed to provide Soviet aid to Egypt in "carrying out work in the peaceful use of atomic energy."

Negotiations between Soviet officials and an Egyptian government delegation "ended a few days ago in Moscow," the broadcast said.

It said they agreed on "the granting by the Soviet Union of scientific and technical assistance for the creation of a nuclear physics laboratory in Cairo and the carrying out of work in the peaceful use of atomic energy."

Russia, which has been making overtures to Arab countries in the Middle East, previously had offered to provide technical assistance to Egypt in the construction of the high dam at Aswan on the Upper Nile.

UNION SENDING CALLANAN'S PAY TO WIFE; JUDGE
ASSAILS ACTIONHulen Refuses to Cut
Racketeer's Sentence, Calls Him 'Brains' of Shakedown, Others
'Dumb Clucks.'

The practice of the AFL Pipefitters' Union of continuing salary payments to the wife of convicted labor racketeer Lawrence Callanan was described as "unthinkable" today by United States District Judge Ruben M. Hulén.

The fact that the union which Callanan formerly bossed was sending money to Mrs. Callanan each week was disclosed at a hearing on a motion seeking reduction of Callanan's 12-year prison sentence. Judge Hulén denied the motion.

Callanan, who was sentenced July 19, 1954, for extorting $28,000 from a contractor, was specifically ordered by Judge Hulén to sever all official connections with the union as part of a five-year probation to begin when he is released from the penitentiary.

Attorney Morris Shenker, representing Callanan, made a brief argument for the sentence reduction, pointing out that the terms of labor bosses convicted with Callanan and in other cases had been reduced to 10 years.

Judge Hulén, after listening of the arguments by Shenker and United States Attorney Harry Richards, asked Shenker if it were true Mrs. Callanan was receiving money from the union. He said he had heard this was so.

"That is right, your honor," said Shenker. "The union is paying Mrs. Callanan part of her husband's salary under a five-year contract which provides continuance of payments in event he is incapacitated or unable to perform his duties."

Shenker added that Callanan, who received $250 a week as business manager of the union, had reduced the contract he canceled when he began serving his prison term. The union ignored the request, Shenker indicated.

"To me it is unthinkable that the union would continue to pay this family," Judge Hulén remarked. Then he denied the motion.

"I feel," he said, "that defendant Callanan was the brains of the conspiracy. The other defendants were dumb clucks who did not have brains enough to carry out the operation."

Sentence with Callanan was William Foster and Richard M. Secor, business agents of the AFL Laborers' Union; Lawrence A. Thompson, former business agent of the AFL Teamsters' Union, and Carl J. (Dutch) Bianchi, outside representative of the AFL Hosiery Engineers' Union.

They were charged specifically with interfering with interstate commerce by shaking down a Tulsa (Okla.) pipeline contractor on their promises to assure labor peace.

EISENHOWER GIVES 'GIFT' BOOK BACK,
IT'S THE LIBRARY'S

The New York Times Service. (Copyright 1956, by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10—A few weeks back a Maryland man who shall remain nameless sent a book to President Eisenhower. The passage he wanted the President to read was Alexander Hamilton's letter urging George Washington to accept a second term out of "duty."

Sometime later, a Secret Service agent called on the sender, chatted amiably and returned the book. What did it mean, this rare display of White House interest in a man who had put the call of "duty" before the President? The agents visit was suspected of possibly having immense political significance.

Yesterday the White House explained. Staff workers had looked the book over, then given it to the Secret Service with instructions to take it back, according to James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary.

The book, Hagerty explained, was plainly marked "property of the Bethesda (Md.) public library."

"We had it returned with thanks," he said, "and simply pointed out that it was not the President's policy to accept books that belong to a public library."

RUSSIA CLOSING
AIR POWER GAP,
U.S. AIR FORCE
VICE CHIEF SAYSReds Outproducing Us in All Jet Categories Except Medium
Bombers, Gen. White
Reports.

The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 10—The Russians are outproducing the United States in all categories of aircraft except medium jet bombers, Gen. Thomas D. White, vice chief of staff of the Air Force, told a group of aircraft industry leaders here last night.

He said Russia is "approaching us in quality and surpassing us in quantity in airplane after airplane."

Speaking at a General Electric Co. dinner here, Gen. White said that the Russians are presently "beating us at our own game—production."

"While we still have a heavy lead on them in medium jet bombers," he said, the Russians have "several thousand fighters which are better than our F-86s and F-84s. They are also producing newer fighters which compare to our F-100s."

Advantage in Bases.
"We believe we have a better Air Force," he said, "but that superiority now rests almost entirely upon our better system of world-wide bases and upon our better, more experienced crews."

He pointed out that although this country "never held a monopoly in quality of equipment," the United States "reigned supreme" in its talent for mass production.

Because of Russian advances, however, the Soviets have "halved our lead time on the heavy jet bomber and in developing and producing all other aircraft, their lead time is considerably less than ours."

By the Associated Press.
At the same time Gen. White said the aircraft industry must devote increasing efforts to research.

New Jet Engine Plant.
His remarks followed a one-day demonstration of General Electric's new jet engine production facilities at Evendale near Cincinnati.

The general praised G.E. as "one of the companies that are using private funds for research designed to keep the United States ahead."

He said the $20,000,000 facility for testing supersonic jet engines, the company announced earlier it would build at Evendale, would be a valuable addition to the nation's research effort.

Gen. White said the Russians have:

1. A swept-wing heavy jet bomber, the Bison, in many respects equal to America's best, the Boeing B-52.

2. Their longest-range plane, the Bear turboprop bomber, comparable to the Convair B-36. A turboprop plane is one with jet engines driving propellers. The B-36 is not a turboprop, but has six conventional piston engines and four jet engines. It is "gradually moving into retirement."

3. A medium jet bomber similar to the Boeing B-47, but "we still have a big lead on them in medium jet bombers."

4. Several thousand fighters, better than the North American F-86 Sabre jet and the Republic F-84.

5. Newer fighters comparable to the supersonic North American F-100.

EISENHOWER MAY GO TOMORROW TO ARMY HOSPITAL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10 (AP)—President Eisenhower may go to the Army's Walter Reed Hospital here tomorrow for the start of a new physical examination, the White House says.

The examination by a team of four doctors will be concluded Tuesday and the physicians' findings will be made public either that same day or the next morning.

The purpose of the new study is to determine how Mr. Eisenhower is bearing up under burdens of the Presidency in the light of his heart attack last Sept. 24.

House press secretary, White announced earlier this week that Mr. Eisenhower would undergo a series of preliminary medical tests in advance of the full-scale consultations scheduled for Tuesday.

Asked whether the President might go to the hospital tomorrow for the start of those tests, Hagerty replied:

"It could be, but I don't know yet for sure."

Responding to another question, Hagerty said the President does not plan to stay overnight in the hospital.

MELLOW TONE

The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10—A mellow musical tone, resembling that of a clarinet, may replace the telephone bell if field trials of the new device are successful, Bell Telephone Laboratories reported yesterday.

The new sound is said to stand out better above general room noises and is more easily distinguished from doorbells, alarm clocks and fire alarms.

The new equipment uses transistors and operates on less than one volt, the same power required for telephone conversations. The bell device requires 85 volts. The field trials will take place in Crystal Lake, Ill., next spring, where a variety of telephone equipment is used by 300 customers.

Russians Worked Harder in '55,
But Got Same Pay as in 1954

By TOM WHITNEY
NEW YORK, Feb. 10 (AP)—The official Soviet economic report for 1955 shows that Russia's workers toiled harder, produced more—and got almost exactly the same pay they received in 1954.

Workers in the West call this the speedup.

This was the first fruit of the economic policy that Communist party chief Khrushchev and Premier Bulganin laid down when they took over from Georgi Malenkov: "Heavy industry first," guns and excavators instead of butter.

Soviet labor's prospects for 1956 aren't very pleasant either. Prices for Russia's most vital food—potatoes—are virtually certain to more than double. Still more belt-tightening appears to be in order as the Kremlin drives the nation forward in new, immense strides to equip the nation by 1960 to make economic warfare on the West.

Here is the 1955 economic picture, as outlined by official Soviet statistics:

The average industrial worker produced 8 per cent more than in 1954. The average construction worker did 10 per cent better.

While the total wage and salary bill of the U.S.S.R. rose about 3 per cent, the number of earners went up more than 2 per cent. Thus the average wage or salary, in money or in goods, remained in 1955 about the same as in 1954.

Industrial output rose 12 per cent. National income was up 10 per cent. Retail trade climbed only five per cent. Out of the total production increase, only a fraction went to the population in the form of more goods they could use. The overwhelping rest was left in the hands of the state for capital investment and armament.

TELEGRAM BORE
NAME OF AID WHO DENIES HE SENT
IT, SENATOR SAYSSouth Dakota Republican Asks Senate Group to Determine
Who Was Behind Influence Attempt.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10 (UP)—Senator Francis Case (Rep.), South Dakota, disclosed today that he had received an "apparently fictitious" telegram purportedly signed by one of his campaign aides and urging his support for the natural gas bill.

Case made the disclosure in testimony before the special Senate committee investigating whether a Nebraska attorney made an improper attempt to influence his vote on the gas measure.

He urged the committee to investigate the telegram.

Case said he had thought the telegram had been sent to him by John Griffin, Sioux Falls (S.D.), druggist who had been accepting election campaign contributions for him.

Case mentioned the telegram in his testimony this morning. When he resumed his testimony this afternoon, he said Griffin came to his office "in the last 10 minutes" to see the telegram.

When it was produced, Case told the committee Griffin declared: "I never sent the telegram."

Case said the telegram was among several he had received before the Senate last Monday approved the controversial natural gas bill.

Case suggested that the committee subpoena all such telegrams from Sioux Falls.

"The committee may want to determine who was in Sioux Falls affixing the names of friends of mine to telegrams in an attempt to influence my stand on the bill," Case said.

Chairman Walter F. George (Dem.), Georgia, said the group will consider the matter. But counsel Charles W. Steadman commented that Griffin's views on the gas bill were not the subject of the inquiry.

The controversial telegram apparently was dispatched Jan. 14. It said: "I want competition. Please vote for passage of the Harrison-Fawcett bill."

Steadman asked Case whether he and Griffin had discussed the telegram prior to this afternoon. Case replied that in a Feb. 1 telephone conversation with Griffin he commented that a telegram from Griffin was in the file.

Case told Steadman that Griffin did not disclaim the telegram at that time but may have been "puzzled by my reference to it."

At one point, Steadman asked whether the telegram had been voted against by the "irrespective of the Neff incident." John M. Neff is the lawyer and lobbyist from Lexington, Neb., who made the $2500 contribution.

"I don't know that I would," Case replied. He commented the incident forced him to pay more attention to the "desultory debate on the measure" and made him more aware of the issues involved.

QUESTIONED ABOUT TIMING OF REPORT

By EDWARD F. WOODS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10—Considerable interest in the "timing" of Senator Francis Case's report to the Senate of the $2500 campaign contribution that he suspected was intended to influence his vote on the natural gas bill, was indicated today by a Senate select committee.

Case, South Dakota Republican, appeared before the committee to tell under oath what he knows about the matter, which he disclosed last Friday in debate on the bill.

Charles W. Steadman, committee counsel, questioned Case about the "timing" and about a letter written last Jan. 4 by E. J. Kahler, business manager of the Sioux Falls (R.D.) Argus-Tribune, to John M. Neff, a Lexington (Neb.) attorney, by which Kahler told Neff he had "visited" with Case about the gas bill and that it would be all right for Neff to visit the Senator in Washington.

Kahler is the person to whom Neff paid the $2500, which later was turned over to John Griffin, a Sioux Falls druggist, authorized to accept contributions for Case's campaign.

Case said he could not recall ever having discussed Neff with Kahler.

CABINET DECISION ON INABILITY OF ANY PRESIDENT IS URGED BY HOOVER

That Group Best Able to Determine Fitness, He Tells Senators — Other Suggestions Given.

By a Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10 — The House Judiciary subcommittee on presidential disability today sifted a variety of suggestions for providing a replacement for the President should he become unable to carry out his functions.

The subcommittee had before it expressions of opinion as to how this might be done from 17 top-ranking political scientists and authorities on constitutional law, including one from former President Herbert Hoover.

"The former Chief Executive, in the briefest of the communications published today by the subcommittee in a 40,000-word document, said that the Cabinet should make the decision in the case of doubt as to a President's ability to carry out his office. Hoover recommended also that the Vice President assume the 'executive powers' until the President has recovered from his disability. The question of whether he has recovered should be decided by the Cabinet, he said.

Unanswered Questions. The Constitution provides that the powers and duties of the President shall devolve on the Vice President in case of the President's inability. The Constitution leaves unanswered what is the status of one who acts as President because of inability of the President, what constitutes inability to discharge the powers and duties of the President, and what is to determine when an inability exists and when it ceases.

Congressional interest first was aroused on these points during President Garfield's lingering illness preceding his death. Later uncertainty about the vacuum in the Constitution was generated by the protracted illness of President Wilson.

President Eisenhower's heart attack last September again brought the implications of presidential inability to congressional attention.

There are divergent views expressed by the experts who replied to a long questionnaire sent out by the House subcommittee as to whether the course of action in the event of inability of the President should be spelled out by constitutional amendment or by law.

Likewise, there are differences in practically all of the replies as to the decision on inability, who should initiate the question of inability, who should decide it exists and who should decide when it ends.

Replies Summarized. A survey of the replies places the opinions generally within 10 categories, as follows:

1. Question should be initiated by a concurrent resolution of Congress, empowering the Chief Justice of the United States to appoint a body of seven private citizens of both parties. Determination would be left to the Vice President, members of the Cabinet, presiding officers of the House and Senate, after consultation with proper medical experts.

2. Vice President should initiate the question, with the determination to be made by a body designated by Congress, either the Cabinet, the National Security Council or the Chief Justice.

3. The President, himself, should declare his own disability and if he is unable to do so, the question should be raised by the Vice President, with the determination resting with Congress. If the Congress is absent, determination would be left to the Supreme Court.

4. A special continuing committee would initiate the question and make the determination of inability. The committee would include the President's wife, next of kin, Chief Justice, senior associate justice of the Supreme Court, leader of the President's political party in the Senate and the House of Representatives.

5. The President should state his inability and delegate the powers of his office to the Vice President. In the event the President is unable to do so the Vice President should determine the question. As to the cessation of inability, the President would declare himself as able and return to office.

6. Three commissioners on presidential disability should be appointed for life by the Supreme Court. The commissioners would initiate and determine the question of inability.

7. The Vice President should initiate the inability question but should not determine it. Congress should make the final determination of inability as well as its cessation.

8. Congress should enact a concurrent resolution setting forth a procedure to be followed by the President, under which he would notify the Vice President of his inability. Should the President be unable to notify the Vice President or is mentally incapacitated, the Vice President should seek an opinion from an advisory council composed of those in the line of succession.

9. Congress should enact a concurrent resolution whereby the Supreme Court could make the determination on a petition from either house of Congress or two or three of the following: Vice President, Speaker of the House, congressional majority and minority leaders.

10. Both Congress and the Cabinet should initiate and determine the question with the concurrence and advice of the Cabinet.

Bills to Be Drafted. Representative Emanuel Celler (Dem.), New York, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee and of the subcommittee studying the inability problem, said that the various suggestions would be drafted into bills for consideration.

Questionnaires were sent to about 60 persons and the replies published today are the first to have been received.

Former President Harry S. Truman has given the subcommittee his ideas on the subject, but the text of his letter was not released because Truman said he wished to enlarge on his views.

Through most of the replies ran the thought that the authors of the Constitution knew exactly what they were doing when they failed to define "inability" in the document. The consensus was that "inability" applies to conditions which are unforeseeable and that if Congress attempted to spell out the definition more harm than good might result.

Celler said that in hearings on the proposals he expects to have as witnesses Hoover and Truman, former Vice President Henry A. Wallace and John Nance Garner, and Alben W. Barkley, also a former Vice President now serving as a Senator from Kentucky.

Disagree With Hoover. Thomas K. Finletter, a former member of the Cabinet as Secretary of the Air Force under President Truman, and David Fellman, political science professor, disagree with Hoover on giving the Cabinet power to make the decision on disability.

Finletter contended that the Cabinet has no status under the Constitution to make such a decision and he expressed doubt that any law giving it such power would pass the test of constitutionality.

Finletter said that the "cards are stacked so heavily in the Cabinet" it would be impossible to get an objective opinion on the President's ability to continue his duties.

Finletter said the Cabinet is made up of personal appointees of the President, who serve at his pleasure. I would regard the Cabinet as wholly unsuitable to make such a decision," Fellman wrote.

Finletter suggested that the question of presidential disability ought to be reviewed by the Supreme Court through a test of the constitutionality of an act providing for the Vice President acting as President under certain conditions.

Professor Backs Hoover. Hoover's suggestion had the support of C. Herman Pritchett, political science professor at the University of Chicago.

The Cabinet probably would be prejudiced against declaring a President unfit to continue his duties but no other group would have such intimate contacts with the Chief Executive on which to base judgment, he said.

On the contrary, Mark de W. Howe, Harvard law professor, said that this very "intimate

RED PRESS PLAYS UP CHARGES OF U.S. BALLOON SPYING

MOSCOW, Feb. 10 (AP) — The Soviet press today played up sensationally Moscow's charges that American weather balloons "captured" in the U.S.S.R. were shown to be devices for aerial reconnaissance. The press made no mention of a United States note promising to keep the weather balloons away from Soviet air space.

The official Communist party newspaper, Pravda, and the government paper, Izvestia, devoted five columns to yesterday's spectacular news conference at Spiridonovka palace. At that conference the Russians displayed balloon envelopes and equipment and charged that the weather balloons were part of an American "brink of war" policy.

The space was devoted to pictures and accounts of the news conference and carried identical headlines: "About the release by American military organs of balloons into the air space of the Soviet Union."

CZECHOSLOVAKIA TO SPEND LESS FOR DEFENSE IN 1956

VIENNA, Feb. 10 (AP) — Czechoslovak Minister of Finance Julius Durs announced in Parliament yesterday that 1956 defense expenditures will be lower than in 1955, the Prague radio reported.

Durs said the new budget provides for expenditures of 89,897,000,000 Czech crowns (about twelve and one half billion dollars). Of this, 10.7 per cent will be spent for defense as compared with 12.5 per cent in 1955.

Communist Hungary, where the 1956 budget is also being discussed in parliament, said defense expenditures will be reduced by 4 per cent as compared with the 1955 figures.

association" is what makes the Cabinet an "inappropriate body" to decide on the President's disability. He said, however, that Congress should decide, with the advice of the Cabinet.

Charles Fairman, Harvard law professor, and Everett S. Brown, professor of political science at the University of Michigan, urged that the Congress give some thought to the possibility of capture of the President by an enemy invader, as well as to his possible disability, and to make provisions therefor.

"The President might fall under the power of the enemy or be kidnapped, or be lost, as in the disappearance of an airplane," Fairman said.

Brown said that the "capture of a President in time of war could readily lead to a crisis in government unless proper provisions were made for such an emergency."

LACOSTE LANDS IN ALGERIA, NEW RIOTS BREAK OUT

French Colonists Defy Bar, March to Memorial—Size of Crowd Dwindles.

ALGIERS, Feb. 10 (AP) — Robert Lacoste arrived today to become Premier Mollet's new resident minister in violence-torn Algeria.

There was some street fighting, but the crowd was smaller than that in the riotous demonstrations against Mollet last Monday which caused the resignation of Gen. Georges Catroux and the appointment of Lacoste to take his place.

French residents, defying an official bar on demonstrations, assembled at the War Memorial to swear they would remain to live or die in this country.

The march to the memorial, organized by the Committee of Public Safety which opposes any concessions to Algerian nationalists, was headed by 120 mayors. It broke through two cordons of police to reach the garden around the monument. A cold rain was falling.

The crowd, estimated at 3000 by police, smashed through the gate to the monument's steps, sang the Marseillaise stressing the line "aux armes, citoyens" (to arms, citizens) and took the marchers to a square where they resembled a Fascist salute.

More fighting broke out when police began clearing the area. Several demonstrators were found to be carrying pistols. More than 200 demonstrators were arrested and several injured were removed in ambulances.

Order was restored within an hour. Mollet, meanwhile, was closeted with Lacoste.

Foreign Legionnaires and mobile guardsmen were in reserve in an effort to prevent a repetition of Monday's rioting, when a mob hurled stones, eggs and garbage at Mollet at war memorial rites.

Behind the Algerian demonstrations was a movement obviously aimed at unseating Mollet's new government.

Jean Baptiste Blaghi, Paris lawyer who leads a group of Algerian war veterans, took over two public meetings here yesterday and turned them into political rallies.

Enlisting the support of the war veterans, mayors and the powerful public safety committee, Blaghi quickly touched off a popular demand for today's march.

Air Force Authorizes Guided Missile Research Plant at Denver

Glenn Martin Co. Facility to Employ 1500 to 2000 Persons When in Full Operation.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10 (UP) — The Air Force today authorized Glenn L. Martin Co. of Baltimore to build a multi-million dollar guided missiles research facility near Denver.

While the official announcement gave no hint on the purpose of the plant, it was generally expected in informed aviation circles to work on the Air Force's intercontinental ballistic missile program.

The announcement said that 1500 to 2000 persons will be employed when the plant reaches maximum capacity. Martin's initial outlay will be $10,000,000. "Cost figures for the entire facility have not as yet been determined," Air Secretary Donald A. Quarles said.

He said the facilities will "supplement" the Air Force's present operations at Baltimore.

There will be a "developmental fabrication plant with added testing facilities" in the Denver area.

The Air Force had only a "no comment" on whether it has or will make a contract with Martin to work on ballistic missiles. But it has been expected for some time that Martin would be brought into the intercontinental missile effort.

Convair division of General Dynamics Corp. now is doing much of this work.

Both Convair and Martin, it was believed, will be concerned with the "air frame" of the ocean-spanning missile. There has been no official indication as to what companies are concerned with the power plant.

Both North American Aviation and Aerojet-General are known to have large power plant contracts with the Air Force.

GARDNER TO QUIT POST SATURDAY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10 (AP) — President Eisenhower has accepted Trevor Gardner's resignation as Assistant Air Force Secretary in a letter which took no note of Gardner's recommendation that work on guided missiles development be speeded up.

Gardner in effect carried to the President his dispute with other top Administration officials over the size and urgency of the missiles program. "It is in this area," he said in his letter of resignation, "that we should place increased emphasis in order to stay ahead of a possible enemy. . . . I have continuously striven for a larger budget for the Air Force research and development program, because of an honest difference of opinion about the level of support for the Air Force research and development program, I am submitting my resignation as Assistant Secretary. . . .

"Please Call on Me," Gardner asked Mr. Eisenhower to "please call on me" if the President feels he can be of any assistance in the future.

Mr. Eisenhower wrote in reply: "Secretary (of Defense) Wilson has advised me of the emergency you have displayed in your work during the past three years, and I commend it. As you return to private life, I extend my wishes for success in the years ahead."

Gardner, completing three years as Air Force chief for research and development, will step aside Saturday. His successor has not been named.

He announced his resignation Wednesday because of what he called differences with superiors on the guided missiles program. He told reporters there should be a "crash program" for their development.

Symington Criticizes President's Statements on Missiles. Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10 — Senator Stuart Symington (Dem., Missouri), said today President Eisenhower was "badly informed" if he believed this country could not move faster in developing long-range missiles.

In a speech for delivery in the Senate, Symington criticized the President's statements in a press conference Wednesday, that Russia probably is ahead of the United States in certain limited fields, but that there is no reason to believe this country is not doing its best in an over-all sense.

"This statement might lead some people to believe that our being ahead in some missiles and the Communists being ahead in others is nothing to worry about—a sort of balance," Symington said.

"The facts are that our missile development may be ahead in the short-range area, but their missile development is ahead in the area that counts by far the most—the long-range area."

He added that the American might gather "another erroneous opinion" from the press conference—that this country is in fact doing all it can in the missile field.

"That is not correct," he said. "As of today, we are operating almost on a business-as-usual basis."

B-47 CRASHES IN SOUTH DAKOTA, 6 ABOARD KILLED

Jet Bomber Falls, Burns Just After Take-Off at Ellsworth Air Force Base.

RAPID CITY, S.D., Feb. 10 (AP) — Six men were killed when a B-47 jet bomber crashed and burned shortly after taking off from the Ellsworth Air Force Base here today.

Air Force officers declined to give names of the victims and the home base of the plane until families of victims have been notified.

The plane crashed with a force that shook windows in a farm house a mile away and burned so fiercely no rescuers could get near it.

While taking off, the plane crashed and burned on the Edwin Swanson ranch about two miles north of Ellsworth Air Force Base. Part of the wreckage skidded onto a neighboring ranch.

Swanson said he did not see the crash, but heard and felt it. He said the plane was so badly demolished when he arrived on the scene that he could not determine if it was a military plane or if there were any survivors. But he said he "knew" there couldn't have been any survivors because of the shattered state of the wreckage.

B-47 Crashes and Explodes in Kansas.

WESTMORELAND, Kan., Feb. 10 (UP) — A B-47 crashed and exploded today in rolling farm country 50 miles northwest of Topeka, apparently killing all aboard.

A B-47 normally carries a crew of three.

Doc Maskel, editor of the Westmoreland Recorder, said the six-jet stratojet smashed to earth blank blew up shortly after appearing in trouble while flying over this small northeast Kansas town.

"It disintegrated over a mile area," Maskel said, "with a sheet of flame 100 feet high visible from my office three miles from the point of impact."

He said there was no evidence any crewmen had managed to bail out.

MISSOURI G.O.P. GATHERING HERE FOR LINCOLN DAY RALLIES, BANQUET

Several Related Republican Groups to Hold Meetings—Dewey Short to Address Editors Tonight.

Missouri Republicans gathered in St. Louis today for their annual two-day series of Lincoln day meetings, at which state G.O.P. leaders hope to build up party spirit and enthusiasm for the coming state political campaigns.

Activities centered at Hotel Sheraton-Jefferson where the party rally will end tomorrow night with the fifty-sixth annual Lincoln day banquet, at which United States Senator Gordon L. Allott of Colorado will be the principal speaker.

The Missouri Republican Editorial Association was to hold its annual meeting today at Mark Twain Hotel, United States Representative Dewey Short of Galena will speak at the association's dinner tonight at that hotel.

Speaks at St. Charles.
Short, a veteran G.O.P. Congressman, set the stage for the meetings here with a talk last night before a Republican Lincoln day dinner at St. Charles, in which he denounced the Democrats for criticism of the Administration's defense spending program and for creating the "brink of war" controversy.

Short, who served as chairman of the House Armed Services Committee in the last Republican-controlled Congress, declared the Democratic charge that the Republicans were endangering the nation's security to balance the federal budget was a "lot of campaign year hog-wash."

Taking an indirect slap at Democratic Senator Stuart Symington, who is likely to be Missouri's "favorite son" candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, Short declared: "This issue is being raised by a few Senators with an incurable itch for the presidency. Once that bug bites them it is fatal."

Short defended the Administration's defense policies as aimed at "security with solvency." He said the country could not have military might without economic strength.

Defense of Dulles.
Short defended Secretary of State Dulles in the "brink of war" controversy by saying that "it is true we were on the brink of war several times, but the important thing is that we stopped before jumping in the water."

Democratic administrations were in power when the United States entered World War II and the Korean conflict, he asserted.

"I am not blaming the Democrats for getting us in those wars, but the hard, cold facts are that we did go to war under three Democratic Presidents," he said. "I think the Democrats show poor grace in attempting to say that the Republicans are the war party."

He added that there are no men in public life "more dedicated to peace" than President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles.

Missouri Republicans attending the meeting are wondering if additional party members will announce their candidacies for G.O.P. nominations for state and congressional offices while in St. Louis.

Only Two So Far.

So far, only two candidates have announced. They are Joseph M. Wheeler, 37-year-old St. Louis business executive, who said he intends to run for Governor, and Jesse E. Smith of Springfield, who is running for the Republican nomination for Missouri Secretary of State. Party leaders are worried because no Republican has stepped out to challenge United States Senator Thomas C. Hennings Jr., Democrat, in this year's senatorial race.

It is reported that many potential candidates are holding off their announcements until President Eisenhower decides whether to seek a second term. State party leaders had hoped that Mr. Eisenhower would have made his decision known by this time, but indications are that the President will make no announcement before March 1.

Several other state Republican organizations will meet here tomorrow in connection with the state rally.

Women's Clubs Luncheon.
The Federation of Republican Women's Clubs will hold a luncheon meeting at Hotel Sheraton-Jefferson. Principal speaker will be Mrs. Richard Simpson, wife of Representative Simpson of Pennsylvania, chairman of the Republican congressional campaign committee.

The Republican Veterans Service League also will have a luncheon meeting at the hotel. The Young Republican Federation of Missouri will hold a reception at the hotel tonight.

United States Representative Charles W. Vorse of Salem, Ill., praised the record of President Eisenhower in a talk before a Lincoln day dinner given by the Belleville Republican Club last night.

Under the President's leadership, Vorse said, the Government reduced wasteful spending, cut the Truman budget, ended the Korean war and led the country in greater prosperity. He said he hoped the President's health would permit him to run again, but that if he doesn't the nation must elect a Republican who will continue the Eisenhower policies.

Senate Group Confirms Vote For High Props, Soil Bank

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10 (AP)—An election-year farm bill, which combines President Eisenhower's soil bank plan with the rigid price supports which he says would nullify it, was approved early today by the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Brushing aside the President's warning that such action would "defeat the main object of the soil bank," the committee confirmed the 8-to-7 vote of last Saturday by which it had tentatively approved supports at 90 per cent of parity for wheat, cotton, corn, rice and peanuts.

Going beyond its Saturday action, it added special provisions to benefit dairymen and growers of burley and flue-cured tobacco, and voted to figure parity prices on the higher of two formulas.

Lower Parity.
Parity is a price determined under farm law to be fair to producers in relation to their costs. An older formula was replaced this year by a newer one, which had the effect of lowering parity prices on most crops.

Chairman Ellender (Dem., Louisiana), said the alternative provision, adopted by a 9-to-6 vote, could prevent a drop of about 13 cents a bushel in wheat supports and lesser amounts on other basic crops.

At the White House, Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said he had received several requests for comment on the vote for restoration of rigid price supports. He noted a letter which Mr. Eisenhower wrote Wednesday expressing opposition to rigid supports, and added: "The President and the Administration have not changed their position one iota."

The committee, which started work yesterday morning, worked past midnight before completing its bill, which still must be drafted into final legislation. The measure then will go to the Senate.

Ellender said he expects Senate debate to get under way about Feb. 20. Many Republican Senators will be absent next week for Lincoln day political speeches.

Predicts Bitter Fight.
Both Ellender and Senator Aiken (Rep., Vermont), senior G.O.P. member of the committee, predicted a bitter floor battle.

"We'll have a big fight on the Senate floor," Ellender said. Aiken, who led the fight against the rigid price supports, echoed, "We will have to fight this all out again on the Senate floor."

A return to the higher rigid support program would knock out the flexible support program which the Eisenhower Administration pushed through in 1954. Settling the levels on a flexible scale between 75 and 90 per cent, it was designed to reduce overproduction by paying farmers less when their crops were not needed.

Mr. Eisenhower proposed this year to supplement the flexible program with a soil bank plan, under which farmers would be paid to plant less of the surplus crops than their allotments under the control program.

He and Secretary of Agriculture Benson have contended that large Government-owned surpluses acquired under the high-level support program have kept farm prices down. Once this surplus is absorbed, they said, farm prices will react to normal market conditions.

The Senate committee approved the soil bank, along with authorization of $750,000,000 for it. Another $350,000,000 was authorized for a conservation reserve, under which any kind of land could be planted to grass or trees for periods of three to 15 years.

To the kinds of farmers Mr. Eisenhower had proposed to make eligible for the soil bank payments, the committee added growers of burley, flue-cured and some types of cigar filler tobacco.

Reversing an action of last Saturday, it also approved an increase to a minimum 80 per cent of parity in support levels for milk, butter and cheese. The House already has approved such a provision. Dairy products now are supported at 75 per cent of parity.

Despite objection by Senator Hickenlooper (Rep., Iowa), the committee voted that corn growers must abide by acreage restrictions to be eligible for the soil bank payments. Such a requirement now exists for price supports, but the restrictions are not mandatory on corn as they are on other basic crops.

The committee also defeated 8-to-7 a proposal by Senator Humphrey (Dem., Minnesota), for special premium payments to farmers who market lightweight hogs of 180 to 200 pounds.

STATE TO MISS SCHOOL AID GOAL BY 19 MILLION

Official Says Distributions Under 'Foundation Program' Will Be $54,112,000.

By BOYD F. CARROLL
Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 10—The State of Missouri will fall about $19,000,000 short of contributing its full share of the cost of the new "foundation program" of more liberal state aid to public school districts, in the current 1955-56 fiscal year, Commissioner of Education Hubert Wheeler said today.

Two distributions of state public school aid funds made last September and December, and the third and final one of the school year to be made in March, will total about $54,112,000, Wheeler said.

This amount will be about 74 per cent of the $73,000,000 estimated as necessary if the state were able to pay its full share for the year, under the new act.

1955 Financing Inadequate.
This failure of full payment resulted from inadequate financing by the 1955 Legislature of the aid program it approved, then referred to the voters.

A bill establishing the program was passed by the 1955 Legislature, with a proviso referring it to the voters for ratification in a state-wide referendum election. The act, and a companion cigarette tax bill to ward financing it, were approved by the voters in a referendum election last Oct. 4.

The $19,000,000 by which the state falls short of the $73,000,000 estimated share of the type requiring a legislative appropriation to pay it. But it probably will be used in the 1957 session as a leverage for more public school revenue and full financing of the program.

The 1955 Legislature, at the behest of the school lobby and backers of the "foundation program," increased the statutory share of the public schools in the state general revenue fund collections from one-third to 37½ per cent of the annual collections.

It also passed the act establishing a new state cigarette tax of 2 cents a package, effective Jan. 1, and earmarked all revenue from that tax for the schools. It is expected to produce about $9,000,000 a year.

Sales Tax Rise Killed.
These two measures were not adequate, however, to meet requirements under the new aid act. Some of the school program backers had counted on an increase in the state 2 per cent sales tax for additional funds, in the 1955 session, but the tax increase bill was killed.

The sales tax collections go into the general fund and are subject to the 37½ per cent share of the school in that fund.

Estimates of school operations for the 1956-57 fiscal year, beginning next July 1 and ending June 30, 1957, place the share the state should pay in district aid, under the new law, at about $73,000,000, the same total as for the current year.

Money to be available from the 37½ per cent of general revenue and the cigarette tax is estimated at $65,000,000, or $10,000,000 short of state aid requirements for 1956-57, unless the 1957 Legislature provides more revenue.

ROAD AGENCY SAYS EXPRESSWAY SURVEY CUTS ESTIMATE OF DISPLACEMENTS

The route proposed for the Ozark Expressway would require demolition of buildings housing 1378 families in South St. Louis, the State Highway Department informed city officials today.

Opponents of this route had contended bitterly that 4000 or more families would be deprived of their homes, but a survey just completed by the Highway Department brands this as an exaggeration.

In deference to aldermen who constitute have brought pressure for a change in the route, the Highway Department did not make public the count itself. Instead, it notified the South St. Louis aldermen of the number of residential units that would be affected in their respective wards, and let the aldermen announce the results.

Count by Wards.
The tabulation:
Eighth ward—266 units.
Ninth ward—365.
Tenth ward—79.
Eleventh ward—433.
Twelfth ward—233.

At a stormy public hearing conducted last month by the aldermanic committee on streets, most of the opposition to the route laid out by state engineers came from residents of the Tenth ward. The study just completed shows that this ward would have the smallest number of families to be displaced.

Chairman Raymond Leisure has announced that the committee on streets will defer action on the bill establishing the route to give four aldermen time to make their own count of the homes that would have to be torn down.

Since then Alderman Anton Niemeyer, Eighth Ward, has indicated that he will not attempt a survey of his own, but apparently Aldermen Louis Aboussie of the Ninth ward, James E. Giesler of the Tenth and Albert Villa of the Eleventh will proceed with their tabulations.

DR. HERBERT S. SCHMELTZ FOUND DEAD IN ATTIC
Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 10—The body of Dr. Herbert S. Schmeltz, retired osteopath, was found last night in the attic of his home here. It was found by a son, Charles, when he was searching the unheated third floor for some napkins.

Dr. Schmeltz, 55 years old, had left a note last Jan. 14, saying he was going to St. Louis to visit his daughter, Martha Jane Schmeltz, a student at Fontbonne College there. When he did not show up at the school and did not return home, his wife reported him missing to police.

Coroner Joseph A. Butler III said the doctor apparently died of natural causes about the date he wrote the note. The body was on the floor, face up, with the head resting on a pillow.

In another case before Magistrate Harris today, Charles J. Weeks of Greve Coeur, 18, was sentenced to six months in jail after pleading guilty to a charge of stealing $3.38 worth of empty soda bottles from an Overland market Feb. 4. He has had four previous convictions in cases of property destruction and has been arrested many times.

Admits Entering Schools.
Andrew Gorman, 17, of the 7700 block of Big Bend boulevard, Shrewsbury, was given a stayed six-month sentence after pleading guilty to four charges reduced to stealing less than $50. He admitted breaking into three schools, a dental office and a refreshment stand in Webster Groves and a Glendale school. He was placed on probation for two years and ordered to observe a 10 p.m. curfew.

Two other youths also were sentenced to six months in jail

4 YOUTHS FINED, ONE JAILED OVER INVADING HOME

Four of seven teen-age boys who invaded a Pagedale home Jan. 21, and later became involved in a fight in which a man's jaw was broken, were fined $250 for peace disturbance today by Magistrate Raymond I. Harris at Clayton.

Louis V. Westmoreland, 1400 block of Twillman avenue, St. Louis county, was sentenced to 30 days in jail for assault and fined $250 for peace disturbance. He also was put on probation for two years on completion of the sentence, with orders to be in his home by 8 p.m. the first six months and by 9 p.m. the second six months.

Westmoreland had been on parole on a previous assault charge.

Three others were sentenced to 30 days in jail and fined $100 for peace disturbance. The jail terms were stayed. They are Ralph Ledema, 360 block of Grove avenue, Wellston; Richard S. Contino, 1700 block of Grove avenue, Wellston, and John J. Shipley, 5900 block of Lotus avenue.

Charges against James H. De priest, 6400 block of Myrtle avenue, Wellston, were dismissed after he convinced Magistrate Harris that he had pleaded with the others to leave the Pagedale home and stop the disturbance.

Two others in the case are juveniles.

Eggs Thrown on Walls.
The home they entered was that of Mrs. Helen Miget, 1245 Grogan place. They threw eggs on walls, poured beer on a davenport and some chairs, and broke a baby's crib and other furniture, police reported. One of them knew Mrs. Miget's daughter, Charlene Lawrence, and when she refused to admit them they forced their way in.

After leaving they went to a restaurant in Pagedale and got into a dispute with James Javaux, 20 years old, 7017 Robbins avenue, Pagedale. When he refused to play a juke box he was taken outside and beaten and kicked, and suffered a broken jaw.

BIG-STORE SALES IN DOLLARS DROP 7 PCT. FOR WEEK

St. Louis area department store sales dropped 7 per cent in dollar volume last week compared with the corresponding week a year ago, the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis reported today.

For the four-week period ended last Saturday, St. Louis area sales increased 3 per cent over those of the corresponding period in 1955.

Dollar volume of sales decreased 1 per cent in the Eighth Federal Reserve District as a whole last week over the similar period a year ago, with the decline centering in the St. Louis area. The district as a whole showed a 3 per cent gain for the four weeks ending Saturday over a year ago.

WOMAN KILLED, AUTO HITS KIRKWOOD TREE

Mrs. Eva Owens of Webster Groves in Car Driven by Grandson.

Mrs. Eva Owens, 824 Providence avenue, Webster Groves, was killed today when an automobile driven by her grandson, Robert E. Gibson, went out of control and struck a tree in the 400 block of East Argonne drive, Kirkwood.

Gibson, 22-year-old salesman, also living at the Webster Groves address, suffered severe cuts of the face and head. He was unable immediately to give police an explanation of how the accident occurred.

Mrs. Owens, 66, was dead on arrival at St. Louis County Hospital. She suffered fractures of the spine, wrist and right knee, and severe cuts of the face.

The automobile driven by Gibson was eastbound on Argonne when it went out of control, swung to the north side of the street, jumped the curb and struck the tree. Police expressed the opinion he may have "blacked out."

TAX EVADER FINED $3000 AND PUT ON PROBATION
Emmett W. Stephens, co-proprietor of two south St. Louis filling stations, was fined $3000 by United States District Judge George H. Moore today and put on probation for two years under suspended sentence on his plea of guilty of filing fraudulent income tax returns.

Stephens admitted reporting aggregate income of $20,280 for 1949 through 1952, on which he paid $2017 taxes, when his correct income was $32,463 for the four years, and tax owed $5198. Government counsel told the court Stephens had maintained a double set of books to support the fraudulent returns.

Questioned by Judge Moore, Stephens admitted he also defrauded the Government of about $3000 in taxes for 1947-48. He said he had made this amount good, together with the $3181 shortage for 1949-52. He said he had sold his former home in the 10600 block of Twilight lane, Sappington, to raise money for his government obligations.

JUDGE CONNOR'S APPLICATION FOR RETIREMENT GRANTED
Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 10—The application of Circuit Judge William S. Connor of St. Louis for immediate retirement because of physical infirmities was granted today by the Missouri Commission on Retirement of Judges and Magistrates.

Judge Connor, who is 74 years old and has served 21 years, filed his application Jan. 19.

Under the order he will draw one-half his annual salary of $14,000 until expiration of his term Dec. 31, 1958, and then can apply for a special commission-ership under the Missouri Supreme Court, at one-third salary.

and placed on probation for two years, with a 10 p.m. curfew, on reduced charges of stealing less than $50. The sentences were stayed. They are Paul Howard Weis, 100 block of Woodstock road, Ferguson, and Brian H. McGuire, 10200 block of Capitol drive, St. Louis county. They and a 16-year-old boy admitted three thefts from country clubs.

After the sentencing, Harris took the parolee on a tour of the county jail to show them what they were being spared, and warned that they would get "a closer look" if they commit further offenses.

SENTENCED TO 4 YEARS FOR POSSESSING HEROIN
Homer Phillips, of the 2700 block of Hickory street, who pleaded guilty last Monday to a charge of possession of heroin, was sentenced to four years in prison today by United States District Judge Ruben M. Hulen Phillips, a Negro was arrested Jan. 23 by federal agents.

He served four years in a federal prison after an Army court-martial. He is 28 years old.

CASE SAYS HE GOT 'FICTITIOUS' WIRE ON GAS BILL VOTE

Kahler, except for Kahler having mentioned Neff's name in a telephone call to Washington last Jan. 25 in which Kahler said Neff had left with him $2500 for Case's campaign.

Steadman questioned Case as to what he called his delay in reporting the incident to the Senate until Feb. 3, the last day of debate before the Senate started voting on the gas bill.

Case replied that he had been occupied in the period between Jan. 25 and last Friday in ascertaining Neff's identity and his interest in passage of the gas bill. It was not until Jan. 31 that he learned, on inquiry of Senator Roman Hruska, Nebraska Republican, that Neff was a lawyer, Case said.

Case said that the timing of his disclosure was not under his control and he was not responsible for the setting of the vote for last Monday. Proposals of the gas bill charged on the Senate floor that Case deliberately timed the report on the contribution to throw a last-minute brickbat at the bill to influence other Senators against it.

Bill Discussed With Aid.

Moreover, Case said it was not until Feb. 2 that a search of his files revealed a letter of Dec. 7, 1955, in which Kahler described Neff as being interested in passage of the gas bill, and a canvass of his office staff disclosed that a man who said he was a friend of Kahler had visited his office and discussed the natural gas bill with his legislative assistant.

Under questioning by Steadman, Case testified that he decided Feb. 2 that he would assign as one of his reasons for voting against the gas bill the Neff tender of money.

Explaining what he termed the "logic" of his decision, Case said, "It seemed extraordinary to me for a man to come into my state and inquire about my vote on the gas bill, then come to Washington and discuss the matter with a member of my staff and then go back to South Dakota and make a $2500 contribution to my campaign fund."

At the outset of his testimony, Case said it was his understanding that the select committee inquiry was not an investigation of a bribe.

No Bribe Offer.

"No such charge was made and I did not interpret the offer as a bribe," Case said. "There was nothing proposed to me or promised. No one has said there were any strings attached to the tendered gift. It is my understanding the inquiry is to determine if there was an improper attempt to influence my vote in the Senate."

Case related that last Jan. 25 he received a long-distance telephone call from Kahler in Sioux Falls, who said he had "something here left for your campaign."

Case said he inquired what it was and was told "It is an envelope with 25 $100 bills in it."

"That took my breath away," Case said.

"Who is it from?" Case said he inquired.

"It is from a man who was down there to see you recently," a Mr. Neff of Nebraska," Kahler told him.

"Kahler went on to say that that was quite a bit of money to have laying around," Case related, "and wanted to know what to do with it."

Began Inquiry.

Case said he summoned his personal secretary, Miss May Aaberg, and asked if she recalled any visitor by the name of Neff. But Miss Aaberg could not. Then Case, said, he inquired of staff members present in the "outer office" if they knew of a Neff and none did.

Jan. 28, Case went on, he talked with Miss Mabel Connell, his administrative assistant, who said, "I think there was someone in the office who talked with Miss Opal Van Horn and he identified himself as a friend of Kahler."

Miss Van Horn was in South Dakota on that day attending the funeral of her mother and did not return to the Washington office until Jan. 30.

Case related that "since no one recalled Neff," he called Griffin Jan. 26 and inquired if anyone had turned over to him an envelope with a sizeable contribution.

When Griffin replied in the negative, Case said he told him that if such an envelope was delivered, to set it aside, keep the money intact and not mingle it with other campaign funds "because I had to find out more about it," Griffin agreed.

When Miss Van Horn returned from South Dakota Jan. 30, Case continued, he left a note for her inquiring, "Did you talk to a Mr. Neff of Nebraska and re what?"

The following days, he said, Miss Van Horn would not recall a conversation with "a Mr. Neff as such," but a day later informed him that she recalled a man who identified himself "as a friend of Kahler" had come to the office and talked to her.

When he asked her "what about," she replied "the natural gas bill," Case said.

Case said he then called "a friend" in Washington and asked if he knew Neff to be an attorney.

"As soon as I found out he was an attorney and had been in my office I knew I wanted nothing to do with the contribution," Case said. "I was alerted."

I called Griffin on Feb. 1. He said the envelope had been delivered and was in a safe deposit box. He said he had been assured by Kahler there were no strings attached.

"I told John we're not going to keep that money and I'm going to vote against the gas bill. That money represents an abnormal interest in my vote and suggests to me there is something in the arguments of the opponents of the bill that there are extraordinary profits in it for someone."

Case said that Griffin told him that if he wanted to vote against the bill to go ahead but advised him that, with so many persons in South Dakota among his friends who were expecting him to support it, he should make a strong statement on the Senate floor explaining his stand.

It took a little prodding by Steadman to induce Case to disclose the identity of the "friend" of whom he had inquired about Neff as Senator Hruska.

Checked Letters on Bill.

The name Neff was vaguely familiar to him, Case said, so on Feb. 1 and 2 he had all his correspondence on the gas bill checked. Miss Van Horn came up with a letter from Kahler dated Dec. 7, 1955, in which Kahler mentioned that Neff had been in his office and inquired how the two South Dakota Senators would vote on the gas bill.

The search revealed, Case continued, that on Dec. 12, without reference to Neff, he had replied to Kahler by letter that generally speaking he felt the purpose of the natural gas bill was desirable and that he expected to vote for it, but was withholding final decision.

Under questioning by Steadman, Case said it was not his practice to confer with Kahler on legislation though he had talked with him previously about conservation bills and taxation affecting newspapers.

By this time, Case continued, he knew he could not use the money and wanted it returned to the donor, so on Feb. 2 he wired Griffin to try to get it back to the original donor and if that failed to turn it over to the South Dakota Children's Home.

Case said he had a "little sinus trouble" that evening and went home and took a little "home remedy" for his discomfort—nasal jelly.

Didn't Discuss Speech.

He said he had not discussed with any Senators the speech he was going to make on the contribution, though he did inform Senator George D. Aiken (Rep., Vermont, last Friday afternoon that he soon was going to speak and would like to have him remain in the chamber "so I would have an audience."

Aiken, who also voted against the gas bill, previously had bitterly denounced the activities of the gas and oil lobby in a Senate speech.

Steadman wanted to know why Case waited until Jan. 31 to ask Hruska about Neff when he knew of the money offer from Kahler Jan. 25.

The Senator explained that he was "checking on any interest Neff might have."

Steadman then picked up his line of questioning as to possible conversations between Case and Kahler last December. Though Case had been in Sioux Falls Dec. 12 to make a speech he could not recall having talked with Kahler about anything.

Reads Kahler's Letter.

Steadman then read copies of letters written by Kahler to Neff on Dec. 25 and another on Jan. 4. In the December letter Kahler told Neff he had "heard from and visited with" Case about the gas bill.

In the Jan. 4 letter, he (Kahler) informed Neff that he had visited with Case relative to the gas bill. He told Case of his talk with Neff and that it would be appropriate for Neff to visit Case in Washington.

Case, a short bald man, sat on the edge of his chair, frequently tipping it forward and backward during the course of his testimony.

The hearing is being held in the caucus room of the Senate office building, the scene of such boisterous proceedings has the Army-McCarthy hearings and the Senate hearings in which Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep., Wisconsin, figured.

There was nothing boisterous about today's inquiry.

South Dakota Geography.

Case required almost an hour to explain to the Senators the geography of South Dakota, its travel difficulties and old friendships which have developed into valuable political associations.

Senator Walter F. George (Dem., Georgia, dean of the Senate and chairman of the select committee, appeared at times to be dozing as Case led the committee up and down the highways and byways of South Dakota and his own political operation.

Other members of the committee — Senators Edward J. Thye of Minnesota and Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, Republicans, and Carl Hayden of Arizona, Democrat—listened in ill-concealed amusement as Case earnestly explained how he had charted his plans for running his primary campaign on a budget of $1500 before the "fantastic" windfall contribution of $2500 was dumped on a friend's desk.

About 400 spectators filled the seats in the caucus room and there were a few standees.

wrote. "As you well know, we have been kept very busy with the charter matter."

"And now that that has been disposed of, I am of the opinion that we will like to give the freeholders an opportunity to consider this kind of legislation."

Bill for Airport Funds.

A bill to appropriate $275,000 from airport development funds for additional improvements to the area around the new Terminal building at Lambert-St. Louis Field was introduced in the Board of Aldermen today by Edgar J. Feely, Twentieth Ward Democrat.

The $275,000 would provide for construction of taxiway lighting, an addition to the control tower and more escalators, automobile parking areas, roadways, walks, lighting and lighting and landscaping.

The bill was previously approved by the Board of Estimate and the Board of Public Service. The airport development funds were derived from sale of a city-owned building to McDonnell Aircraft Corp.

Another bill introduced today would limit the number of tavern licenses which could be issued by the city to the number presently in existence. Similar bills have been introduced in other years, but never passed.

WORLD BUILDING'S CORNERSTONE BOX FINALLY IS FOUND

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10—The case of the missing cornerstone was solved yesterday when a sealed copper box fell out of a pile of bricks as workmen were demolishing the Pulitzer building.

It was first reported missing Jan. 16, when Manhattan Borough President Hulan E. Jack said the cornerstone, the contents of which are to go to the Pulitzer collection at the Columbia School of Journalism, could not be located. Wreckers of the building, home of the old New York World and Evening World, could only find the bronze nameplate.

Contents of the cornerstone — photographs, papers and coins—will see the light of day next Wednesday for the first time since Oct. 10, 1889, when the late Joseph Pulitzer, publisher of The World and of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, sealed it.

The building, long a landmark of the old Park Row newspaper district, is being torn down to widen the approaches to an even older landmark, the Brooklyn Bridge.

TWO INDEPENDENT UNION FEDERATIONS PLAN MERGER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10 (AP)—A "little merger" movement, bringing together the two largest federations of independent unions, will culminate at a convention starting Sept. 26 in Chicago, the independents announced today.

The National Independent Union Council, which claims 1,800,000 members, and the Confederated Unions of America, claiming 450,000 are now drafting a constitution for the merged federation.

A spokesman said they hope to bring into the federation the bulk of about 6,000,000 members of national and local independent unions and to strengthen these groups against "raiding" by the merged AFL-CIO.

FIVE CHARGES ON DRIVER CAUGHT IN 15-MILE CHASE

Milton J. Huber of Belleville, a laborer, was at liberty today under $5000 bond on five traffic charges growing out of a 15-mile automobile chase early Wednesday by Belleville police in which 10 shots were fired.

The pursuit started in Belleville and ended 12 miles south of town on Illinois Route 159 when Huber ran his machine into a ditch to avoid collision with a truck. Huber, 24 years old, faces two careless driving charges and charges of speeding, ignoring a police siren and operating without a driver's license.

UNITED AIR LINES AGAIN MAY ASK TO SERVE CITY

Would Provide Direct Route Between St.
Louis and the Pacific Northwest.

United Air Lines is expected to file an application with the Civil Aeronautics Board in Washington, possibly today, asking permission to add St. Louis to its system, which would provide direct air service between St. Louis and the Pacific Northwest, Chamber of Commerce officials said today.

If the application is approved, the officials said, St. Louis would be served by three of the four transcontinental airlines and would have additional service to the East and West Coasts.

United, which has had two previous applications for St. Louis service turned down by the CAB, is one of the largest air carriers in the nation, serving both coasts and principal intermediate cities in the northern half of the country, the Chamber officers pointed out.

C. of C. Parley. They said United's decision to apply a third time was made following conferences here and in Chicago between officers of the airline and Aloys P. Kaufmann, chamber president, and Lee K. Mathews, chamber transportation commissioner.

Mathews said the chamber was supporting the United application, as part of its drive begun last year to obtain improved air service for St. Louis.

He said the direct flights to Seattle, Wash., and Portland, Ore., would be a principal benefit of United service here. Passengers to these cities now must change from one line to another at other points, he said.

Mathews pointed out that direct service did not necessarily mean non-stop service.

The two transcontinental lines now in St. Louis are Trans World Airlines and American Airlines. The fourth transcontinental company is Northwest Airlines, which does not operate south of Chicago.

Non-Stop Service. The chamber has asked the CAB to permit American and Eastern Air Lines to provide non-stop service to New York and also has urged authorization for St. Louis-Minneapolis flights by Ozark Air Lines.

Last Wednesday, the chamber and the City of St. Louis asked the CAB to authorize an additional airline to give non-stop service between St. Louis and Atlanta, Ga., Tampa, Fla., and Miami, Fla. Service between St. Louis and southwestern cities by Central Airlines of Fort Worth, Tex., began late last month, a plan also supported by the chamber.

CITY IN CHURCH PROJECT

Reported to the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—St. Louis was one of eight major cities designated yesterday by Presbyterians for special projects to improve the church's ministry in crowded neighborhoods. The program was set up at a mid-winter meeting of the board of national missions of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A.

The plans include technical guidance and aid in stimulating activities of churches in the crowded, poor areas, and "internship" work by student pastors.

PRESIDENT THANKS KARSTEN

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—The White House yesterday thanked Representative Frank M. Karsten (Dem., St. Louis, for a letter urging President Eisenhower to veto the bill to exempt national gas producers from direct federal price regulation.

Karsten said it was the first White House letter he had received during the Eisenhower Administration. Signed by Bruce

M. Harlow, administrative assistant to the President, it read:

"The President asked me to thank you for advising him of your views respecting the natural gas bill and to assure you that your representation will receive careful attention. We appreciate knowing your interest in this important matter. Kind regards."

LESLIE IRVIN

Killer Picked Up Trying to Pawn Stolen Rings
—Hitch-Hiked West
After Escape.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 10 (AP)—Leslie (Mad Dog) Irvin, killer of six persons and condemned to death, was captured quietly in a pawn shop on Market street yesterday. He had been the object of a nation-wide search since he escaped from a prison in Indiana, Jan. 18.

He had hitch-hiked to the West Coast.

Irvin was picked up when he tried to pawn two diamond rings he took from a home at Redondo Beach, near Los Angeles.

"I wasn't too surprised," he said in an interview. "I've been expecting to get picked up for quite a while."

Routine Visit.
Inspectors John O'Keefe and Leo Ferragiaro were making a routine visit to the pawnshop. They questioned Irvin because he acted suspiciously.

Irvin produced identification of Victor Davis of Los Angeles, pianist with a western orchestra. He spent one night, Jan. 28, at Davis's apartment after thumbing a ride with the pianist. Officers then got in touch with Davis.

"After we told him we had

Fugitive Seized

talked to Victor Davis, he said "You want to know who I really am?" Then he said he was Leslie Irvin and wanted in Indiana for killing six people," O'Keefe said.

Irvin was unarmed. A search of his cheap hotel room disclosed a hunting knife.

"People Were Nice."
"I wouldn't hurt anybody," he said. "All the way out here I got along fine with people and they were very nice. I was recognized twice that I'm sure of, once by a motorist outside Springfield, Mo. and by a driver at Cozad—that's in Nebraska. But I knew he was calling police so I left, in a hurry."

Irvin said he escaped from jail by making keys out of cardboard backs of books.

Irvin was convicted Dec. 20 of fatally shooting W. Wesley Kerr, Evansville filling station attendant. He was charged also with killing five other persons: Mrs. Mary Holland, Mrs. Wilhelmina Sailer and three members of the Goebel Duncan family.

At the time he escaped, he was awaiting transfer to Michigan City, Ind., for execution June 12.

Walked 13 Miles.
Irvin said he walked out of the Princeton jail and walked for 13 miles along a railroad track to Mount Carmel, Ill., where he stole an automobile.

"It slid off the road and overturned in a ditch somewhere between Mount Carmel and Cairo, Ill.," he continued.

He abandoned the car and began hitchhiking westward.

From Cairo I went across the bridge into Missouri and spent a night at Pine Bluff, Ark.," Irvin said. He heard news broadcasts that he had been seen in various places, including Joplin, Mo.

"I was going to Joplin, but when I heard that I went in the opposite direction—to Des Moines. Next I got a ride to Columbus, Neb., hitting there about 5 in the morning. A truck came along and took me to Scottsbluff and I spent a night in a filling station. The next lift was to Cozad."

He said he saw some state troopers not long after that and decided to walk to Route 6 in

Astonished host.

Nebraska.

"I got a ride into Colorado, but the fellow told me, after we had crossed the state line, that it was against the law to hitch rides in Colorado. So when we stopped, I got out and thumbed a ride back into Nebraska."

From there he went to Cheyenne, Wyo.; Green River, Wyo., and Salt Lake City.

"He's a Nice Guy."
At Salt Lake City, the fugitive caught a ride to Las Vegas. It was there he met Davis.

"I didn't mean any harm by stealing his cards," Irvin said. "He's a nice guy. After leaving his apartment, I went to a hotel and registered as William Logsdon."

"Last Tuesday night I broke into this house in suburban Los Angeles and took some jewelry. Then I hitchhiked up to Frisco."

After his conviction on charges of shooting Kerr in the head—in a robbery for a trivial sum—Irvin was described by Hugh P. O'Brien, Indiana corrections department director, as "a homicidal maniac whose violent nature is so well hidden that it seems fantastic."

Federal Bureau of Investigation Agent William Whelan said Irvin would be handed over to Indiana officers under an unlawful flight warrant.

a new mountain range in the Antarctic. Dr. Vivian Fuchs, leader of Britain's expedition, radioed yesterday that the range is 75 miles southeast of the British base, Shackleton, at Vahsel bay in the Weddell Sea. No details were given. Fuchs cabled that reconnaissance flights had spotted "other peaks reaching to 4500 feet on another range extending about 100 miles to the south."

CITY AND CHAMBER TEAMWORK CITED

Mayor Tucker Lists Benefits When Politics Is Put Aside.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 10.—St. Louis has shown what a city can accomplish when its municipal government and the Chamber of Commerce put aside political differences and work together for community betterment, Mayor Raymond R. Tucker of St. Louis said here today.

Addressing a meeting of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce Executives, he emphasized the need for abandonment of politics when it comes to civic welfare.

"Certain political elements of the community were shocked," he said, when former St. Louis Mayor Aloys P. Kaufmann, who is a Republican, in his capacity as president of the Chamber of Commerce, joined forces with Tucker, who is a Democrat, to tour Missouri in 1953 and campaign for earnings tax legislation needed to stabilize the city's finances.

"Despite the critical statements of those who could not approve of Democrats and Republicans working together at such a high level, the average citizen gave us his firm support," Tucker stated.

This is just one instance in which the Chamber of Commerce and the city government co-operated for the benefit of the community, he continued, pointing out that the same teamwork led to approval of the $1,500,000 bond issue for re-development of the Plaza area and passage of the $110,639,000 bond issue that will give St. Louis expressways, hospitals, parks, voting machines and other improvements.

"Both the city government and the Chamber of Commerce must be sufficiently unselfish to work effectively with labor unions, business and industry, as well as all civic, religious and political organizations," Mayor Tucker added. "They must be truly representative of the thoughts and ambitions of every segment of the community."

"We cannot afford to create animosities on the part of other groups if we are to succeed in our endeavors to develop the type of city which will best serve the interests of the public as a whole."

War Criminal Paroled.

BONN, Feb. 10 (AP)—The United States Army announced today that a 63-year-old German war criminal, Hermann Brueckner, has been paroled because of ill health. He was sentenced to life imprisonment for taking part in the murder of a captured American airman at Weimar in 1944.

CDA IS SEEKING DEFENSE AGAINST GUIDED MISSILES

CHICAGO, Feb. 10 (AP)—Civil Defense Administrator Val Peterson told a conference here yesterday that his agency is studying defensive steps against the guided missile.

Addressing a conference on "national survival in the nuclear age," sponsored by the Society of American Military Engineers with the co-operation of Government agencies and professional societies, Peterson said:

"We can foresee that the arrival of the intercontinental ballistic missile as a major factor in possible attack will greatly reduce warning time... but whether it will reduce it to a point that makes evacuation impossible is still for the future to decide—and I assure you we are not waiting for the future to arrive before taking all possibilities into account."

He said the change in offensive weapons and the means of delivering them in the last five years has been "almost fantastic." As a consequence, he added, any effort to set up a static unchanging civil defense plan would be to create "a kind of mental Maginot line that is sure to fall."

said, still are the best combination of methods to save the greatest number of lives.

2 IN SERIOUS CONDITION AFTER MASS SHOOTING

Ex-Policeman Killed 3 in Family, Wounded Self, Mother of Daughter-in-Law.

Former Detective Sgt. Henry G. Sieckhaus, who shot and killed his wife, son and daughter-in-law yesterday in his home at 5066 Lindenwood avenue, was in serious condition today at City Hospital from a self-inflicted bullet wound of the chest.

Mrs. Mary Dreher, 80 years old, mother of Sieckhaus' daughter-in-law, who also was shot by the retired police officer, was in the same hospital. Her condition was said to be serious from a bullet wound of the chest.

Those killed by the former officer were Mrs. Amelia Sieckhaus, 71, his wife; Cpl. Lester F. Sieckhaus, 47, his son and a member of the Police Department; and Lester's wife, Mrs. Marie Dreher Sieckhaus, 47.

Henry Sieckhaus, who, police were told, had been acting strangely in the last month or so, went from room to room in the neat brick and stone house shooting his family. Police believed he first shot his son as the younger man was dozing in a chair. His daughter-in-law was next; then her mother and finally his wife. He went downstairs to the first floor hallway near the kitchen to turn the pistol on himself, officers believed.

Mrs. Dreher, who lives at 3341 Bingham avenue, was visiting her daughter, because the younger Mrs. Sieckhaus was planning to entertain her mother's canasta club at a luncheon. When police found her sitting on the floor, leaning against a kitchen door sill, she told them: "Henry shot them all."

The children of Cpl. and Mrs. Lester Sieckhaus—Robert, 17, John, 16, and Mary Ann, 11—were at school at the time. They are being cared for by their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Meagher, 901 Holly street, St. Charles.

CHRYSLER LAYS OFF 5400, INDUSTRY TOTAL AT 40,000

DETROIT, Feb. 10. (AP)—Layoffs for another 5400 Chrysler workers were announced yesterday. This brought to 26,000 the number of Chrysler workers furloughed in recent production cutbacks and to approximately 40,000 the automotive industry total in the last couple of months.

Aside from the Chrysler layoffs, 4800 workers have been laid off by Ford, 4070 by General Motors and 5500 by Studebaker-Packard in the Detroit area. In addition Chrysler is operating its Detroit plants four days a week. The layoffs have been made to reduce the huge dealer inventories of new passenger cars.

In this week's assembly line production estimates, Automotive News reported both General Motors and Ford increased their output over last week while Chrysler declined nearly 3400 units.

NUCLEAR REACTOR EXPERT SAID TO HAVE QUIT SEC JOB

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10 (AP)—Walter H. Zinn, director of the Argonne National Laboratory, Lemont, Ill., has submitted his resignation following a policy disagreement, the Washington Post and Times Herald said last night.

The newspaper described Zinn as the Atomic Energy Commission's top nuclear reactor expert.

The story went on to say that Zinn, who had tried to resign several months ago, made his intentions emphatic with a telegram to the AEC Wednesday.

Heart of the disagreement concerns a commission decision to award the contract for perhaps the world's largest research particle accelerator to Midwest Universities Research Association, a non-profit group of 14 institutions. Zinn had wanted the AEC to give the contract to Argonne.

The AEC referred queries on Zinn's status to the University of Chicago, which as private contractor operates the Argonne Laboratory.

GLENNON HOSPITAL BOARD OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

Edward F. Judge, president and chairman of the board of Scullins Steel Corp., has been elected president of the board of directors of the Cardinal Glennon Memorial Hospital for Children, which will be dedicated April 15, it was announced today.

Other officers on the board of directors are John P. Butlers, vice president; Edward D. Jones, treasurer, and Bernard J. Huger, secretary. They were elected at a meeting of the new board at which Archbishop Joseph E. Ritter said the new hospital was made possible by the generosity of all St. Louisans.

The following also were elected to the board: Archbishop Ritter, Leo J. Wiek, Richard C. Muckerman, George W. S. Way Jr., Edward J. Griesedieck Jr., Joseph L. Werner, B. C. McDonald, Irvin, Dr. W. P. Glennon, C. F. Vatterott Jr., Walter Creely, N. J. George, C. F. Weilbacher, Louis Echelkamp, Magr. Lloyd Sullivan, George Capps Jr., Walter Boehmer, F. J. Guyol, E. J. Walsh Jr. and W. L. Behan.

40,000 CARE FOOD PARCELS GIVEN OUT DESPITE REDS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10 (UP)—The relief agency CARE secretly distributed 40,000 food packages behind the Iron Curtain in the last three years in "Operation Subterfuge," it was disclosed last night.

Murray Lincoln, CARE president, said disguised packages were to designated persons in East Germany. He said a variety of wrappings and old cord was used to help fool the Communists and avoid possible confiscation. He said 8000 food packages went to East German families in 1953, 12,000 in 1954, and 20,000 in 1955.

72 Mexican Reds Arrested. MEXICO CITY, Feb. 10 (AP)—Informed sources said yesterday Mexican secret police have arrested 72 Communists on charges they were plotting anti-United States demonstrations during an official visit here by the United States commander of the Atlantic Fleet, Adm. Jeraul Wright, who arrived Wednesday.

ROSS RIZLEY NAMED TO BE FEDERAL JUDGE

Former Congressman Now Chairman of Civil Aeronautics Board.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10 (AP)—President Eisenhower today nominated Ross Rizley, now chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board, to be United States District Judge for Western Oklahoma.

Rizley, a Republican member of the United States House of Representatives from 1941 to 1949, would succeed Judge Edgar S. Vaughn whose retirement Mr. Eisenhower approved today.

Vaughn, 83 years old, will step down on qualification of Rizley whose nomination is subject to Senate confirmation.

Rizley, 63, served as Post Office Department solicitor from March to December in 1953. He then was named Assistant Secretary of Agriculture and served in that capacity until 1954. He was named to the Civil Aeronautics Board in March 1955.

The White House said no successor to Rizley as a C.A.B. member has been picked. Vaughn asked Mr. Eisenhower to approve his retirement. He was named to the court in May 1952.

(Six months to pay, no down payment)2 ROB TAVERN
ON CHOUTEAU
OF ABOUT $600

Proprietor's Effort to Hide Money Fails —
Other Holdups in City, County.

A tavern at 1028 Chouteau avenue was robbed of about $600 today by two armed men who held up the proprietor, Miss Mary Tapella, and eight customers, she reported to police.

She said one robber entered by a side door and the other from the front. They wore false face masks and gloves, and carried automatic pistols.

Miss Tapella attempted to thwart the robbery by tossing a box containing the $600 under a pinball machine. But one of the men saw her do so and retrieved the money. The robbers, who did not take money from the customers, drove away in an automobile.

A man who said he was George William Kuntmeier, living in the 2800 block of Salena street, was captured following a chase on foot yesterday after he robbed a grocery of $396, police reported.

Mrs. Eric Strecker told police she saw Kuntmeier walk into her husband's grocery at 2901
South Thirteenth street about 4:30 p.m. He went to the rear, she said, and she followed.

"The man held one hand in his coat pocket and it looked to me like he had a gun," Mrs.
Strecker said. "He said it was a holdup. He made me walk to the cash register, open it and give him the money."

Kuntmeier fled from the store and Mrs. Strecker called to her husband. Strecker, wearing his butcher apron, gave chase while his wife telephoned police.

Sees Man Being Chased.
Police Chauffeur William Ef-ken heard a radio report of the holdup as he drove away from the Lynch street police station.
He saw Kuntmeier being chased by Strecker at Lemp avenue and Pestalozzi street, and placed Kuntmeier under arrest.

"I am the man who played the joke on the grocer," Kuntmeier told Efken. Kuntmeier, who was carrying a pipe in his coat pocket, turned over the $396 to police and was booked suspected of robbery. He is an unemployed carpenter.

Kenneth Tate, 3436A Pennsylvania avenue, a grocery clerk, frustrated two men who attempted to hold up his store at 3701 Minnesota avenue yesterday, he reported to police.

Closes Cash Drawer.

Tate said one of the robbers stood at the front door while the other, brandishing a revolver, walked over to the checkout counter. As the man said it was a holdup, Tate turned his back and leaned against the open cash register drawer, closing it.

The robber, saying "I mean it," attempted to reopen the drawer and struck Tate in the face. He and his companion then ran outside and drove away in a light-colored Mercury sedan.

A few minutes later two men of the same description walked into a drug store at 2901 Virginia avenue. One pointed a revolver at Fred Moeller, proprietor, while the other took a total of $40 from two cash registers and $2 from Moeller's pocket, the drugist said. They fled in a Mercury.

Glyn McGary, a cook, said a man wearing a handkerchief over his face, walked into the rear of Hogan's Grill at 1122 Union boulevard last night and pointed a revolver at him.

The robber did not utter a word, McGary said, but indicated with his revolver that he wanted McGary to open a cash register and a cigar box. The man took $125 from the two receptacles and fled.

Abraham Nord, 2631 Bernard street, reported he was walking at Cardinal and Laclede avenues early today when two men riding in an automobile stopped and robbed him of $116 and a watch. Nord, a retired railroad worker, is a Negro as were the robbers.

Filling Station Robbery.
Lynn Shelton, attendant at a filling station at Lindbergh boulevard and Gravois road, St.
Louis county, reported to county police it was robbed of about $100 early today by a shabbily dressed man. The man, who was on foot, held one hand in his coat pocket as though armed, Shelton said.

Police early today answered a call that a prowler had broken into a grocery at 1734 Pendleton avenue. They found a man inside who said he was Donald Searcy, 20 years old, living in the 2500 block of Whittier street. Searcy, a Negro, denied he was a burglar, but was booked suspected of burglary.

Ralph Webb, attendant at a filling station at 7427 Canterbury avenue, Maplewood, reported he was slugged and robbed of $335 by an armed man who walked into the station last night.

The man hit Webb with his revolver, Webb said, after obtaining $45 from a cash register. At the robber's order, Webb then opened a safe and gave him the rest of the money.

WASHINGTON U. STUDENT
DEATH HELD TO BE SUICIDE

A coroner's verdict of suicide was returned today at Clayton in the death of Roger T. Beth, a graduate student at Washington University, whose body was found yesterday in his room at 7273 Creveling drive, University City.

Police said a container bearing a poison label was beside his bed, but no notes were found. His father, a University of Kansas journalism professor, said his son indicated in a recent letter he was having trouble with his studies.

Beth, 26-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer F. Beth of Lawrence, Kan., majored in chemistry at the University of Kansas, was elected to Phi Beta Kappa and was named to the dean's honor roll for eight semesters. He served two years in the Army after graduating from Kansas.

MRS. RUFUS TERRAL GETS DIVORCE, SUPPORT FOR SON

Mrs. Rufus Terral, wife of a Post-Dispatch editorial writer, obtained a divorce today in Circuit Judge Fred E. Mueller's court at Clayton. She alleged general indignities.

She obtained custody of their child, James Louis Terral, 13 years old. Under a stipulated agreement, Terral will pay $75 a month for the boy's support until Sept. 1, when the amount will be increased to $100.

Terral also agreed to convey to Mrs. Terral all his interest in the family home at 7708 Horatio drive, Normandy, and to make monthly mortgage payments until she remarries or the son becomes of age. She sought no alimony. They were married April 20, 1937, at Cleveland, Tenn., and separated last May 13. Terral, who has been living at 5402 Cabanne avenue, did not contest the divorce.

DRIVE ON TO GET FULL $5,000,000 FOR RIVERFRONT

Committee to Seek Conference With Barkley, McKay and Park Service Chief.

A determined effort to have Congress appropriate the full $5,000,000 authorized last year for the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial on the St. Louis riverfront will be made by the executive committee of the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial Association, it was decided yesterday.

William W. Crowds, president of the association, said the executive committee, at a meeting, voted to ask Senator Alben M. Barkley (Dem.), Kentucky, to call an early meeting of the United States Territorial Expansion Memorial Commission. This was the group established by Congress to foster development of the riverfront project. Barkley is chairman.

A special committee was named by the executive committee of the local association to go to Washington for conferences with Barkley, with Secretary of the Interior Douglas McKay and with Conrad Wirth, director of national parks.

Blast at Park Service.
"The executive committee is convinced that the bottleneck in the National Park Service," Crowds said, "was one thing for the service to omit the project from its original budget because at that time it was not known that the federal budget would be balanced, a condition imposed by Congress on the appropriation of funds for the project."

"But we feel it is adding insult to injury when, in a supplemental appropriation request, the service asked only $150,000 for the memorial. After waiting more than 20 years for a start on developing the memorial, we feel we are entitled to something more than a token."

Committee Members.
Members of the special committee that will go to Washington are Crowds, Claude I. Bakewell, attorney and former Representative, as chairman, and Morton D. May, president of May Department Stores Co.

In 1935, citizens of St. Louis, relying on a promise the Federal Government would provide matching funds on a 4-to-1 basis, approved a bond issue of $7,500,000 as the city's share of the $30,000,000 proposal.

Although Congress failed to provide the federal funds, the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt made available $6,750,000 in emergency relief funds by an executive order. With this amount and $2,250,000 of city bond issue funds, the 40-block site was purchased and cleared of buildings.

COURT RULES NUNS MAY TEACH IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

FRANKFORT, Ky., Feb. 10 (AP)—The Court of Appeals ruled today Roman Catholic sisters can teach in Kentucky public schools so long as they do not inject religious views into classroom.

The ruling of the state's highest court on Kentucky's controversial church-state case came in a 6-to-1 decision. Judge Porter Sims, Bowling Green, wrote the majority opinion. Judge Astor Hog, Harlan, dissented.

The effect of the ruling upholds legality of 84 Catholic sisters teaching, while wearing denomination habits, in public schools of six counties south of Louisville.

The Rev. J. C. Rawlings, retired Methodist minister of Bradfordsville, had brought the suit Oct. 13, 1953, seeking to have the sisters' teaching declared unconstitutional and a violation of the principal of separation of church and state.

SECOND KIDNEY TRANSPLANT INVOLVING TWINS PERFORMED

BOSTON, Feb. 10 (AP)—Peter Bent Brigham Hospital announced yesterday that the second transplant kidney operation involving identical twins has been performed. The patients are 42-year-old Washington (D.C.) brothers.

The double operation was performed Monday by two teams of surgeons and physicians of the hospital staff and Harvard medical school. Louis Heilman, seriously ill with chronic pyelonephritis, received one of the healthy kidneys of his brother, Jesse.

The six-hour operation parallels the first ever performed—that on the then 23-year-old twins, Richard and Ronald Herick of Northboro, on Dec. 23, 1954. Richard had two diseased kidneys; one of Ronald's healthy ones was transferred to his body.

LODGE TO TOUR TECHNICAL AID PROJECTS IN LIBYA

The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch Special Division, Feb. 10 — Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., chief United States delegate to the United Nations, said yesterday he will leave next Friday on a brief tour of U.N. and United States technical assistance projects in Libya.

Libya, one of Africa's newest and largest independent nations, is a former Italian colony. It has received intensive technical help from the U.N. and the United States, and his latest received offers of aid from Russia.

Lodge has planned the trip for some time and there is no more significance to it "than meets the eye," a United States spokesman said.

BETTING EQUIPMENT SEIZED IN APARTMENT; TWO HELD

Two men were arrested late yesterday when members of the police gambling squad, armed with a search warrant, raided an apartment on the second floor at 1107A Park avenue, where they found betting tabs and other handbook equipment.

The men gave their names as Byron Hall and David K. Cissel, and said they lived in the apartment. While officers were there, Lt. Joseph Blocher answered the telephone several times and pretended to accept bets from customers. Both men were booked suspected of keeping a common gaming house.

CITY NEIGHBORHOOD WORK DRAWS PRAISE

Mayor Says St. Louis Program Is Attracting National Attention.

St. Louis is attracting national attention with its work in neighborhood conservation, Mayor Raymond R. Tucker told the West End Community Conference last night.

"We are looked upon as one of the nation's best examples of what the citizens themselves can do to protect and conserve their neighborhoods," he said in a talk at St. Rose School.

The American Council to Improve Our Neighborhoods (ACTION), working in conjunction with Life Magazine, has sent observers here to study what has been accomplished, and may use this city as an example, he pointed out, adding that the American Municipal Association and ACTION have tentatively selected St. Louis for the first of a series of regional workshops on neighborhood rehabilitation.

"The lessons which will be learned in St. Louis at that meeting, and the material to be gathered in tours of our neighborhoods, will be the basis for similar workshops throughout the nation," Tucker stated.

To encourage home owners to make repairs in the Cherokee and Hyde Park districts, the city is making public improvements in these neighborhoods, and will extend this program to other districts with funds from the 1955 bond issue. Meanwhile, neighborhood groups throughout the city are receiving the assistance of various city departments in preventing spread of blight.

The West End Community Conference was organized last year to preserve the 150-block area bounded by Delmar, Union and Page boulevards and Hodi-

WILBERT COFFIN HANGED FOR GASPES BUSH MURDER

MONTREAL, Feb. 10 (AP)—Wilbert Coffin, 43-year-old backwoods handyman, died on the gallows early today for the murder of a young Pennsylvania hunter.

Maintaining his innocence to the last, Coffin went silently to his death after authorities turned down his last appeal.

He was convicted of killing Richard Lindsey, 17 years old, of Hollidaysburg, Pa. The be-gunned bodies of young Lindsey, his father, Eugene Lindsey, 47, and Frederick Claar, 20, were found in the wild Gaspe bush country of Quebec in 1953. The prosecution charged that Coffin ambushed the three hunters and stole more than $600.

GIBBONS REQUESTS INQUIRY ON NLRB

Asks Congress to Look Into Board's Role in Coca-Cola Strike Here.

A Congressional investigation of the role of the National Labor Relations Board in the dispute between the Coca-Cola Bottling Co. of St. Louis and Teamsters Local 688 was requested today by Harold J. Gibbons, secretary-treasurer of the union.

In letters to members of Congress, Gibbons charged the NLRB with five months' delay in granting 200 Coca-Cola drivers an election to determine their bargaining agent. The drivers have been on strike since Nov. 9, seeking recognition of Local 688 as their representative.

"We did that reasons for the board's attitude are matters of concern to Congress and merit investigation," Gibbons stated. "It is established procedure for the NLRB to take into consideration a company's record in labor relations." In 1951 the NLRB found this same company guilty of unfair labor practices in fighting its employees' efforts to organize.

"In hearings last year the board heard evidence of the firm's bad faith in refusing to co-operate in the proceedings and in using dilatory tactics. Despite this record and the strong wishes of the employees involved, the NLRB filed suit in federal court against the union. An NLRB attorney from Washington tried the case. It is difficult not to conclude that the NLRB is exercising bias against the wishes of the employees and in favor of the company."

The injunction sought by the NLRB to halt picketing by the union was denied by United States District Judge George H. Moore. The ruling held that the board failed to establish "reasonable cause" to believe that the union was engaging in unfair labor practices under the Taft-Hartley Act.

Officials of the NLRB at Washington have promised an early ruling on a petition of Local 688 seeking recognition of the local as representative of the Coca-Cola drivers. The board refused to comment on the charge it had denied the drivers an election.

The union requested for Congressional action in the dispute is set forth in full page newspaper advertisements appearing today.

INVALID TAUGHT AT HOME GETS HIGH SCHOOL DIPLOMA

Miss Marjorie Cohen, a 23-year-old invalid, received her diploma yesterday from Clayton High School in a ceremony at her home, 8200 Gannon avenue, University City. She was a sophomore at Clayton High School when paralyzed in an automobile accident in 1948. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Cohen, the young woman received mostly "A's" in her high school work, although unable to take written examinations. She answered questions orally and assignments were read to her.

Since 1950 a group of home teachers visited her daily to supervise lessons. These teachers included Miss Melita Denny, Mrs. Ralph Captain, Mrs. Dingle Martz and Mrs. Rosalind Klein.

BRITISH USE GAS, BATONS AGAINST CYPRIOT GIRLS
NICOSIA, Cyprus, Feb. 10 (AP)—British troops used tear gas and batons against rioting schoolgirls at Limassol today. The girls began stoning the soldiers when they arrived at a local school to pull down a Greek flag raised in defiance of government orders. Then they joined schoolboys in a march through the town shouting Enosis (union with Greece) slogans.

Some of the demonstrators were injured and number arrested before order was restored.

SAAR AND FRANCE PREPARE FOR TALK ON ECONOMIC TIES

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Radio PARIS, Feb. 10—Hubert Ney, new Premier of the Saar, saw French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau here yesterday to establish, as he said afterward, "a peaceful, useful and conciliatory atmosphere" for talks expected to bring a political union of the Saar with West Germany and economic links for it with France.

The French government, following the talks, said through Deputy Foreign Minister Maurice Faure: "The Saar must guard against any anti-European or anti-French move."

Settlement of the future of the Saar must be included as a priority item in a general accord between France and West Germany on economic and political matters at talks that will begin in Paris Feb. 20.

Ney said the Saar people want unity in Europe, and that his government was asking both the French and the West Germans to permit Saar experts to be consulted in the forthcoming negotiations.

Robert D. Rother Jr., 6 years old, of 1033 Charleville drive, Rock Hill, is in St. Louis County Hospital with a fractured skull and back bruises, suffered yesterday when he was hit by an automobile on Manchester road at Rock Hill road. The accident occurred across the street from the Schall School, where he was on the way to attend kindergarten.

The child started across Manchester from the north side, apparently thinking a policeman's whistle directed at a pupil crossing Rock Hill was intended for him, police said. He was struck by a west-bound vehicle driven by Thomas Lee Mendez, 5442 Chipmunk street. Automatic signals on the heavily traveled thoroughfare were set for east-west traffic, police said.

Inside Story of How 'New Look' Cuts in Army Were Worked Out

Wilson Said to Have Ignored Reservations
Ridgway Set in Agreeing Conditionally to Reductions in Force.

By ANTHONY LEVIERO
 The New York Times News Service.
 (Copyright, 1956, by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10 — Details of the origin of the "new look" defense program, basis of the conflict between Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway and the Eisenhower Administration, came to light yesterday.

The "new look" of the fall of 1953 has scaled down Army manpower from 1,533,815 men (20 divisions, 18 regimental combat teams and 114 anti-aircraft battalions of that time) to 1,034,000 men (19 divisions, 10 regimental combat teams and 143 anti-aircraft battalions), set by President Eisenhower as the goal for next June 30.

Meanwhile, it was learned that present Army leaders estimate the country should have 1,300,000 to 1,500,000 men organized into 27 or 28 divisions to provide the proper margin of safety to meet this country's world-wide commitments.

Heard in Secret.

Gen. Ridgway, who retired as Army Chief of Staff last June, appeared Wednesday in a secret session of the House Appropriations subcommittee on the Defense Department. How far he went in discussing past and present defense policy was not learned. Authoritative sources revealed, however, the inside story of what took place in the fall of 1953 when the Eisenhower Administration revamped defense policy.

The story illuminates Gen. Ridgway's contention that President Eisenhower was inaccurate in his 1954 State of the Union message in saying his defense program for fiscal 1955 had the unanimous recommendation of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Ridgway said in a recent magazine article he "most emphatically" had not concurred. Then on Jan. 19 the President referred to the Pentagon the question of the accuracy of his statement. A spokesman there then said Charles E. Wilson, the Secretary of Defense, and Adm. Arthur W. Radford, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, had ordered a search of the records. It was indicated an explanation would be made in a few days. Yesterday, more than three weeks later, the same spokesman said no statement would be forthcoming.

Information now available reflects Ridgway's feeling that Wilson had wrongly given President Eisenhower the impression of unanimity among the four members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Long-Pull Program.

The sources familiar with the "inside" situation at the time of the "new look" related it this way:

The Administration decided to review military policy and develop a strong, stable program that would assure security for a long period of years of word tension. This basic concept received the hearty endorsement of leaders of all three services.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff were divided on the strengths and roles of each service under the shrinking budgets that followed the truce in Korea. The heads of the Army, Navy and Air Force naturally sought to maintain their services at the level they deemed necessary.

Late in 1953 Wilson directed a group headed by Lt. Gen. Frank P. Everest of the Air Force, then director of the three service joint staffs, to the Joint Chiefs of Staff, to study the proposed reorganization. The group was directed to provide an estimate of what the strength and composition of the armed forces should be three years later, or fiscal 1957, which begins July 1, 1956. The forces were to be based on a manpower ceiling of about 3,000,000 men, imposed by the Defense Department, and a defense budget of approximately $34 billion dollars imposed by the Treasury Department.

Conditional Acceptance.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff reluctantly accepted the budgetary and manpower limitations, but only if they were subject to reservations as to world conditions in 1957, including stable settlements in Korea and Indochina and the rearming of Japan and the West German Republic.

Meanwhile the White House, as is customary, was collecting basic material from the various departments for inclusion in the State of the Union Message. The agreement of the Joint Chiefs in principle on the manpower and budgetary ceilings was incorporated in the working draft of the message.

The basic new strategy that came out of the "new look" was reliance on "massive retaliation" with air atomic power. The concept was severely criticized both within the United States and abroad and the strategy has been revised to include "measured retaliation" with small, tactical atomic weapons.

What surprised Ridgway was Wilson's immediate application of the "new look" in terms of manpower reductions in the Army and Navy, although the reservations agreed to were still alive—United States forces were still tied down in Korea, Indochina was far from settled, and Japanese and German defense forces are still negligible.

Army's Objection.

More than one service pointed out risks in reducing forces based on assumptions two or three years in the future, and the Army's warnings were put most forcefully. The Defense Department insisted on the reductions that were continued through the fiscal 1955, 1956 and 1957 budgets.

Ridgway felt he had been let down by the acceleration of the reductions and the result was he made strong criticisms of national policy in his final report as chief of Staff, and in his recent article in the Saturday Evening Post in which he said the three budgets were "directed verdicts" against the Army. He asserted in the article that the defense standards were fixed by the political requirements of the "business men's administration."

Ridgway's successor is reported to be deeply concerned also about what he deems to be the peril to the United States by the neglect of surface forces and the emphasis of nuclear air power. Army leaders feel its forces need greater mobility than the Air Force now provides it. Also there is a widespread feeling that the untold strength of the Army is further aggravated by the weakness of the reserve program, which the generals feel will never provide trained and ready reserves unless Congress introduces compulsory features into the six-month training program.

ROME, BONN SAY PEACE RESTS ON UNITED GERMANY

The New York Times News Service.
 (Copyright, 1956, by The New York Times Co.)

BONN, Feb. 10 — The Italian and German governments asserted yesterday in a joint communique that reunification of Germany on the basis of free elections is an "indispensable condition for a relaxation of tension and lasting peace in the world."

The communique was issued at the conclusion of a four-day formal visit to Bonn by Italian Premier Antonio Segni, notable for Italian expressions of deep concern with the partition problem.

Even in the days of close cooperation between Chancellor Adenauer and the late Premier Alcide de Gasperi, the Italian government did not endorse Bonn's position on reunification with the emphasis evident in the communique.

The communique stated that the two governments had

AFL-CIO POLICY PUTS CITIZENSHIP ABOVE UNIONISM

Principle Stressed in Community Service Program Adopted by Executive Council.

By SPENCER R. McCULLOCH
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 10.—The AFL-CIO puts citizenship above unionism as a basic policy of the new 15,000,000-member labor movement. This principle was stressed yesterday in a program calling for community service adopted unanimously by that organization's executive council.

Reflecting modern general acceptance of labor, George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, said that there is virtually no class conflict in the United States today.

"This country has a classless society to a greater extent than any other nation," Meany said. "In contrast with Russia which has a strictly class society."

"In this country we do not look on the trade unionist as belonging to a class apart. To be a good union member you must first be a good citizen."

Meany announced adoption of a $5000 annual award to be known as the Murray-Green award, in remembrance of the late Philip Murray, former CIO head, and the late William Green, long time president of the AFL. It will be given in recognition of an outstanding civic contribution by an individual or organization.

In adopting precepts for labor's role in community affairs the council followed recommendations of a committee headed by Joseph A. Beirne, president of the AFL-CIO Communications Workers.

Health and Welfare Needs.
The policy-making program included a declaration that the Government has basic responsibility for meeting the broad health and welfare needs of the people.

Other points were:
"The union member is first and foremost a citizen of his community."

"The union member must co-operate with his fellow-citizens in making his community a good place in which to live, to work, to raise children."

"Generally speaking, unions have elected to support and participate in existing community social service agencies rather than to establish direct social services of their own. To the degree that the personnel and facilities of social agencies serve all the people, they serve the men and women of organized labor."

"It is the responsibility of organized labor to co-operate with other community groups in improving the quantity and quality of social services, while at the same time educating union members about available health and welfare services and how to use them."

"Prevention of social problems is preferred to the best treatment of social ills."

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Charles R. Sligh Jr., chairman of the National Association of Manufacturers executive committee, agreed today to meet with George Meany, head of the AFL-CIO, in Washington Feb. 23 for a "friendly private" meeting. A telegram to Meany, who is in Miami Beach, Sligh is in Boca Raton for a meeting of the board of directors of the N.A.M., only 38 miles from Meany. The telegram was disclosed in New York by N.A.M. headquarters.

Meany and Sligh met in December when they addressed a luncheon session at the N.A.M.'s annual meeting on labor-management relations. They got into an argument after the luncheon on the so-called right-to-work laws and Meany told Sligh that labor would form a third political party if "disenfranchised" by the N.A.M.

Meany suggested earlier this week that he and Sligh get together this weekend to discuss labor-management problems. Sligh, in his telegram, said he was unable to arrange a meeting this weekend but would be in Washington on Feb. 23 and looked forward to seeing Meany at that time. Meany had offered to hold the entire week of Feb. 20 open for such a meeting.

STATE HOSPITAL 40-HOUR WEEK URGED BY UNION

Changes in Merit System Asked to Assure Uniform 5-Day Period for All Employees.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 10—Revision of state personnel merit system regulations to insure a uniform five-day, 40-hour working week for all employees of state hospitals and penal institutions, was urged yesterday in a hearing before the State Personnel Advisory Board.

The board took no action on the proposals, submitted by Joseph L. Ames of St. Louis, representing the AFL-CIA Missouri State Council No. 29, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

Chairman Olin L. Bell of Bowling Green announced the board would not act on any new regulations, or recommend any changes in the merit system law, without a full public hearing on the proposals.

The proposed changes, if adopted, would affect about 4200 employees in the seven hospitals under the State Division of Mental Diseases, the State Penitentiary and Alago Intermediate reformatory, and employees of the Federal Soldiers' Home in St. James and the St. Louis office of the State Division of Welfare.

About 7800 of the more than 20,000 state employees are subject to the merit system of employment.

Ames told the board many of the hospital and penal employees now were working 44 to 48 hours a week, and urged all be placed on a 40-hour, five-day-a-week basis.

He recommended changes in the so-called "step increases" in pay, so that the rules would apply alike to all employees and eliminate existing discriminations.

Revision of vacation and sick leave regulations, and service ratings, to apply uniformly to all employees, also was proposed by Ames. He suggested all employees receive three-week vacations, and up to three weeks sick leave if necessary.

EX-HEADWAITER
PLEADS GUILTY OF TAX EVASION

NEW YORK, Feb. 10 (AP)—Hans Paul, former headwaiter at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, pleaded guilty yesterday to a charge of evading income taxes on tips. He faces a maximum of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Paul, 63 years old, deeply tanned from a recent Florida vacation, tugged nervously at his eyeglasses as he admitted guilt to one of four counts in an indictment.

That count alleged he owed $8622 on 1951 taxes. The Government had claimed he reported income of $16,196 but that he really made $29,220.

The other counts, to which Paul pleaded not guilty, covered the other years from 1949 through 1952, when he retired. All told, it was charged, he reported income of $55,607, when it really was $122,677, and $36,196 was owed in taxes on the $87,070 difference. Paul's base pay at the Waldorf had been $3000 a year. To this, Jaffe said, was added a share of the $1,000,000 the hotel banquet department collected annually for its waiters on the basis of 15 per cent of the gross food and beverage bill.

TWO NAMED IN WARRANT ON NARCOTICS CHARGE

A warrant charging Nathaniel J. Harris, an ex-convict, and Clarence Robinson of the 3800 block of Finney avenue with illegal purchase of 224 grains of heroin was issued yesterday by United States Commissioner Edwin J. Bean.

Police, who arrested Harris Wednesday night, said he was identified as one of four persons who fled from a room at 4567 McMillan avenue Tuesday when officers entered on a raid. The occupants, two men and two women, had been placing powdered heroin in capsules.

Robinson was arrested after the raid as he was preparing to enter his automobile, parked near the scene of the raid. He and Harris, who police said is a brother of Ezra Harris, policy game operator, are Negroes. A woman, also named in the warrant, was being sought by authorities.

3000 NICKELS, 1500 PENNIES STOLEN FROM RESTAURANT

East St. Louis police today were looking for a burglar who took 3000 nickels and 1500 pennies from Bea's Cafe, 403 Collinsville avenue.

Mrs. Beatrice Tate, operator of the cafe, told police the coins — $150 in nickels and $15 in pennies — were missing this morning when she opened for business.

Police believe a burglar entered by removing an exhaust fan. In addition to the coins, which were in paper rolls, an undetermined amount of money was taken from a pinball machine.

Joined Twins Die.

HANOVER, N.H., Feb. 10 (AP)—Joined twin girls born a month ago with a common heart and liver are dead. One died yesterday and the other shortly before midnight after doctors performed an 8-hour operation at Mary Hitchcock Hospital to sever the survivor from her dead sister. The twins were daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Leopold Marcotte of Lyman, New Hampshire.

The TRUMAN MEMOIRS

Mr. Truman Recounts the Events Leading to His Decision to Relieve Gen. MacArthur as Far East Commander.

By HARRY S. TRUMAN
Thirty-third President of the United States.
EIGHTEENTH ARTICLE.

THROUGHOUT October the campaign in Korea made excellent progress. Pyongyang, the North Korean capital, was taken on October 19th, and day after day MacArthur's forces were on the march.

While MacArthur's forces were moving north without too much opposition, there was considerable speculation about the likelihood of the Chinese Communists taking some action in North Korea. On October 20th the CIA delivered a memorandum to me which said that they had reports that the Chinese Communists would move in far enough to safeguard the Suifu electric plant and other installations along the Yalu River which provided them with power. The State Department's reaction to this report was to suggest that General MacArthur issue a statement to the United Nations that he did not intend to interfere with the operations of the Suifu and other power plants. General MacArthur felt, however, that he did not wish his hands tied in such a manner, and the statement was therefore not issued.

It is very doubtful that it would have made any difference anyhow. As we were later to learn, the Chinese Communists had already started their move into North Korea, although it was not until October 31st that we gained evidence that they were in the battle area and actually fighting against the United Nations forces.

The first report came from the headquarters of the X Corps, in the Wonsan sector of North Korea. Prisoners captured on October 26th and later days had been identified as Chinese and, on interrogation, proved to be members of organized Chinese units. The prisoners stated that their units had crossed the Yalu River on October 16th, only one day after General MacArthur had assured me on Wake Island that if any Chinese were to enter Korea, they would face certain disaster, but that he did not expect them to try anything that foolish. I asked the Joint Chiefs of Staff to obtain an up-to-date estimate of the situation from General MacArthur.

Advice Against 'Hasty Conclusions.'

This was MacArthur's answer received on November 4th: "It is impossible at this time to authoritatively appraise the actualities of Chinese Communist intervention in North Korea. Various possibilities exist based upon the battle intelligence coming in from the front:

"First, that the Chinese Communist Government proposes to intervene with its full potential military forces, openly proclaiming such course at what it might determine as an appropriate time; second, that it will covertly render military assistance, but will, so far as possible, conceal the fact for diplomatic reasons; third, that it is permitting and abetting a flow of more or less voluntary personnel across the border to strengthen and assist the North Korean remnants in their struggle to retain a nominal foothold in Korea; fourth, that such intervention, as exists, has been in the belief that no UN forces would be committed in the extreme northern reaches of Korea except those of South Korea. A realization that such forces were insufficient for the purpose may well have furnished the concept of salvaging something from the wreckage.

"The first contingency would represent a momentous decision of the gravest international importance. While it is a distinct possibility, and many foreign experts predict such action, there are many fundamental logical reasons against it and sufficient evidence has not yet come to hand to warrant its immediate acceptance.

"The last three contingencies or a combination thereof, seem to be most likely condition at the present moment.

"I recommend against hasty conclusions which might be premature and believe that a final appraisal should await a more complete accumulation of military facts."

Thus General MacArthur warned against any hasty action and, specifically, discounted the possibility that the intervention of the Chinese Communists was a "new war." It came as something of a shock, therefore, when, within two days he began to sound the alarm.

MacArthur Orders Yalu Bridge Bombed.

I was in Kansas City on November 6th; it was the day before election, and as usual I planned to cast my ballot in Independence. That morning I received an urgent call from Dean Acheson. The Secretary of State was calling from a conference in Washington with the Under Secretary of Defense, Robert Lovett, and the matter before them was of such importance that they felt an immediate decision was necessary.

MacArthur had ordered a bombing mission to take out the bridge across the Yalu River from Sinuiju (Korea) to Antung (Manchuria). Ninety B-29's were scheduled to take off at one o'clock Washington time to take part in this mission. Lovett had told Acheson that from an operational standpoint he doubted whether the results to be achieved would be important enough to outweigh the danger of bombing Antung or other points on the Manchurian side of the river.

Acheson went on to say that Lovett and he had agreed that this air action ought to be postponed until we had more facts about the situation there. Lovett then called Marshall, who agreed that the attack was unwise unless there was some mass movement across the river which threatened the security of our troops.

I told Acheson that I would approve this bombing mission only if there was an immediate and serious threat to the security of our troops. Acheson said that nothing had been heard from MacArthur since his last report. I told Acheson that we would have to find out why MacArthur suddenly found this action necessary.

In the message that was sent, MacArthur was advised that consideration was urgently being given to the Korean situation at the governmental level. He was informed that there was a commitment not to take action affecting Manchuria without consultation with the British, and that until further orders all bombing of targets within five miles of the Manchurian border should be postponed. Meanwhile, he should forward his estimate of the situation and his reasons for ordering the bombing of the Yalu River bridges.

General Protests, Is Told to Go Ahead.

This was MacArthur's reply:

"Men and material in large force are pouring across all bridges over the Yalu from Manchuria. This movement not only jeopardizes but threatens the ultimate destruction of the forces under my command. . . . The only way to stop this reinforcement of the enemy is the destruction of these bridges and the subjection of all installations in the north area supporting the enemy advance to the maximum of our air destruction. Every hour that this is postponed will be paid for dearly in American and other United Nations blood. . . . Under the gravest protest that I can make, I am suspending this strike and carrying out your instructions. . . ."

'Home by Christmas?'

GEN. MACARTHUR

Visiting Ninth Corps Headquarters in Korea in November, 1950, he was reported to have announced that the drive would get the soldiers "home by Christmas." The statement was officially denied, but Mr. Truman notes that there was no doubt that he had said it.

I cannot overemphasize the disastrous effect, both physical and psychological, that will result from the restrictions which you are imposing. I trust that the matter be immediately brought to the attention of the President as I believe your instructions may well result in a calamity of major proportion for which I cannot accept the responsibility without his personal and direct understanding of the situation. Time is so essential that I request immediate reconsideration of your decision pending which complete compliance will of course be given to your order."

General Bradley read this message to me over the phone. Since General MacArthur was on the scene and felt so strongly that this was of unusual urgency, I told Bradley to give him the "go ahead."

This was the message sent MacArthur by the Joint Chiefs: "You are authorized to go ahead with your planned bombing in Korea near the frontier including targets at Sinuiju and Korean end of Yalu bridges provided that at time of receipt of this message you still find such action essential to safety of your forces. The above does not authorize the bombing of any dams or power plants on the Yalu River.

"Because of necessity for maintaining optimum position with United Nations policy and directives and because it is vital in the national interests of the U. S. to localize the fighting in Korea it is important that extreme care be taken to avoid violation Manchurian territory and airspace and to report promptly hostile action from Manchuria.

"It is essential that we be kept informed of important developments. . . ."

FLEESON Civil Rights Real Problem For Stevenson

He Is Forced to Ponder if He Expressed Self Adequately.

By DORIS FLEESON
SAN DIEGO, Calif.

IN his first moments of seclusion since he entered California 10 days ago, Adlai Stevenson turned his full attention to the civil rights issue.

Stevenson is told that he has failed to satisfy the legitimate hunger of the Negro people for federal guarantees against such violence as is being practiced against a Negro woman student at the University of Alabama. He is unhappy about it—his managers are unhappy.

The former Illinois Governor is willing to match his "gut reaction" against violence with any man's. That he has failed adequately to express it he is being forced to ponder. The national press for one thing is asking for transcripts of his remarks.

They are stronger and more detailed than those of President Eisenhower. Indeed, the President's remarks are barely noted out here, nor is it mentioned that he will shortly spend a valuable day at the Georgia estate of his Treasury Secretary, George Humphrey, next door to Alabama. Yet the President has the national office and the power to act. The Stevenson staff points this out.

Issue for Democrats. The fact remains that civil rights is an emotional, racial issue of burning importance to the party whose nomination for President Stevenson seeks. To any Republican it is hardly a political problem at all and only a segment of the party feels deep emotion about it.

Stevenson had the further misfortune that the Alabama story broke coincidentally with his foray into the vital primary in this state where civil rights is an important issue. Also his hand was forced by his rival, Senator Kefauver.

The feeling in the Stevenson camp is that he was inadequately briefed by his local handlers both on this and many other aspects of his campaign. He clearly needs an advance man with better political antenna than amiable Hy Raskin, assistant to his campaign manager, James Finnegan. Because Stevenson has all the party big wheels on his side, details and

ALSO Evidence of Soviet Lead in Developing Missiles Set Off Gardner Resignation

Man Who Saved U.S. Program From Extinction Passed Over as 'Czar.'

By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP
WASHINGTON.

THE reasons for the resignation of Assistant Secretary the Air Force Trevor Gardner are like the layers of an onion. The outside layers involve matters of personality and organization, as well as getting old Pentagon rivalries. But when you peel down to the heart of the onion, you find a nugget of fact which involves the very survival of the United States.

The real turning point in the Gardner story came several months ago, when almost certain knowledge became available to the American government that the Soviets had produced missiles with ranges up to 1500 miles. Gardner was himself responsible for the successful American effort to find out where the Soviets really stand in the missile race and this grim knowledge, in turn, led directly to his resignation. Before the Soviet success was known, the American long-range missile program had been very much a one-man show. When Gardner came on the scene in the spring of 1953, as Air Force research and development chief, the intercontinental missile, or ICBM, program had been a limping, low-priority affair.

Changed Wilson's Mind. It was wholly in the research stage, and Secretary of Defense Charles Wilson, who then tended to regard all research as wasteful nonsense, was getting ready to cut it out entirely. But Gardner, a man of strong views, protested loudly. Wilson at length agreed to submit the whole matter to a high-level committee of scientists, headed by Dr. John von Neumann. The Von Neumann committee in turn recommended not only against cancellation of the project, but in favor of giving it the highest priority.

Wilson thereupon put Gardner in charge of the program. In this capacity the strong-willed Gardner made numerous enemies in the Pentagon and the aircraft industry. He also alienated the implacable Lewis Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, when he publicly supported Dr. Robert Oppenheimer for his contribution to national security. Gardner's large array of enemies undoubtedly explains in part the charge of "conflict of interest" which has been brought against him.

While making his collection of enemies Gardner spurred important break-throughs in the long-range missile field. Then came the knowledge of the Soviet success in producing the intermediate 1500-mile missile, known as the IRBM. This grim evidence that the Soviets were far ahead of this country in the missile field simply could not be disregarded.

Committees and Committees. The Pentagon reaction took two forms. First a whole cat's cradle of missile committees was formed. There is a "top level co-ordinating committee" headed by Under Secretary of Defense Reuben Robertson, another committee under Secretary of the Air Force Donald Quarles, an Army-Navy co-ordinating committee, and so on.

Having run his own show, Gardner now had to report to this array of committees, as did others working in the long-range missile field.

The result was the maximum of organizational confusion. At the same time, Wilson approved a decision to undertake a "crash program" to produce an IRBM, and thus match the Soviet success.

Because the Army had produced the much publicized Redstone missile—actually little more than an improved version of the German V2—the Army was assigned the IRBM project. The Air Force automatically resisted the Army's claim. So did Gardner, but not on the usual strictly bureaucratic grounds. Gardner argued that the Opposed Diverting Funds From Long-Range to Intermediate Rockets.

IRBM, while strategically of enormous value to the Soviet Union, would have far less value to the United States. He conceded that it was probably a mistake not to have tried for the intermediate missile in the first place. But now, he argued, the only way to trump the Kremlin's ace was to be first in the field with the true ultimate weapon, the 5000-mile intercontinental missile. A crash program for the IRBM would only cut into the limited technical manpower and resources available for the ICBM, to which every available man and dollar ought now to be devoted.

But Gardner lost this fight, and partly as a result, his recommended budget for long-range missile and other Air Force research and development work was on the order of $200,000,000. At the same time, when Wilson at length decided to appoint a "czar" to make some sense out of the organizational cat's cradle, Gardner was passed over as "too controversial."

Altogether, the man who almost single-handedly saved the American long-range missile program from total extinction may be said to have been poorly rewarded. But such personal considerations aside, it is worth pondering the somber nugget of fact which is found at the heart of the Gardner story—the fact that the Soviet Union is unquestionably ahead of the United States in the life-and-death missile race, in the area where it really matters.

SOVIET ENVOY TO ETHIOPIA DENIED AMBASSADOR STATUS

ADDIS ABABA, Feb. 10 (AP)—The Soviet Union has sent Boris Ivanovitch Karavayev as its new minister to the court of Emperor Haile Selassie with hopes that he would become ambassador.

Ethiopia is reported to be refusing, however, to raise the Soviet legation to the embassy level enjoyed by envoys of the other great powers. An embassy would raise possibilities of increasing Soviet prestige and precedence and of enlarging the staff.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight for the rights of all people, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Mrs. Walsh's 'Expenses'

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

As a life-long Democrat who has voted the national, state and city ticket for many years, I was quite taken aback by the testimony of State Representative Jennie Spindler Walsh that it is "common practice" to accept money for personal expenses while performing the duties of an elected public official.

From Mrs. Walsh's testimony apparently State Representative Green, in keeping with the "common practice," accepted $600 for personal expenses and therefore did no wrong.

It is true a State Representative has a large amount of personal expenses; a three-hour automobile ride to Jefferson City, and an appearance before the Parole Board, a few telephone calls, lunch and a three-hour ride back to St. Louis. Would $600 cover these personal expenses?

Since it possibly isn't as much of a chore to intercede for an old-age pensioner, could it be the cost of "personal expenses" is $300? Then again, the cost of personal expenses entailed in introducing a bill would be much greater. Would that be probably $800?

In light of the testimony given by State Representative Jennie Walsh, anything could be possible. Since Mrs. Walsh and her colleagues have been investigating the police, would it now be proper for the police to investigate the State Representatives?

LAWRENCE BALLINGALL.

Competent and Complete

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

As noteworthy as the fine spirit of co-operation of city officials and representatives in the "Our Town" meetings last week, was the interesting and full coverage in the Post-Dispatch.

It is thanks to the very competent reporting that not only the hardy citizens who braved the elements—thousands of other St. Louisans can better understand how our city functions, what its problems are, and the challenges to a better future that we must meet in considering charter laws for our city in the year ahead.

Meddling Not Necessary

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The South can handle its own affairs without the meddling of the Post-Dispatch, which is adept at distorted and misleading editorial compositions.

You never miss a chance to disgrace yourself, insult the people, and use every effort to create hate and trouble.

A Small Farmer's Views

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The Government should not support commodity prices on more than 100 acres so that if you had a thousand acres or 100 you would receive the same amount of money from the Government. This is equality and distributes more money to more people who in turn would spend more.

Small farming is not a business; it is labor and the Government should support farm labor's income as much as the industrial worker's.

A 100-acre price support would give the average farmer an income of $60 to $80 a week, which is equivalent to the industrial worker's wages. Those with less than 100 acres would receive a percentage of the 100-acre support or exactly the amount of acres that they are farming.

Big farming is big business. We don't guarantee the average business a profit. Why should we guarantee the big farmer a profit with the taxpayers' money? SMALL FARMER.

Marissa, Ill.

Moving Off Dead Center

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

It seems to me that the recent exchange of notes between Bulgin and Eisenhower points up the dead center situation that has characterized international relations for some time.

That the reciprocal avowal of the need for greater trust between nations does little to achieve that trust; that talks leading to the creation of a third party of trust (perhaps the U.N., given a code to enforce and power to enforce it) can be started without adversely affecting any party to such talks;

That if the United States first proposes such talks our position in the world will be mightily enhanced.

GEORGE ROSENFELD.

Opposing Big Oil

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

It would be very interesting to know just who the Senators and Congressmen other than Senator Case were offered or received large sums of cash to influence votes in favor of the Fulbright-Harris gas bill.

The implication of course is that a large percentage of them did. It seems that there will be an investigation now that this legislation has been lobbied through. Just another case of the barn being locked after the horse was stolen.

Ike has certainly made a believer out of a lot of Democratic legislators.

Sound but Late

President Eisenhower has offered Congress an excellent immigration program, but only the most determined leadership can enact the program this year.

As in his State of the Union message, the President suggests giving immigration quotas not fully used by some nations to other nations which have used theirs, or even mortgaged their quotas far into the future. Present national quotas simply ignore population pressures and the migration needs of many peoples.

But Mr. Eisenhower also goes much further than in his State of the Union message. Then he proposed basing immigration quotas on the 1880 instead of the 1920 census. He repeats that idea now, but also recommends that Congress consider replacing the whole "national origins" theory of determining quotas.

Under an unwise and unjust theory, present quotas for aliens are based on the national and racial origins of the American population at some time in the past.

If the early Republic had employed this theory as an immigration barrier, many good Americans would not be in this land today. For example, a national origins quota system applied in 1880 would have prevented most German and Irish migration; in 1880, most Scandinavian migration; in 1900, most Italian or Greek migration.

In short, the national origins theory informs the world that we Americans think some nations are better than others as sources of future Americans. Mr. Eisenhower's plan to apply the theory temporarily to the 1950 census would merely advance the insult by 30 years. Hence it is fortunate that his new message suggests, for the long run, abandoning the whole preposterous idea of "national origins."

In this and other respects the Administration bill is similar to one sponsored by Senator Lehman of New York, 10 other Democrats and Senator Langer, North Dakota Republican. With such bipartisan support, the new immigration plan should prosper.

This, however, is election year. In 1952 both major parties and presidential candidates attacked the injustices of the McCarran-Walter Act. Mr. Eisenhower has criticized it since. But the immigration law is a good political target only while it stands on the books, and there it still stands.

Since the Administration plan came so late, Democrats may accuse Republicans of offering bait to attract the votes of various national groups. Republicans in turn may accuse the Democratic Congress of failure to act. The truth of the matter is that there are men in both parties on both sides of the immigration issue, and in any case the issue should not be political.

The nation could be thankful if, for once, the Administration and Congress alike put politics aside and seriously face the problem of revising the immigration law. Do the parties mean what they say? Does the nation still call to "huddled masses yearning to breathe free?"

If so, partisanship will not shove a sound immigration policy aside even in this election year.

They Rode With "Mad Dog" Irvin

Fortunately Leslie (Mad Dog) Irvin, killer of six people, has been apprehended before he could commit more murders. Since he escaped Jan. 18 from Indiana authorities, who were holding him for execution for murder, he has been the most-wanted criminal in the nation. He told police who arrested him in San Francisco that he had hitchhiked all the way to the Coast. As he said, "People were nice. I didn't have any trouble getting rides." And right there is a warning for kind-hearted drivers who pick up strangers on the road—even though "Mad Dog" Irvin did not add a seventh victim to his list.

Test for Senator Kefauver

Senator Kefauver faces one of the most important political decisions of his career in the Powell amendment to the school aid bill.

Powerful reasons of expediency must be impelling the Tennesseean to support the Powell amendment, which would deny federal funds to school districts unless they comply with Supreme Court orders against racial segregation. Adlai E. Stevenson opposes it. He has said so before Negro audiences in California. And the comments of some Negro leaders there indicate that his stand has cost him support—how much, remains to be seen.

So Senator Kefauver must be sorely tempted to come out strongly for the Powell amendment, in the hope that a shift of Negro backing to his candidacy will provide the much needed impetus for a drive to cut down Mr. Stevenson's apparently long lead. If the Senator does this, however, he will almost certainly brand himself as a candidate who puts expediency above principle.

As a citizen of a state which has been slow to move toward integration in its schools, Senator Kefauver can hardly pretend to be genuinely in favor of denying federal aid to Tennessee. As one who has seen at first hand the very real social obstacles to rapid desegregation in the South, he cannot sincerely believe that this problem can be solved by sudden spectacular gestures. As an experienced Senator, he knows that the Powell amendment will not actually promote integration, but only block federal aid. His support of it therefore would be discounted as strictly political.

We hope that Senator Kefauver will prove himself to be a man of principle by taking his stand alongside former Gov. Stevenson and President Eisenhower on this question. We hope he will remember what Mr. Stevenson said at Fresno:

"I don't intend to take positions in this campaign which would reduce my effectiveness as President—regardless of the cost in votes. Anyone who would occupy the most awesome office on earth must preserve his responsibility and perspective and be able to do things rather than just talk about them. Those are sound words for any candidate any time—but never more so than for Estes Kefauver in 1956."

If Stamp Machines Must Talk—

The Post Office Department soon will begin installing stamp vending machines that make change and even speak a "courtesy comment" from a tape recording such as, "Thank you for buying stamps." This is further proof that science is indeed wonderful. It also is a bit of unnecessary Alphonse-and-Gaston technique as far as courtesy goes. Who wants to be thanked—and why should anyone be thanked—for merely buying a few common ordinary postage stamps?

Why not fix the machine so when the dial is set for a purchase and the supply of stamps is exhausted, the voice will warn, "Hold it! I'm fresh out of stamps." Or if stamps are slow emerging and the customer impatiently begins thumping the machine, the voice could cry, "Stop that or you won't get your money back!"

And since there are sure to be grouches and wisecracks who will make nasty remarks about the machine, there should be arrangement for the voice to say, "Oh, go tell it to the postmaster." In other words if machines are going to simulate the human faculty of uttering sounds they should be as natural as possible about it.

Circuit Attorney vs. Police Board

Is there a more regrettable aspect of public life in St. Louis these days than the turmoil which seems to surround almost continuously the office of the Circuit Attorney?

The latest flareup is that between the occupant of the office, Edward L. Dowd, and members of the St. Louis Police Board. Herman Willer and Joseph A. Glynn Jr., the two Police Commissioners who are currently in the city, have denounced a statement by Mr. Dowd concerning the police as "shocking" and one that "reflects upon the character and integrity of the men and women of the St. Louis Police Department who are daily rendering outstanding service to this community."

The protested statement was made in the court of Circuit Judge Walsh in connection with a hearing on a motion to dismiss bribery indictments against Capt. William Greenspan in the alleged payoff of police by keepers of brothels. In comment on a remark by Morris Shenker, Capt. Greenspan's lawyer, that Mr. Dowd had indicated "that police officers were hoodlums or associated with hoodlums," the Circuit Attorney said with vehemence:

That is exactly what we do mean. As we have stated many times before, the great majority of St. Louis police are honest and efficient officers. But our investigation has shown that some police officers, a small number, associated with hoodlums and gangsters.

It is to this that Commissioners Willer and Glynn take sharp exception. Immediately in its wake, Chief of Police O'Connell has asked Police Maj. James Thompson, Acting Inspector of Police, to obtain "all information in detail" from the Circuit Attorney concerning police officers who have been associating with underworld characters.

The demand for this information is wholly in order. If there are police who have gangster associations, the precise facts cannot come to light a minute too soon. The entire force does not need to be infected for the charge to be a serious one.

This police payoff inquiry has been dragging on now for many months. Admittedly such cases are not easy to make in court. But surely by now it must be known to Circuit Attorney Dowd what the prospects are. If he can avoid collateral controversy with Judges and other elements in the community for a while perhaps the purported payoff investigation and court work can be pushed through to a conclusion. By now almost everyone in St. Louis must hope so!

Men Afraid

Even worse than the mob action at the University of Alabama is the abandonment of duty by responsible officials.

The Governor of Alabama looked the other way when Miss Catherine Lucy sought and obtained a court order to be admitted as a student notwithstanding the 125-year-old rule of racial segregation. Now the president of the University, Oliver C. Carmichael, says that he will be "guided entirely by court orders" in deciding whether to permit Miss Lucy to return to her classes at Tuscaloosa following the violent demonstrations. In short, the Governor of Alabama and the president of its state University, have turned their responsibilities over to the courts.

At such a time the people of the United States can be grateful for Judges who stand firmly for law and order and the constitutional principles. For such Judges show up administrators for what they often are—men who are afraid to do what they know is their duty.

Why Not Corporations, Too?

The steady pace of corporate mergers, the growth of big business at the expense of small business, have caused widespread concern. But what to do about them is not an easy problem. Representative Wright Patman of Texas proposes something specific. He would change the tax laws so that corporations, like individuals, paid a graduated tax—the bigger their income, the bigger their tax.

Some recognition of the problem is given by the present law, which exempts corporate income under $25,000 from the 22 per cent surtax. But the effect of this tends to disappear in the upper brackets.

The effective tax rate for a corporation with $500,000,000 in taxable income thus is virtually the same as for one with income of only $5,000,000. Representative Patman would substitute rates ranging from 22 per cent to 66 per cent. In effect his plan would reduce taxes for corporations with less than $50,000,000 of taxable income, and raise them for firms above that level.

Senator Fulbright has introduced a similar bill which carries a less steep scale of graduation. Whatever the rate of progression and wherever the break-points might be, certainly the principle of both bills deserves thoughtful consideration. If that principle is fair for individuals, it seems fair for corporations. And if big business can get too big for its own as well as for the country's good, using the tax system to encourage small and medium-sized corporations might be desirable.

House Payments Going Up—Again!

The cost of government in St. Louis county is going up again this year. For the citizen who is buying his home on time this means only one thing: Late next fall or early winter—probably after election—the monthly payment on his mortgage will take a jump.

As a starter the County Council has approved a 6-cent increase in the county-wide property tax to finance expanded operations at the county level of government. The county tax could even be driven higher, depending upon how soon the recent improvement bond issue must begin to be amortized.

Higher taxes also are in the offing in many of the special taxing districts, particularly the school districts. School bond issues already voted will increase the rate in the Riverview Gardens district by 18 cents, in Affton by 30 cents and in Eureka by 15 cents.

The Ferguson-Florissant school district has voted a bond issue, and similar proposals are to be submitted soon in other districts including Kirkwood. Most of the county's 16 other districts will be compelled to seek additional revenue from bond issues within the year, it is said.

The third layer of local government that most county residents support is the municipal, and this is still to be heard from. Countians who have just finished paying higher 1955 tax bills are not to be blamed if they prefer not to hear from their town and village officials.

But whatever happens at the municipal level is not likely to alter the unhappy fact that government is going to cost more in the county this year than last.

How Lincoln Built Up Presidency

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Abraham Lincoln not only recognized but used the great powers given a President to preserve nation's well-being; often opposed by Congress, still he won on major issues; thus he established precedent for strong executives to follow when crisis came.

By Bruce Catton, Editor, American Heritage, and Pulitzer Prize-Winning Historian, Copyright, The Saturday Review

In the spring of 1861 the commanding general of the United States Army, Lt. Gen. Winfield Scott, scrutinized a curious document which—bearing the signature of the new President, Abraham Lincoln—had just reached his desk. In flat violation of all normal procedure this document authorized a private citizen, one Francis P. Blair Jr., to remove from office the Army commander at St. Louis, Brig. Gen. William S. Harney, and replace him with Capt. Nathaniel Lyon, whenever Blair and a self-constituted Committee of Public Safety in St. Louis should decide that the step was advisable.

Old Scott studied it while and then took his pen and scrawled his own indorsement: "This is revolutionary in its nature and therefore I do not object to the irregularity of this." As a direct result, a mere infantry captain present took charge of Army operations in Missouri, and he struck so vigorously at the secessionists there that he kept that state slave from formally leaving the Union.

Secession: A State of War

The irregular delegation of possibly non-existent authority by which Lincoln caused this to be done was just one of several actions which, in the weeks immediately following the bombardment of Fort Sumter, Lincoln took in order to insure final preservation of the Union.

Without congressional authority he called out 75,000 troops and paved the way for a huge enlargement of the Army and Navy. Equally without formal violation, he caused immense financial commitments to be made—contracts for guns, ammunition, uniforms, ships and many other things. He suspended the writ of habeas corpus in Maryland and his troops put numerous members of the Maryland Legislature in jail. He proclaimed a naval blockade of the entire Southern coastline.

In short, he accepted the fact of Southern Secession as the creation of a state of war, and he lost no time in assuming full war powers to meet the emergency, although it would be many weeks before Congress could meet and ratify his acts.

The immediate effect of all this was to make certain that the Civil War would not be lost before it had fairly begun. But the ultimate effect—one whose consequences are still with us and presumably will be for all time to come—was an immense enlargement of the sphere of authority in which a President of the United States can operate.

Constitution's Shadowy Limits

For Lincoln not only "saved the Union," in the common school book phrase; he took the office of the presidency and made it a much bigger and more powerful institution than it had ever been before. He established precedents which have been of service to Presidents ever since. He pushed back the rather shadowy limits which the Constitution had placed on the President's authority and he pushed them back permanently.

At bottom, Lincoln's authority for doing this was simple enough: the direct constitutional provision which makes the President the executive officer of the Government. In substance, the Constitution says that the President is the man who is to get things done. It is not always clear about precisely what he may do or how he may do it, but it clearly makes him the action arm.

Lincoln had taken an oath to preserve the Constitution; to him, that meant

Between Book Ends

Waiting Mother's Story

KATHY, by Katharine Homer Fryer. (Dutton, 234 pp., $3.50.)

In her book, which should find a wide reading, Mrs. Fryer tells the story of her family's struggle when one of her teenage daughters is discovered to have a rare and serious mental disease.

This is a book for anyone who has ever stood by helpless and waited for miracle drugs or experimental treatments to do their work, while the loved one fights back with little more than force of will. Since the strange and unknown thing which threatened her daughter's life was for some time thought to be mental, Mrs. Fryer speaks with particular poignancy for those who are, in her words, "light and cold" because of the mental illness which faces them.

Her frankness in confronting herself and her daughter's difficulty, to say nothing of her neighbors, should give such people objectivity and courage.

This is not to say that there is not in the course of the book a degree of sentimentality. This is, after all, a mother's story, written around one of the greatest crises in her own and her daughter's lives. After suffering as deep as this must have been, both personally and vicariously, it would be unnatural if there were not a certain amount of self-blame and emotion.

A remarkable control of these factors has resulted, however, in a very natural flow of language and salvaged the book from the usual run of three-handkerchief heart-breakers into which it could so easily have fallen.

This story was written for "Kathy," who wanted (it) to be told. The fact that a physical key was finally found to save Kathy from the inevitable seems a fitting monument to parental persistence, and has kept her mother's tone from becoming a "Behold me the martyr" type of recital. It has also returned the focus from abnormal to normal—a rare occurrence in biographies dealing with mental illness.

As Mrs. Fryer describes Kathy now, "She is a normal, healthy, beautiful girl. She has grown in wisdom and understanding through her experience, and there is a joy in her heart—a joy of life that perhaps can only be fully felt when it has been denied."

But this understanding came the desire that this book should be written. Thinking readers will agree. Reading it is a moving (and somewhat disturbing) experience.

Work of Literary Reference

TWENTIETH CENTURY AUTHORS: FIRST SUPPLEMENT, edited by Stanley J. Kunin. (H. W. Wilson Co., $8.)

Anyone who is required to write on literary topics or on the men who make literature should have a copy of "Twentieth Century Authors" within reach. It is an indispensable work of reference for modern American and English literature. However, it was published 13 years ago, and in the interim much has happened in the world of letters. Writers have risen, others faded. New trends in fiction and poetry have succeeded each other in the normal flux of healthy literature. To meet the situation, this massive supplement has now been issued updating the parent work.

The two books are meant to be used together, since the new volume brings the old one up to date and adds 870 new biographies to boot. The coverage is now so wide as to treat every writer of significance on both sides of the ocean.

And, as users of "Twentieth Century Authors" have long since come to know, coverage means more than mere biography. It also includes a survey of every author's work, a digest of critical opinion, and valuable source material by the author himself. In short, this supplement makes an invaluable book still better.

IN THE DAY OF THE NICKEL

Douglas Larson in The Door County Advocate (Sturgeon Bay, Wis.).

It used to be that when a kid was rewarded with a nickel for each A he got on his report card he thought he was pretty lucky, but now he feels that he is being imposed upon if he doesn't get paid overtime for staying after school.

WALTER LIPPMANN

Alabama Tolerates Violence vs. Law

WASHINGTON.

AS OF NOW at the University of Alabama the situation appears to be this: because the state government of Alabama has failed to maintain law and order on the campus of the state university, the authorities of the university have felt compelled to yield to the violence of a mob.

This has raised an issue within the State of Alabama as to whether a great question of public policy is to be decided because a Governor, instead of coming to the support of the local police, has stood aside and let a mob have its way. Dr. Carmichael, the president of the University, was in the act of complying with the mob's order of the court that Miss Lucy be allowed to attend classes. There is no evidence that the university authorities and the faculty were not prepared to comply with the law.

There is no evidence that the students who attended the same classes with her were aroused to rebellion. The mob, consisting of some students and it appears a hard core of outsiders, defied the local police officers, left unaided by the Governor, and succeeded in terrorizing the university authorities into denying Miss Lucy her undoubted constitutional rights.

Mob vs. Supreme Court.

What is at stake in this surrender to a mob is whether Alabama is in fact, not merely in name, a sovereign state. For what has happened in Tuscaloosa is a quite different kind of thing from what has happened in any of the other southern states which are opposing integration in the schools.

Nowhere else has resistance to the decision of the Supreme Court been left to a mob. Nowhere else has the state government connived at mob rule, which is what Gov. Folsom did. Whatever one may think of the legal reasoning in Virginia, for example, there and elsewhere the resistance is being carried out under the forms of law.

That makes a difference as between night and day. For it keeps the issue on a level where, though it cannot be settled quickly, it can be treated by the civilized process of accommodation and persuasion.

This will not be possible where state governments abandon their authority to mobs, and the question is raised of how far the authority and dignity of the United States are to be flouted.

Question for Stevenson.

On Tuesday in Los Angeles at a meeting of Negro voters Gov. Stevenson was asked whether as President he would, if necessary, use the Army to enforce integration in the schools. His answer was the only conceivable answer that any responsible public man could make. He would not use the Army.

It is ominous, however, that the question should have been put to him at all, that such a question should be asked of a man who may well be the President of the United States. It shows how very dangerous, how near to violence, is the situation. For we cannot afford to doubt that what Gov. Folsom has just done in Alabama—a surrender to lawless force—is precisely the kind of thing which will incite and provoke a mounting demand for the use of lawful force.

A number of politicians have been amusing themselves lately with deriding the notion that moderation could be, especially among Democrats, the sound and true approach to serious conflicts.

Well, here in the wake of the Supreme Court decision, they can see in the concrete how there is no decent prospect unless the law can preserve the spirit of moderation.

Obedience by Consent.

They have here what is almost certainly the hardest and most dangerous internal American issue. They can see here how there is no way of dealing with it unless moderate men backed by the great moderate majority of our people are able to take the lead.

For the decision of the Supreme Court must be carried out. But it can be carried out only by winning the consent of the people who must live with it. The essential principle of the court's order is that a mob must be found between that mob in Alabama, which insists on absolute segregation, and those Northern politicians who ask for Federal coercion to bring about the immediate ending of all segregation.

In the moderate course, which is the one that the court calls for, desegregation is not one action, to be taken simultaneously everywhere. It is a complex process which must vary with the conditions in the differing localities.

The same kind and the same rate of integration cannot be applied everywhere at once, in the Deep South and in the border states.

Those Difficult Teen-Agers.

Broadly speaking, it can be said, I suppose, that at the higher levels of education, the professional and graduate schools, integration is most easily put into effect. Integration is most difficult, on the other hand, in the schools for teenagers, among high school students and underclassmen, in educational institutions for adolescents.

There may well be parts of the South where integration at the teen-age level cannot wisely be put into effect for a long time to come. The country will understand the difficulty, and it will be disposed, I believe, to feel that the Southern states are within their rights in this regard. It is a consequence of many investigations, exposes or public services which stemmed from his suggestions.

JOSEPH PULITZER JR.

HONORS HIS FATHER

Emphasizes 'Tradition of Conscience' in Columbia U. Memorial Lecture.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Joseph Pulitzer Jr., editor of the Post-Dispatch, delivering the first Joseph Pulitzer Memorial Lecture at the Columbia University Graduate School of Journalism, said today that "a tradition of conscience" motivates writers and editors who make the content of a newspaper significant and interesting.

The lecture was established by Columbia University with funds given by members of the Post-Dispatch staff in tribute to the editor's father, who died in March.

The St. Louis editor was introduced by Dean Carl W. Ackerman of the graduate school, who said the lecture was a sentimental and historical link between the school and the Pulitzer family. He said lectures would be given annually by distinguished men in journalism, education and government.

"This is the beginning of a series of lectures of great significance to American journalism," he added.

The speaker honored the memory of his father by recounting how the Post-Dispatch had lived up to the tradition set by the first Joseph Pulitzer, who founded it in 1878.

"In the forty-three years that my father directed the destiny of the Post-Dispatch, the platform was his touchstone," the son said. "And it is mine. The words of the platform are comparable to those on a monument of granite which the tides of time will not efface."

Saying that "the press performs a solemn duty when it undertakes to inform a free people," the St. Louis editor recalled that the Post-Dispatch, in accordance with its tradition, was never satisfied with merely printing news. He told how the paper had taken the lead in uncovering the internal revenue scandals in the Truman administration and disclosing the details of the Dixie-Vates contract of the Eisenhower regime. The range of the Post-Dispatch crusades, he pointed out, extended from the "Progress or Decay" series for the betterment of St. Louis to the "Struggle for Peace" series, under his own editorship, to focus public attention on the views of American and British leaders of thought.

"A vital, often indispensable, catalyst in the success of such journalistic undertakings," he said, "was the initiative, encouragement and active participation of my father, Joseph Pulitzer. His leadership as an editor was unquestioned. In part, it was a consequence of many investigations, exposes or public services which stemmed from his suggestions."

ROBERT S. ROBISON

ART EXHIBIT OPENS

Other New Shows at People's Center and Washington University.

Robert S. Robison, artist and illustrator who teaches at Washington University School of Fine Arts, opened an exhibition of 18 documentary, on-the-spot pastel sketches of European scenes yesterday at C.W.S. Gallery, 1006 Olive street. They were done in two months last summer when the exhibitor was traveling in France, Germany, Italy, Spain and Switzerland.

Architectural studies predominate, with angles of vision often chosen to emphasize plunging lines of sight, as in the dramatic "Church at Assisi" and "Cathedral Steps, Siena."

Selection of vantage point provides the artist with loosely balanced composition in such limpid, fresh views as "Sacre Coeur, Paris," "Chartres," "Dinkelsbühl, Germany" and "Ponte Vecchio, Florence."

In a foreword to the show, Fine Arts School Dean Kenneth Hudson writes: "Robert Robison's sketches catch the fresh excitement of places just visited, of things newly seen. They are exemplary in their display and command of technique."

Gallery hours are 12 noon to 5 p.m. The show will close next Friday.

Nine St. Louis artists' drawings and paintings of Mexico went on public exhibition yesterday at the People's Art Center, 3637 Grandel square. Styles range from the expressionism of Bill M. Jackson, Edwin Brewer and Belle Cramer to the more nearly documentary work of Fred James Carpenter and Carmen Bahr Kress.

Others taking part are Ganz Proper, who works in the cubist tradition; Alice Bunch, whose pictures are distinctly her own; and Ada Haney and Elizabeth Milman, water colorists with free and loose techniques. The show will close March 7.

Forty-seven photographs of historic Japanese architecture have been placed on display in the south corridor of Brookings Hall on the Washington University campus. They were made by J. Edward Kiddle, assistant professor of art and archeology at the university, when he was studying in Japan on a Fulbright scholarship. The show will run through March 2. H.D.

Y.W.C.A. FOUNTAIN DEDICATED

A drinking fountain in the lobby of the County Branch Y.W.C.A. was dedicated last night in memory of Mrs. Florence S. Curran, former member of the Metropolitan Y.W.C.A. board of directors.

The Rev. Paul S. McElroy, pastor of First Congregational Church of St. Louis, conducted the service. H. Richard Duhme Jr. of the Washington University School of Fine Arts designed the bronze and brass fountain.

Surviving Mrs. Curran is a daughter, Miss Louise Furling of the Finney avenue address. Funeral services will be at 9 a.m. tomorrow at St. Ann's Catholic Church, Whittier street and Page boulevard. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery.

TELECAST CLASSES

OFF TO GOOD START

First Reports on KETC Project Show High Student Interest.

First reports on three KETC experimental programs, in which about 900 public school students are being taught by television instead of the usual classroom method, showed that over-all quality of lessons was judged above average and interest of students better than average, it was announced yesterday.

Thomas A. Weir, co-ordinator of school and station relations, said the "feed back" reports, two-page forms to be filled out daily by each supervisory teacher of television classes, will help in preparing the programs.

The experiment, which started Wednesday and will be carried out through the present semester, is an effort to determine whether a single teacher giving instruction on television can be as effective as a large number of classroom teachers.

Weir said when television classes are being held, some teachers are free to work with exceptional students, give remedial instruction for slower pupils or to do other duties.

He said reports after the first day of the experimental programs included such questions and inquiries as significance of contents of the lessons, quantity of material covered, detailed evaluation of students' ability, parent-student interest, quality of technical work involved in the presentation and characteristics of the television teacher.

Two of the programs, English composition and general science, are being telecast to Beaumont and Roosevelt high schools. The third, secondary spelling, is for pupils of four elementary schools. The telecasts are being sponsored through a $95,110 grant to the station by the Fund for the Advancement of Education, established by the Ford Foundation.

INDIVIDUALS' GIFTS

U.S. Official Says It Is Way to Show Thanks for $500,000,000 Donation.

Americans as individuals should try to match the recent $500,000,000 Ford Foundation gift to the nation's privately supported colleges, universities and hospitals, Bradshaw Mintner, Assistant Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, said yesterday.

In an address to the convention of the National Association of Methodist Hospitals and Homes at Hotel Sheraton-Jefferson, Mintner said "we can best show our gratitude and our appreciation of the Ford gift by resolving to emulate the example of the donor."

"All of us—as individuals, as college alumni, as business men—should plan to give more in the coming year to our chosen hospital, medical school, college, or university," he said.

The federal official said that the national deficit in hospital beds was still great, amounting to more than 840,000 beds.

In an effort to discover more efficient ways of using existing facilities, he said, Congress has appropriated $1,200,000 for research grants to states, universities and hospitals. Thus far, 16 such grants, totaling $633,000, have been made, he said.

Mintner also reviewed a program of federal assistance in financing construction of hospitals, begun in 1946. Federal funds totaling $700,000,000 have been appropriated for this program, for which state and local contributions have been nearly $1,500,000,000, he said.

Nearly 2700 projects had been approved for federal aid by the end of 1955, when, when all are complete, will provide 124,000 hospital beds, he went on. Most of the new hospitals, Mintner added, are in rural areas.

The Rev. C. A. Sweazy, superintendent of the Methodist Home of Kentucky, at Versailles, was elected president of the Methodist group.

Other officers elected include Ralph M. Hueston, superintendent of the Chicago Wesley Memorial Hospital, Chicago, president-elect for 1957, and the Rev. Harold E. Baker, executive secretary of the San Diego Methodist Home, Chula Vista, Calif., vice president.

The Methodist and several other church-related hospital groups concluded separate meetings here yesterday, held in connection with the three-day annual convention of the American Protestant Hospital Association, which ends today.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 10 (AP)—Ted Breton, big-time vaudeville performer around the turn of the century, died yesterday at the age of 86. Breton and his wife, Corinne, had a song and dance routine and toured with a nearly every type of road show in the 1890s and the early 1900s.

LORD TRENCHARD,

R.A.F. FOUNDER, DIES

Headed British Air Staff and Later Commanded Scotland Yard.

LONDON, Feb. 10 (AP)—The death of Lord Trenchard, founder of the Royal Air Force, was announced today. He was 83 years old.

As chief of Britain's air staff from 1918 to 1929, he directed the R.A.F.'s emergence from the old Royal Flying Corps of World War I. After his retirement, he headed Scotland Yard from 1931 to 1935 as commissioner of London's metropolitan police.

Born Hugh Montague Trenchard, he first saw military service in the Boer War. He rose to be marshal of the Royal Air Force before he was made a baron in 1930. He was raised to a viscountcy in 1936.

After his retirement from the police, he became chairman of the United Africa Co. and a director of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. of Great Britain.

As police commissioner, Lord Trenchard barred tipping of police, introduced modern training methods and patrol cars.

He was 6 feet 3 and his deep and loud voice earned his nickname "Boom."

LEONARD WARREN

WILL SING HERE

To Make First Appearance With Symphony Tomorrow, Sunday.

Leonard Warren, a leading baritone of the New York Metropolitan Opera Co., will make his first appearance with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra at concerts in Kiel Auditorium Opera House tomorrow evening at 8:30 o'clock and Sunday at 3 p.m.

Warren will present four operatic arias and a song by Debussy, "Del Mio Amato Ben." The arias will be the Largo, "Ombra mai fu," from Handel's "Xerxes"; the "Credo" from Verdi's "Otello"; "Avant de quitter ces lieux" from Gounod's "Faust," and "Nemico della Patria" from Giordano's "Andrea Chénier."

Conductor Vladimir Golschmann will lead the orchestra in von Weber's Overture to "Oberon," Mendelssohn's Symphony No. 4 (the "Italian"), Copland's "Quiet City" and Ravel's "La Valse."

Warren recently became the first non-Italian singer in Milan's famous opera house, La Scala, to perform the title role of "Rigoletto," one of the more than 25 major roles he has filled at the Metropolitan.

Seats for both tomorrow evening's and Sunday afternoon's concerts will be on sale all day today and tomorrow at the Symphony Box Office in the lobby of Kiel Auditorium and at the Aeolian Company ticket offices, 1004 Olive Street and 7754 Forsyth in Clayton. They will also be available at the Kiel Auditorium box office beginning at 1 p.m. Prices range from $1 to $3.

How to find

Peace beyond price

Material living is full of promises that fade. The blossom is bright but the fruit is uncertain or unsatisfying. Many feel this. Searching for a satisfying answer to life's meaning and purpose, thousands have found it in Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy.

Thoughtful study of this book brings a peace beyond price. It gives an honest seeker spiritual understanding—"an intelligent consciousness of the ever-presence of an infinite God who is only good."

The above quotation is from the final chapter "Fruitage," in Science and Health, consisting of one hundred pages of unsolicited authenticated testimonies from those who have been helped and healed by reading it alone.

Science and Health may be read, borrowed, or purchased at any Christian Science Reading Room, or send $3 and a copy will be mailed postpaid.

FREE TO YOU FOR 30 DAYS

Any Reading Room listed below will be glad to loan you a copy of Science and Health. Just return this advertisement, with your name and address, and a book will be sent by prepaid mail. W. H. STANLEY & CO.

Connie, as Ever Was.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.

It is not for mortals any other has lived too long, yet for those who knew and, necessarily, loved him it is difficult to regard Connie Mack's last years as part and parcel of a life that was a beacon in our time. Toward the end he was old and sick and saddened, a figure of forlorn dignity bewildered by the bickering around him as the baseball mummified which he had built crumbled away. That wasn't Connie Mack. Neither was he the bloodless saint so often painted, a sanctimonious old puritan patting babies on the skull and mumbling mixed oaths and platitudes. As long as he was Connie Mack he was tough and human and clever. He was tough and warm and wonderful, kind and stubborn and courtly and unreasonably and generous and calculating and naive and gentle and proud and humorous and demanding and unpredictable.

Many people loved him and some feared him, everybody respected him and, as far as I know, nobody ever disliked him in the 33 years of his life. There may never have been a more truly successful man, for nobody ever won warmer or wider esteem and nobody ever relished it more.

Only the most fortunate men can appreciate their own success and enjoy it fully. Connie entered professional baseball when it was a game for roughnecks. He saw it become respectable, he lived to be the symbol of its integrity, and he enjoyed every minute of it.

The Roar of the Crowd.

He had an innocent vanity that could delight those who knew him. He liked going places and, of course, he was recognized everywhere. To see him introduced, say, at a fight in the Hollywood Legion stadium was something to remember; he would spring through the ropes nimbly as a preliminary boy and draw himself erect, hands clasped overhead acknowledging the spontaneous cheers.

There were unexpected demonstrations of the affection felt for him in far places. It could be in Dallas or Houston or Fort Worth just before an exhibition game in the spring. All of a sudden, in the hush of the twilight, the first applause would go rippling through the stands, swelling to a roar, and the customers would be on their feet and here Connie would come hiking from dugout to dugout with his bouncy, long-legged stride, his scorecard waving high. For a moment, swallowing would be difficult.

He could laugh at himself. One winter he obtained title to the renowned motor and pitcher, Bobo Newsom, and brought Bobo up to Philadelphia for a formal signing. When the press was admitted to the tower office in Shibe Park, Connie was on his feet and Bobo relaxed in the swivel chair behind the desk, a big cigar in his face. A little later Newsom stepped outside to take a phone call and Connie dropped absent-mindedly into the boss's seat.

As the door opened for his employee's return, Connie sprang up in mock alarm, re-installing the great man with wonderfully exaggerated humility. Bobo was quite nice about it.

Little Memories.

It is the little things one remembers most happily, the small tributes of his great humanity. Like his sudden flash of real anger one day in San Francisco. It was a nippy morning and one of Connie's companions suggested closing the windows of a car that was taking them to San Quentin for an exhibition. He was flabbergasted when his solicitude infuriated Connie.

"Dammittobell!" the old man exploded. "Don't worry about me! Dammittobell, everybody's always worrying Mrs. Mack says, 'Con, wear your overcoat. Con, don't forget your rubbers.' So I put on my dam coat and my dam rubbers and go out to the drugstore to get medicine for her!"

"And that Blackburne!" Lena Blackburne, coach with the Athletics, had a leg infection which had kept him in bed in Anaheim, Calif., when the team broke camp there. "That Blackburne!" Connie said. "It's boss, are you comfortable? Boss, are you warm enough? Sit still, Boss, and I'll do for you. And where's Blackburne? Down on his tail in Anaheim, dammit!"

Small Moments.

So many little things. He could fight a player for the last dime at contract time and win. Yet he confessed that after 50 years two jobs still made him miserable—haggling with a player and telling a kid from the minors that he had to go back.

Little things. His unfailing gift for getting names wrong, from the day of the pitcher, Addie Joss, to the time of the young Cleveland manager, "Mr. Bordiere." "It is a great pleasure," he told fans in Long Beach, Calif., before an exhibition game with Gabby Hartnett's Cubs, "to be here in Long Branch playing my old friend, Pat Hartnett." (Copyright, 1956, New York Herald Tribune Inc.)

Tennis Tourney Opens. Five matches will open the Tandy Invitational tennis tournament at Tandy Center tonight. Matches also will be played tomorrow and next Tuesday.

Cleveland Seeks Infield Help, Bids for Goodman, Finigan

Red Sox Ask for Avila in Exchange

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 10 (UP)—The Cleveland Indians, still looking high and low for infield help, have made bids for Billy Goodman of the Boston Red Sox and Jim Finigan of the Kansas City Athletics.

Cleveland was particularly interested in the versatile Goodman as a first baseman, but negotiations with Boston hit a snag when the Red Sox demanded second baseman Bobby Avila in return.

Goodman was particularly interested in the versatile Goodman as a first baseman, but negotiations with Boston hit a snag when the Red Sox demanded second baseman Bobby Avila in return. Goodman batted .204 last season while Avila, who won the American League batting title with a .341 average in 1954, skidded to .272 last year.

If the Indians are successful in their attempt to land Finigan, a .255 hitter last season, they will probably play him at third base and move Al Rosen to first.

Cleveland's negotiations are brought about by the fact that Indian officials are not sure whether Vic Wertz, a police victim late last season, will be able to stage a comeback at first base.

If the Tribe fails to make a trade for a first baseman, Rosen, who has played first quite a bit, may return to the bag and Billy Harrell, up from Indianapolis of the American Association, would get a shot at third base.

There was talk in another section of the American League, also.

Orlones Turned Down Deal. Jack Dunn, assistant general manager of the Orioles, said Baltimore turned down a deal with the Yankees Wednesday.

Only an hour before the Yankees traded with the Washington Senators.

The Yankees had offered us a similar deal for one of our front line players," Dunn said, "but we didn't think they were offering us enough in return."

Dunn refused to disclose the Baltimore player involved, but it's no secret it was a pitcher. After that one fell through, the Yankees obtained Mickey McDermott from Washington.

Cincinnati announced the signing of Wally Post, the slugger, outfielder who hit .400 last season and batted .309. Post earned a raise over his 1955 contract and said he was satisfied with his new pact.

The Red Sox signed infielder Ted Lepore and earlier in the day they signed the shortstop Milt Bolling and Don Budin also had agreed to terms for 1956.

Three shortstops, Luis Aparicio, Jim Bredwiser and Carl Peterson, all signed with the White Sox, leaving Outfielder John Phillips the only unsigned member of the club.

Bob Feller, who once commanded $80,000 with the Indians, signed for an estimated $25,000, that sum representing an approximate 12 per cent cut from his 1955 salary. Feller had a 4-4 record with Cleveland last season, appearing in only 25 games. Catcher Jim Hegan also signed to terms.

Smiths All Over the Place. Infielders Don Leppert and George Smith signed with the Orioles. Smith, 21-year-old younger brother of Baltimore Catcher Hal Smith, is a former Michigan State second base star.

If he makes the grade with the Orioles, it will mark the fifth time in history that a Smith brother combination has operated on the big league scene.

The Chicago Cubs announced the signing of Benjamin Banks, 22-year-old brother of their slugging shortstop, Ernie Banks. Ben Banks was signed to a contract with the Cubs' Class C affiliate at Lafayette, La., but the club said he will go to spring training with the Chicago team.

Thousands to File Past Bier Of Mack; Tributes Pouring In PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 10 (AP)—Men who rule baseball and men who have given it luster on the field gather sorrowfully in Philadelphia today for the funeral of Connie Mack, in the eyes of many the game's greatest.

Mourning with them are millions, of all ages, whose deep affection for "Mr. Baseball" is expressed in a multitude of touching ways.

To all, Connie Mack's death Wednesday at 83 was a shock for they had grown to think of him as a national institution. And so he is, in the perpetuation of the code of good sportsmanship he lived by through the 72 years, all told, that he devoted to the national pastime.

City Hall flags flutter at half staff. In streets voices lose their shrillness as someone speaks of the passing of Cornelius McGillicuddy, who shortened his name to make it fit a baseball box score. White-haired commuters turn from the sad tidings spread over newspaper front pages and stare out of the train windows, their minds probably crowded with memories of old ball games and of Connie wagging his head from the dugout to direct a player into the right position.

"Connie was a good guy," said one man whose sentiments were overheard in a railroad terminal. "I'm pretty cynical, and there aren't many of these big wheels I trust. But Connie was okay. I talked to him once, out at the park. He was a nice guy even when he didn't know you, when he just talked to you as he did to me, a total stranger."

Everywhere, people remember. And in that remembering, welling up mistily, are perhaps the finest tributes of all. They may be spoken, often in faltering phrases, or scrawled on crude postcards and sent to Manager CASEY STENGEL of the New York Yankees beats rival teams to the punch by getting his early rookie crop into uniform at St. Petersburg, Fla. Official compulsory opening date for major league clubs is March 1, but rookies are assembling at various camps, by invitation. Stengel is shown here, bat in hand, talking to a group of young pitchers and catchers and team coaches.

Wisconsin U. Denies Tampering Charge, Big Ten Seeks N.C.A.A. Censure of Wartburg (Ia.) Coach

MADISON, Wis., Feb. 10 (AP)—Earnest Oppermann, basketball coach at Wartburg (Ia.) college, has stirred up a tempest by charges of "tampering" in connection with the transfer of 6-7 Ray Gross from Wartburg to the University of Wisconsin.

Gross, as well as university officials and Kenneth (Tug) Wilson, commissioner of the Big Ten Conference, promptly denied the charges. Wilson termed them "groundless and malicious" and said he would ask the National Collegiate Athletic Association to censure Oppermann for "unwarranted behavior" in attacking Big Ten eligibility rules "to make them fair to other institutions" or "recognize to the world Big Ten professionalism."

Gross, reached at the Wisconsin field house where he was practicing with the basketball team, said Wartburg officials "knew all along" he planned to return to Wisconsin as soon as he improved his grades. A native of Stratford, Wis., he returned to Wisconsin last week and became an eligible member of the Badger basketball squad last Friday.

"I left here with the intention of coming back after a year or so as soon as my marks improved," said Gross who entered Wartburg last Oct. 11.

Bud Foster, Wisconsin basketball coach said, "I wrote to Ray and stated that I hoped he would return to Wisconsin on completion of his work at the Iowa school. . . . If he had cleared up some scholastic troubles and wanted to return we would welcome him back. Gross made his own decision and I know that I am in the clear entirely on the entire matter."

Ivan B. Williamson, Wisconsin athletic director, commented that Gross was dropped by academic authorities "until he had met readmission requirements. There is no doubt that he went (to Wartburg) to acquire sufficient credits to be considered for readmission at Wisconsin. It was completely in accord with the rules. There was no tampering at all."

Oppermann related that Gross was adjusting "very well" at Wartburg until he received communications from Wisconsin including a letter from Foster. Gross said he had a scholastic scholarship in Wisconsin in his first year, a scholarship worth $500. Foster added that when he failed to make a "C" grade average, Gross lost the scholarship, "now all he has is a part-time job," Oppermann said.

Gross said he runs errands for the Madison Chamber of Commerce on Saturdays and when "I'm not practicing."

Two Sign With Indians. Two St. Louis area youngsters, Lou Holdener and Don Schaeffer, have been signed to Cleveland contracts by Scout Johnny Schulte, and will report to the Indians' camp for rookies at Daytona Beach, Fla. Holdener, of Assumption High, East St. Louis, is a catcher and Jorge Schaeffer, of Stockham Post team, is a pitcher.

532 Teams in Women's Title Tenpin Event

A total of 532 teams will compete in the fourth annual championship tourney of the St. Louis Women's Bowling Association. Mrs. Berdie Speck, secretary of the organization announced the tourney will be held at Sports Bowl, beginning Feb. 18.

In addition to the team entry, 645 will compete for the doubles title; 1107 in singles and 455 in the special all-events.

Only 378 teams rolled in the men's city title meet.

Defending champions who will roll in the women's tourney are: Class A team, DuBowLanes; Class B team, Cotton Board; doubles, Mosie Caldwell and Mattie Deal; singles, Bernadine Schulte and all-events, Gladys Bathe.

Logart Favored Over Fuentes

NEW YORK, Feb. 10 (UP)—Sleek Isaac Logart, the second "cat man" from Camaguey, Cuba, meets stocky, bulldogged Ramon Fuentes of Los Angeles tonight in a welterweight contenders' TV-radio fight at Madison Square Garden. (The bout will be telecast by KSD-TV.)

Young Logart is favored at 17-5 because of his catlike speed and spiffling flurries of blows—assets that once made Kid Gavilan of Camaguey the world welterweight champion.

Stalking that same 147-pound crown, Logart proved the surprise welterweight of 1955 as he battled from obscurity to his current fifth place among contenders. He won seven of eight fights with good opponents last year and reversed the lone loss.

Fuentes is the number three contender, but he is the underdog because, at 30, he is eight years older than Camaguey like and is believed by many betting men to lack kick's speed, skill and punch. However, Ramon of the crumpled nose and bulging muscles is physically stronger than Logart and very rugged, although he cuts easily.

And he is very aggressive. In seven fights last year Fuentes won four, lost two and drew one.

Tonight's bout is the first of 1956 for each.

Houston Stays On Bills' Trail In Valley Race

By Robert Morrison

Staying in the battle for the Missouri Valley Conference basketball crown, Houston University's Cougars are only one-half game back of the St. Louis University Billikens as they prepare for a critical contest here tomorrow night.

Houston brought its conference record to 6 and 2 in an 82-70 victory over Bradley U. at Peoria, Ill., last night to reduce the lead of the Bills, who have a 6-1 league mark.

Over-all, Houston has 16-3. Its defeats came in an upset by Valparaiso, 84-80; a setback at home in a game won by St. Louis in the last seconds, 76-73, and a defeat by Oklahoma A. & M. at Stillwater, 63-44.

The Bills, who have won 14 and lost three, suffered a blow to their title plans when they lost to the Aggies here Monday night, 63-63. Oklahoma A. & M. 13 and 6 over-all and 2-2 in the conference, continues in the title hunt, but Bradley, now 2-3 after its loss to Houston, has fallen back.

St. Louis, led by Capt. Jim McLaughlin, will be playing before a homecoming crowd when it seeks to get back in victory stride tomorrow night at Kiel Auditorium.

McLaughlin, incidentally, has passed the 1000-mark in career scoring. The third player to do that for the Blue and White is current three-year total is 1059, including 311 points this season. Dick Boushka had a four-year total of 1440, and a three-year mark of 1431 in his St. Louis career. Easy Ed Macaulay had 1399 for four years, 1161 for his last three.

Houston will present Don Boldebeck, who passed the 2000 mark for his college career this season. Boldebeck's current total for the season is 2193 points, a 21.9 average. Before transferring to Houston from Nebraska Wesleyan, Boldebeck had 1103 points for two years. In his two seasons thus far at Houston he has scored 1022 points for a grand total of 2125.

The seven-foot Boldebeck had 17 points in the victory over Bradley. Houston took an early 11-4 lead hitting 16 of 27 shots from the floor in the first half. Boldebeck grabbed 18 rebounds and held Bradley's 6-9 center, Gene Herberger, to five points.

East-West Grid Game Nettetted Record $240,000

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 10 (AP)—This year's Shrine East-West football game netted a record $240,443.29 which will be turned over to the Masonic organization's hospital for crippled children.

William M. Coffman, the game's managing director, said today the 31 games have produced $2,591,079.25 for the hospital.

Ed Furgol Gets 67 in Tucson Golf Tourney

TUCSON, Ariz., Feb. 10 (UP)—A pair of surprising youngsters dominated the $10,000 Tucson Open golf tournament as the second round got underway today with the big names of the winter trek on the outside looking in—temporarily at least.

Gardiner Dickenson Jr., Panama City Beach, Fla., and Bob Harris, Chicago, both sophomores on the P.G.A. tourney trail, charged over the 6343-yard El Rio Country Club course with seven-under-par 63s yesterday to tie for the lead.

Ed Furgol of St. Louis, former National Open champion, had 67 to trail the leaders by four strokes.

Another comparative unknown, Don January, Abilene, Tex., was close behind with 64, while the only consistent money winner near the top was Ted Kroll, Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Kroll was grouped at 65 with two more dark horses, Jerry Kesselring, Toronto, Can., and Bob Duden, Portland, Ore.

Tommy Bolt, Chattanooga, Tenn., a two-time winner of the event and sentimental favorite, was well back in a group of 66s. Bolt complained of a case of flu and said there was a possibility he may drop out of the tourney.

Other favorites, Mike Souchak, Grossinger, N.Y., and veteran Lloyd Mangrum, Apple Valley, Calif., also found rough going. Souchak, who started with a sizzling, three-under-par 32 on the first nine, fell apart on the back side to finish with a 69.

Mangrum, also a two-time Tucson Open champ, had trouble on the back nine and came in with a 69.

Dickenson and Harris navigated the course in identical nine-hole marks of 32-31. Both said the resulting 63 was their best score in P.G.A. tournament competition.

Iowa Track Star Is Declared Ineligible

IOWA CITY, Ia., Feb. 10 (UP)—Charles (Deacon) Jones of Iowa, the N.C.A.A. cross country champion, today was declared ineligible for second semester track competition because of one scholastic deficiency. However, he will be permitted to try for a berth on the United States Olympic team in the June tryouts.

Two Veteran Football Giants Quit Game

NEW YORK, Feb. 10 (AP)—Fullback Ed Price and Defensive Halfback Tom Landry have announced their retirements, Coach Jim Lee Howell of the New York football Giants said.

Landry, both a player and defensive coach last season, will continue as coach. Price, out a part of last season with a groin injury, decided to quit football when the injury did not heal.

West Frankfort To Test Herrin And Mt. Vernon

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 10 (AP)—Herrin and Mount Vernon, two of southern Illinois' top ranking teams, test their strength against the same team during the weekend pre-basketball program.

The opponent is West Frankfort, holder of a 13-5 mark and one of the three teams to defeat powerful Pinckneyville this season. West Frankfort takes on Mount Vernon tonight and Herrin tomorrow night.

Another hurdle faces Mount Vernon Saturday when the Rams invade Salem, regarded as one of the better entries from the southern belt.

Most of the teams in the top 15 ratings face comparatively easy sledding in this week's contests.

West Frankfort's No. 1 Warriors are expected to add Joliet and Horace Mann of Gary, Ind., to their list of victims, leaving only two more games on the regular season schedule.

Pinckneyville's second-ranked Panthers are a heavy favorite over Effingham Saturday, as is Peoria Central over Bloomington and Jacksonville.

The Moline Maroons, who skidded in the ratings after bowing to Rock Island last week, seek to rebound against East Moline and Decatur. Galesburg rates a big edge over Keokuk and Canton.

Collinsville's Kahoks, highest ranked outfit in the Southwest-ern area, play a return engagement with Alton's Red Birds.

Collinsville won the previous game by four points.

Edwardsville, another Southwestern power, figures to move past Granite City and Belleville without much trouble.

Quincy's Blue Devils try for their thirteenth and fourteenth straight victories against Marshall of Chicago and Pekin. Unbeaten Shawneetown shoots for its twenty-fourth in a session with Golconda, an earlier victim by 22 points.

The Rock Island Rocks, who broke into the ratings with their conquest of Moline, aim to bolster their 12-5 record when they engage Monmouth and Dubuque, Ia.

FIGHT RESULTS
PHILADELPHIA—Baby Douglas, 14, stopped Charlie Slaughter, 135, Alton, Ill., 11, 130, Oakland, Calif., knocked out Johnny McCray, 136, Los Angeles, 110.

LOS ANGELES—Ruben Salazar, 131½, Houston, Tex., outpointed Lasso Salas, 130½, Monterey, Mexico, 110.

FUREKA, Calif.—George Parmenter, 234, Fureka, knocked out Gene Thompson, 184, St. Paul, 5.

Toski and Partner Purchase Golf Links

HOLYOKE, Mass., Feb. 10 (AP)—Bob Toski, pro golf's top money winner in 1954, and a Holyoke businessman have acquired the 53-year-old Mount Tom golf course.

Final papers were passed yesterday granting Toski and Marco Marinello a 25-year lease with an option to buy Mount Tom from the Wyckoff Realty Corp. The sales price was reported upwards of $75,000.

Toski, a native of Haydenville, about 12 miles from Holyoke, and Marinello, plan to change the name of the course of the Wyckoff Golf and Country Club. Construction of new clubhouse is scheduled to begin in the spring.

Huskies' Director Resigns to 'Straighten Out Program'

Boryla Named Knicks' Coach

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (UP)—Vince Boryla signed today to coach the New York Knickerbockers of the National Basketball Association for the rest of this year and next season. He succeeds J. Lapchick, who resigned two weeks ago.

Boryla, a former Knickerbocker star who now lives in Denver, agreed to terms in a telephone conversation with Ned Irish, president of the club. Boryla will fly to New York and will take charge of the club in its Saturday night game against the St. Louis Hawks.

Boryla played with the Knickerbockers for five years under Lapchick.

Red Skins Win Title.

After dropping the first game 15-10, the Red Skins A.C. gained the Sherman men's volleyball title by defeating the Old Timers A.C., 15-12. The Red Skins used Clyde Miller, Jim Meyers, Gus Herman, Edward Miller, Ralph Summers, Jim Mitchell and Wayne Terneus.

Quits Post Said to Pay $15,000

SEATTLE, Feb. 10 (AP)—The man who fired four University of Washington coaches in 10 years gave himself the axe last night in a bid for harmony at the troubled institution.

Stepping out of his reputed $15,000 a year position as athletic director was Harvey Cassill, center of an ever-growing storm of complaint and protest since he gave the boot Jan. 27 to Johnny Cherberg, the football coach.

Cassill's departure, accompanied by lengthy expressions of regret from top university officials, followed by less than a day a closed session of the university's Board of Regents.

The Regents would say nothing about their night session beyond a statement they had been "brought up to date." Confering with them were Dr. Henry Schmitz, president of the university, H. P. Everest, vice president, and Nelson Wahlstrom, comptroller.

Cassill in turn conferred with Everest yesterday, leaving the late afternoon meeting after proffering his resignation. It was addressed to "Dear Dick" (Everest) but its acceptance was by Schmitz. "In no other way that I can see," Cassill wrote, "can our program be straightened out, policy re-established and the university go ahead."

Referring to his dismissal of Cherberg, which was followed by much public discussion of university athletic policies and an investigation by a legislative subcommittee, Cassill said:

"Recently, I had a difficult decision before me with respect to John Cherberg. Whether it was John's fault or not, the facts clearly and conclusively indicated that the situation was beyond recovery as far as my problem was concerned. . . . I find myself in as untenable a position as I found Cherberg to be in."

Cherberg was fired after a player revolt in November followed by the regents ordering his rehiring for the next year in a December meeting. When he was let out it was explained Cassill felt Cherberg had failed to restore harmony as he had promised the regents.

Dr. Schmitz issued a highly laudatory statement along with his acceptance of Cassill's resignation, saying Cassill "has been a devoted servant" of the university.

"He leaves the university with the gratitude of myself and others in the administration and in the associated students."

Prior to Cassill's firing of Cherberg he had given walking papers to two other football coaches, Ralph Welch and Howie Odell, and Hec Edmundson, basketball mentor for many years.

His resignation left the university with two jobs to fill—his and Cherberg's. A score of candidates have already been named as possible successors to both. Everest said yesterday it is not likely a coach will be chosen before a new athletic director is named.

66 Points for Tatum As His Magicians Win; Same Total for Spivey

Goose Tatum, the splinter from the Harlem Globetrotters, scored 66 points to lead his Harlem Magicians to a 106-104 victory over the New York Olympians last night at Kiel Auditorium.

Also scoring 66 was Bill Spivey, Tatum's center for the Olympians. Tatum and Spivey each tallied 31 field goals in the duel.

The crowd for the game, which followed the comedy lines of the Globetrotters, was announced as 5175. In a preliminary game Meramec Cavern Girls defeated Kutis Girls, 51-50.

Mizzou Hurdler Sets Mark, but Iowa Wins Meet

IOWA CITY, Ia., Feb. 10 (AP)—New records in the 70-yard low hurdles and the pole vault were set yesterday as the Iowa Hawkeyes opened their indoor track season with a 65-49 victory over Missouri.

The Tigers' Jack Davis ran the hurdles event in 7.7 seconds, breaking the former fieldhouse record of 7.9 set by Russ Merkel of Iowa in 1950.

Iowa's Gardner Van Dyke cleared 13 feet 10 inches in the pole vault to better the old university indoor record of 13 feet 9 inches set by Nick Piper of Iowa in 1955.

Les Stevens of Iowa equaled the fieldhouse and meet record in the 70-yard high hurdles in 8.5 seconds.

The Hawkeyes took eight first places to Missouri's six. It was the second loss for the Tigers who opened last Saturday with a 74-30 defeat by Notre Dame.

Bears' Cristal Needs 47 Points For 1000 Total

By Harold Tuthill

Now that they are assured of a winning basketball season, Washington University's Bears will concentrate on helping teammates Bud Cristal and Jim Barton into record-breaking sprees in the last five games of the season.

Barton, the eagle-eyed Edw. Wislizenus marksman, is close to a free throw record he can almost touch it and the progress he makes tomorrow night against Regis' College of Denver, will reduce the distance between him and the mark for individual scoring in one season.

Ol' Eagle-eye needs only 11 more free throw attempts and 16 more free throws to better marks he set last winter. So far he has made 170 of 229 free throw attempts, equivalent to sinking three out of every four he tries. Last year he finished with 185 out of 239.

Barton has totaled 360 points in 17 games and needs only 92 to break Bob Kriegshauser's former high of 451 made during the 1953-54 season.

Cristal Close to Goal.

Cristal already has shattered a Kriegshauser record. Big Bob poured in 930 during a three-year span from 1952 through 1954. Cristal, in four years, has amassed 953 points, leaving him just short of being the first player in Washington history to join the 1000 club, of which there are only about a dozen members in college basketball.

Washington is over the hump with a 12-5 record and only five to go. Even if the Bears dropped all five they would still be above .500, a much better showing than last season's when Blair Gullion's athletes were 8-14. And, with Cristal, the only senior on the squad, the prospects for another good team on the hilltop next winter are extremely bright.

Regis, loaded with Missouri boys, just about has been holding its own with schools previously dominant in the Rocky Mountains area. The Rangers of Harvey Moore wind up a five-game trip here after a February swing through Kentucky which included losses to Murray State, 86-84, to Kentucky Wesleyan, 103-95, and to Evansville, 94-75.

Missourians on Regis.
 Bill Bollwerk of St. Louis U. High and Rich Eckhard of De Anza, as well as Mickey Shannon and Fred Mostert of Cape Girardeau Catholic High, and John Kirchner of Kansas City are members of the Ranger squad. Shannon, 6-6 center, has been averaging more than 20 points per game. He will start along with Eckhard and Bollwerk.

Quincy College Loses.
 LOCKPORT, Ill., Feb. 10 (AP)—Lewis College, paced by Bill Palka's 22 points, was ahead all the way in trimming Quincy College's basketball team 90-81. Quincy's Ed Crenshaw took scoring honors with 31 points.

Bobo Readmitted.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 10 (UP)—Hubert L. Bobo, a fullback on Ohio State's 1954 Rose Bowl team, has been readmitted to the university under "disciplinary probation." He was suspended from O.S.U. last year because of scholastic difficulties.

The TRUMAN MEMOIRS

changes in situation as they occur and that your estimate as requested in our message of November 6th be submitted as soon as possible.

MacArthur Communique—New CIA Estimate.

On this day, November 6th, General MacArthur issued a communique in Tokyo in which he announced that his forces were now faced by a new and fresh army backed up by large reserves and adequate supplies within easy reach to the enemy but beyond the limits of the present sphere of military action.

The Central Intelligence Agency also now supplied me with an estimate of the situation based on their sources of information. It reported that there might be as many as 200,000 Chinese Communist troops in Manchuria, and that their entry into Korea might stop the United Nations advance and actually force the United Nations forces to withdraw to defensive positions further south.

General MacArthur's estimate of the situation arrived in two messages on November 7th. In the first of these messages MacArthur referred back to his initial appraisal of November 4th of the Chinese intervention and concluded that he had been confirmed in his belief that this was not a full-scale intervention by the Chinese Communists.

He conceded the possibility that the intervening forces might be reinforced to "a point rendering our resumption of advance impossible and even forcing a movement in retrograde."

"He was planning, he said, again to assume the initiative in order to take 'accurate measure' of enemy strength." And he went on to say: "I deem it essential to execute the bombing of the targets under discussion as the only resource left to me to prevent a potential buildup of enemy strength to a point threatening the safety of the command." "The inviolability of Manchuria and Siberia has been a cardinal obligation of this headquarters from the beginning of hostilities." "Complete daily situation reports will continue to be furnished you as heretofore."

The second message from MacArthur read:

"Hostile planes are operating from bases west of the Yalu River against our forces in North Korea." "The present restrictions imposed on my area of operation provide a complete sanctuary for hostile air immediately upon their crossing the Manchuria-North Korea border. The effect of this abnormal condition upon the morale and combat efficiency of both air and ground troops is major."

"Unless corrective measures are promptly taken this factor can assume decisive proportions. Request instructions for dealing with this new and threatening development."

'All-out Action Had to Be Avoided.'

"Every military commander and every civilian official in the government is, of course, entitled to his views. Indeed, we would have had a government if we expected all our public servants to be of one mind and one mind alone. I valued the expression of MacArthur's opinions, and so did the Joint Chiefs. There was never any question about my high regard for MacArthur's military judgment. But as President I had to listen to more than military judgments, and my decisions had to be made on the basis of not just one theater of operations but of a much more comprehensive picture of our nation's place in the world."

We were in Korea in the name and on behalf of the United Nations. The "united command" which I had entrusted to Douglas MacArthur was a United Nations command, and neither he nor I would have been justified if we had gone beyond the mission that the United Nations General Assembly had given us. All-out military action against China had to be avoided, if for no other reason than because it was a gigantic booby trap.

The Central Intelligence Agency's estimate of the situation was that the Russians were not themselves willing to go to war but that they wanted to involve us as heavily as possible in Asia so that they might gain a free hand in Europe.

At a meeting on November 9th the National Security Council held a full discussion of the views of the Joint Chiefs and of the general problems created by the Chinese intervention. I was unable to attend this meeting but was given a report of the proceedings afterwards.

General Bradley stated at this meeting that there were three possible intentions of the Chinese Communists with which we would have to reckon. First, it was possible that the Chinese desired to set up a buffer area that would protect their interests in the power facilities along the Yalu River. If this were the case, then negotiations might be fruitful. Secondly, the Chinese Communists might wish to force us into a war of attrition that would commit our forces to the point where we might be in danger of losing if the Soviets decided to start a global war. Thirdly, we had to consider in our planning that the Chinese might have the aim to drive us completely off the Korean peninsula. This last possibility, so the Joint Chiefs of Staff thought, would mean World War III, because the Chinese would be unable to do it alone, and Soviet entry would, inevitably, extend the fighting to every point of contact between East and West.

General Bradley said that in his opinion we should be able to hold in the general area of our present positions, but that there could be an increasing question of how much pressure we could stand without attacking Manchurian bases. The Joint Chiefs of Staff, however, were of the opinion that such an attack should be a United Nations decision, since it exceeded the terms of the resolution under which the U.N. forces were operating.

Discussion by Marshall, Bradley, Acheson

Secretary of Defense Marshall pointed out at this meeting of the National Security Council that our eastern front in Korea was widely dispersed and thinly spread and that this represented an added risk. General Bradley replied that, of course, General MacArthur had done this in order to carry out his directive that he was to occupy the whole country and hold elections.

General Bedell Smith of Central Intelligence said that the Yalu River would be frozen over in about fifteen to thirty days and would be passable, with or without the bridges.

Secretary Acheson asked General Bradley if there was any line that was better from a military point of view than the present one, and Bradley replied that from a purely military point of view the line along the Yalu River would be better to maintain. He added, however, that he realized that any backward movement of our forces would lose us support and might lose us the South Koreans' will to fight.

Secretary Acheson expressed himself as feeling that the Russians were especially interested in the idea of defense in depth. He suggested, therefore, that a buffer area in North-east Korea be established under a U.N. commission, with a constabulary but no U.N. armed forces. The Chinese, Acheson said, had two interests: The first was to keep us involved, while the lesser interest was in the border and the power plants. He thought that we ought to explore, privately, the possibility of a 20-mile demilitarized zone, ten miles on each side of the Yalu. He went on to say that the trouble with this proposal, of course, would be that the Communists would insist on all four corners leaving Korea, and thus abandon Korea to the Communists.

When Secretary Acheson summarized this discussion, he pointed out that it was agreed that General MacArthur's directive should not now be changed, and that he should be free to do what he could in a military way, but without bombing Manchuria. At the same time, the State Department would seek ways to find out whether negotiations with the Chinese Communists were possible, although one problem was that we lacked any direct contacts with the Peiping regime through diplomatic channels.

Our British allies, and many statesmen of Europe, saw in the Chinese moves a route to bring American aid in the rebuilding of Europe to a halt. They knew that nothing had hurt world Communism more than the policy of the United States: Aid to Greece and Turkey, the Marshall Plan, the decision to hold fast in Berlin, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The Kremlin could never communicate Europe as long as that policy was followed and the United States stood ready to back it. There have been, and there are, men in the United States, some well-meaning, some misguided, some malicious, who would have us believe that we must impose our way of life on the people of Asia even at the cost of letting Europe go. I cannot agree. But partisans of this point of view are vocal, and they have the means to make themselves heard. The speeches of the Asia-first advocates in the Senate and elsewhere receive wide publicity and never fail to arouse fear in the minds of our friends abroad.

The month of November, 1950, saw us therefore occupied in three moves, so far as Korea was concerned. One was to reassure our allies in Europe, especially the British and the French, that we had no intention of widening the conflict or of abandoning our commitments in Europe for new entanglements in Asia. The second was in the United Nations where we sought the maximum support for our resistance against the Chinese intervention in Korea, without, however, pushing the U.N. toward military sanctions against Peiping—which would have meant war. The third effort was directed toward ascertaining the strength and the direction and aim of the Chinese Communist effort.

'Home by Christmas' Drive That Failed.

General MacArthur started his Eighth Army on a major attack on November 24th. He announced that it was a "general offensive" to end the war, and he told one of his commanders to tell the troops that they would be home by Christmas! Previously, on November 6th and 7th, he had sounded an alarm in his messages to Washington that seemed to portend impending disaster. But now, apparently, the grave danger did not exist, since he announced victory even before the first men started marching.

Yet on the same day, a national intelligence summary of the CIA had been made available to General MacArthur which stated that the Chinese Communists would "at a minimum" increase their operations in Korea, seek to immobilize the forces, subject them to prolonged attrition, and maintain the semblance of a North Korean state in being. It also stated that the Chinese possessed sufficient strength to force the U.N. elements to withdraw to defensive positions.

The intelligence summary proved correct. By November 28th it was clear that the Eighth Army had run up against vastly larger forces and that the X Corps, on the east coast, was in what the communists writers like to call a "fluid situation"—which is a public relations man's way of saying that he can't figure out what's going on!

Now, no one is blaming General MacArthur, and certainly I never did, for the failure of the November offensive. He is no more to be blamed for the fact that he was outnumbered than General Eisenhower could be charged with the heavy losses of the Battle of the Bulge. But—and therein lies the difference between the Eisenhower of 1944 and the MacArthur of 1950—I do blame General MacArthur for the manner in which he tried to excuse his failure. In the first place, there was no need for him to proclaim this as an "end of war" offensive. If he knew that the forces opposing him were not so strong that they could stop him, then certainly his earlier messages to the Chiefs of Staff had been wrong. But if he had been right earlier in November, then he could hardly have expected to score an easy victory now.

There was no excuse for the statements he now began to make to certain people as soon as the offensive had failed. Within a matter of four days he found time to publicize in four different ways his view that the only reason for his troubles was the order from Washington to limit the hostilities to Korea. He talked about "extraordinary inhibitions" "without precedent in military history." And made it quite plain that he no longer was attached to him or his staff.

'The Record Shows . . . Says Mr. Truman.

The record shows, however, that General MacArthur himself reported to the Joint Chiefs of Staff on November 6th and 7th, that the Chinese had intervened in Korea in strength. He had himself furnished us the information that there were sizeable reserves across the Yalu River. He had requested—and been given—permission to bomb the bridges across which these reserves might flow into Korea.

Of course, he had been denied authority to bomb bases in Manchuria and to engage in "hot pursuit" of enemy planes fleeing from Korea into Manchuria. The State Department and the Joint Chiefs of Staff were in agreement that it would be desirable to have U. N. approval for such a policy and therefore, with my approval, inquiries were made of all United Nations countries that had forces in Korea. Without exception, they indicated strong opposition to such a policy.

There was no doubt that we had reached a point where grave decisions had to be made. If we chose to extend the war to China, we had to expect retaliation. Peiping and Moscow were allies, ideologically as well as by treaty. If we began to attack Communist China, we had to anticipate Russian intervention. Of course, we wanted no war on any scale. But the question now was whether we had actually reached the point where this slavery so threatened us that we had to move to the destruction of cities and the killing of women and children.

Repeated statements by MacArthur led many people abroad to believe that our government would change its policy. We could not permit such confusion to continue. On December 5th, therefore, I issued an order to all government agencies that "until further word comes from me, no speech, press release, or other public statement concerning foreign policy should be released until it has received clearance from the Department of State." A second notice admonished "officials overseas, including military commanders and diplomatic representatives" "to exercise extreme caution in public statements, to clear all but routine statements with their departments, and to refrain from direct communication on military or foreign policy with newspapers, magazines, or other publicity media in the United States."

A few months earlier there had been one incident of a high official talking out of turn about foreign policy. That was when Secretary of the Navy Francis Matthews made a speech on August 25th. Mr. Matthews, speaking in Boston, said that we ought to fight a "preventive war." I have always been opposed even to the thought of such a war. There was no more foolish than to think that war can be stopped by war. You don't "prevent" anything by war except peace.

Mr. Matthews, of course, was surrounded by admirals and other high Navy people, and he had not had much experience in dealing with men in that category. He told me he had heard so many of the talk of "preventive war" that he had repeated the phrase without realizing just how far it took him away from my policy. He was very contrite and full of regrets when I talked to him.

MacArthur 'More Serious Offender' and Why.

General MacArthur was a more serious offender with his press interviews and communiques in which he sometimes hinted and sometimes said that if only his advice had been followed, all would have been well in Korea.

In the first place, of course, he was wrong. If his advice had been taken, then or later, and if we had gone ahead and bombed the Manchurian bases, we would have been openly at war with Red China and, not improbably, with Russia. World War III might very well have been on.

In the second place, General MacArthur himself had been the one who had said there was no danger of Chinese intervention. At Wake Island he had told me categorically that he had no evidence that the Chinese were intervening. More important still, he had told me that he could easily cope with the Chinese Communists if they actually came in. He had said that if the Communists from China tried to retake Pyongyang, they would be inviting slaughter.

Even before he started his ill-fated offensive of November 24th, he still talked as if he had the answer to all the questions. But when he turned out that it was not so, he let all the world know that he would have won except for the fact that we would not let him have his way.

This was simply not true. General MacArthur had been given fullest information on the reasons for our policy. He had told numerous visitors to his Tokyo office, including Harriman, and he had told me at Wake Island, that he understood these reasons although he did not believe in them.

I should have relieved General MacArthur then and there. The reason I did not was that I did not wish it to appear as if he were being relieved because the offensive failed. I have never believed in going back on people when luck was against them, and I did not intend to do it now. Nor did I want to reprimand the general, but he had to be told that the kind of public statements which he had been making were out of order.

This was the background for the order of December 5th.

New Point of Disagreement Arises.

By that time a new point of disagreement had come up between General MacArthur and the defense chiefs. On November 28th General MacArthur had reported that he was changing his plans from the offensive to the defensive as provided for in the directives which he had been given. In his message on this subject, he made the statement that "we face an entirely new war." His message said, "The resulting situation presents an entire new picture which broadens the potentialities to world embracing consideration beyond the sphere of decision by the theater commander. This command has done everything humanly possible within its capabilities but it is now faced with conditions beyond its control and its strength."

On the following day General MacArthur submitted a recommendation that we go back and take up the offer made six months earlier by Chiang Kai-shek of 33,000 Chinese Nationalist troops for Korea. At that time he himself had advised against using these troops. His recommendation now was, of course, in line with his view that the Korean action had become a war with Communist China. The following message was sent on November 29th by the Joint Chiefs of Staff:

"Your proposal is being considered. It involves world-wide consequences. We shall have to consider the possibility that it would disrupt the united position of the nations associated with us in the United Nations, and have us isolated." "It might extend hostilities to Formosa and other areas. Incidentally, our position of leadership in the Far East is being most seriously compromised in the United Nations. The utmost care will be necessary to avoid the disruption of the essential Allied line-up in that organization."

Of course, the situation in Korea was the subject of many long and anxious discussions in my office. The future of our policy, not only in Asia, but in Europe as well, was at stake, and we spent a good deal more time searching for the answers to the tremendous problems before us than merely worrying over General MacArthur's lack of discretion.

National Security Council Meeting.

On November 28th, when the bad news from Korea had changed from rumors of resistance into certainty of defeat, I called a special meeting of the National Security Council.

General Marshall talked about the diplomatic aspects of the situation, saying he thought it essential for the United States to go along with the United Nations approach to the Korean question, even if going along with the United Nations meant some difficult problems for us. He said that he felt it essential for us to keep a unanimity of approach in the U.N. He was emphatic on one point, on which he said the three service secretaries agreed as the most important: That we should not get ourselves involved either individually or with the United Nations in a general war with China.

Bradley said this reflected the Joint Chiefs' thinking, too. If we allowed ourselves to be pulled into a general war with China, it would be impossible to continue the build-up of forces in Europe. Secretary Acheson added that it was important that everyone in the room should understand that we had only the 82nd Airborne Division available at home and that the National Guard units had been called into Federal service would not be ready for combat until the middle of March.

At this point Vice President Barkley broke in. The Vice President did not often speak in these NSC meetings, and this was an indication of the worry and concern felt by the members of the Senate with whom he associated daily. What Barkley wanted to know was whether it was true that General MacArthur had made the statement that "the boys will be home by Christmas," adding that this seemed incredible. Did MacArthur know what was going on? he asked, and how could a man in his position be guilty of such an indiscretion?

Secretary Lovett and Secretary Acheson explained that MacArthur had "officially" denied the statement but that there was no doubt that he had made it. Secretary Acheson had heard him make a similar statement at Wake Island and so had General Bradley, and Lovett said there was a stenographic transcript available. General Bradley came to MacArthur's defense by saying that he thought the statement was designed for the consumption of the Chinese Communists to show them that we had no permanent designs on Korea and no intention of continuing the war.

Barkley was still upset. "This is an incredible hoax," he exclaimed. I told him that whatever we might think of the statement, we would have to be very careful not to pull the rug out from under the general. We simply could not afford to damage MacArthur's prestige. But Barkley still felt deeply perturbed.

'Much Closer to Danger of General War.'

I asked Dean Acheson then to comment on the situation from his point of view, and the Secretary of State began with the statement that the events of the last few hours had moved us very much closer to the danger of general war. There had always been evidence of some Chinese participation in Korea, of course, but now we had an open, powerful, offensive attack. He said that we needed to hear more about the Soviet Union and that we had to think of all that happened in Korea as world matters.

I said that it would be easier to convince the free world if some of our press were not so anxious to prove the contrary. Three of our biggest publishers, I said, were dividing our people and leading the world to believe that the American people had no confidence in the government. The campaign of vilification and lies and distortion of facts in the many of our papers was the greatest asset that the Soviets had.

A lot of hard work was put in during the next few days to re-evaluate our plans and programs and to prepare for the next steps that would have to be taken.

Congressional leaders met with me in the Cabinet Room at eleven o'clock, December 1st. I read to the group extracts from the message I intended to send to Congress and gave them the figures of the supplemental appropriation request, adding that I would be available to answer any questions that anyone might have about this request, and so would the members of my staff and administration. But I wanted to stress that speed was essential if these new funds were to be of any use to us in the present critical international situation.

I said that our entire effort had been bent in the direction of preventing this affair in Korea from becoming a major Asiatic war. We were not in a position to assume the burdens of a major war, but most of all, I did not wish to have any part in the killing of millions of innocents as would surely happen if the fighting was allowed to spread.

At the same time, however, I was not getting any brighter. I directed General Collins to fly to Tokyo at once and to find out both there and in Korea what the latest facts were. On November 30th I received a message from British Prime Minister Clement Attlee asking if he might come to Washington and discuss, on a person-to-person basis, what meaning we should give to the Korean events and where we might go from there.

rank-and-file problems were neglected.

The candidate also needs a bigger staff to help handle the press and write drafts suitable for the dozen occasions of a normal day.

Little California Defection.

There is no sign of any important California defection. The remarks of Negro dissidents who spoke up at Los Angeles have been reviewed and are not thought to be dangerous.

Still, any feeling that Stevenson took a merely correct position, a purely intellectual approach to what can easily be, as the Alabama incident proves, a matter of life and death, is a warning ripple in the Democratic political pond. If it spread, it could be dangerous to him.

Adlai Stevenson will never breathe fire and brimstone. His comments to date reflect his genuinely moderate temper. He is too steeped in Lincoln lore to wave a bloody shirt and he is one who believes that, had Lincoln's moderation and conciliatory spirit been truly understood by the South, there would have been no civil war.

Hence his inner debate over the question of what in truth and honor he can do to meet a condition, not a theory.

3000 HERE TO GET PAY RISE
UNDER $1 AN HOUR MINIMUM

Wages will be increased for about 3000 manufacturing workers in the St. Louis area March 1, when the $1 minimum wage act becomes effective, Earl V. Powers, supervisor of the wage-hour division of the St. Louis office of the Department of Labor, announced yesterday.

Powers said a wage survey showed the increases will be made chiefly in the leather industry and men and boys' dress shirt division of the apparel industry. About 15,000 workers in eastern Missouri will receive the higher pay.

The new minimum wage applies only to workers engaged in interstate commerce or those producing goods for interstate or foreign commerce and related industries, Powers said. He said the increased wage was the only change made in the law by Congress last summer.

BRIGHT SPOT AMID CREEPING INFLATION

By Sam Dawson

THE price of coffee is on the rise. The cost of oil is going up in the spring.

Men face the chance of paying more for the clothing in the fall. Bottlers of soft drinks and beer will pay more for the glass containers soon.

The oil industry debates the wisdom of a hike in crude-oil prices which could be reflected in petroleum-product prices later on.

But these samples of "creeperinflation" today have one especially bright spot. Meat prices are being cut at retail. Chances are good that next month will see lower prices on several other food items, even if there is a mostly seasonal. And there's hope at the 5-cent candy bar may get back a little of its former size.

COFFEE ROASTERS HAVE LISTED higher wholesale prices twice in a week. They cite the recent sharp rises in the price of green coffee beans, especially from Central America and Colombia. They say the crops there have been damaged by too much rain of late. Earlier, frosts in Brazil were blamed for a tightening up of the formerly loose supply situation. Bituminous coal prices are expected to go up April 1. Operators say it will be due to higher wages and increases in their expenses. Price hikes in various areas will range from 5 to 50 cents a ton. This will bring them back to about where they were in 1948. After that a recession in the coal industry brought a series of price cuts. The mine workers will have an 8-cents-a-day wage hike April 1 under the existing contract.

MEN'S CLOTHING PRICES SEEM LIKELY to rise in the fall by at least 5 per cent. Wool prices have tumbled up. The Textile Workers' Union is negotiating for pay increase at the mills. Makers of men's and boys' wear expect it starting talk wage increases soon with the Amalgamated Clothing Workers. Fabric prices have already started up and suits and overcoats are expected to follow. Bottlers look for a price hike on bottles of around 5 per cent in the next few weeks. Higher labor, material and freight costs are cited.

THE OIL INDUSTRY IS PRETTY WELL SLIT over the question of a hike in crude-oil prices. Rising costs of drilling for oil and of pumping and delivering it are pointed out as one reason. The recent general increase in wage scale in the industry have added fuel to the debate. The questions complicated by the dispute over the importation of crude oil from the Middle East and Latin America. Higher prices for domestic crude might tempt importers to bring in more foreign oil. There is also strong competition in the industry which from time to time has brought on regional price wars among gasoline service stations. But the pressure for higher prices at the crude-oil level seems to be rising.

ON THE BRIGHT SIDE FOR THE CONSUMER is the big rush of livestock to market at present. This has tumbled retail meat prices in many cases. And the season footed-up production of milk and early fruits and vegetables just ahead. While the spread between farm prices and grocery prices dampens the outlook a little, there is general expectation that most food prices will tend toward the downside rather than the up. The 5-cent candy bar, which started to shrink soon after World War II as the price of cocoa beans soared, is enjoying a reprieve. At the moment the price of the beans is less than half what it was at its postwar peak. And candy makers are talking, at any rate, either of increasing the size a little or of using better grades of chocolate.

FLAGRANT ABUSE OF VA'S HOSPITAL SERVICE CHARGED

House Committee Head
May Name Veterans Wrongfully Obtaining Free Care.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10 (AP)

Representative Olin E. Teague (Dem., Texas), said today Federal investigators have found "some very flagrant" abuse of the system of free Veterans' Administration medical care for penniless veterans.

Teague, chairman of the House Veterans Affairs Committee, received the report from the General Accounting Office. He said he is so concerned that he may make public the names of some of the veterans involved, as a means of reducing the abuses.

Among cases reported by the GAO in a sample survey:

1. A retired construction engineer having a net financial worth of $507,670 and an income of $21,719 a year got free VA hospitalization for 25 days.

2. A farmer with income of $3,000 a year and net worth of $28,033 also got VA hospital treatment for 25 days.

Both men were treated for illnesses not connected with war service and made sworn statements that they were unable to pay.

Present law requires the VA to provide free hospitalization for non-service-connected cases upon the veteran's own word that he cannot afford the cost of private treatment, provided the VA has beds available after taking care of service-connected cases.

About two thirds of VA's hospital load is non-service-connected. The Hoover Commission on Government Reorganization reported last year that VA's non-service-connected treatment costs the Government about $500,000,000 a year.

The new GAO report, a product of months of investigation at committee request, ties in with the row over what critics say is too-generous treatment for those whose illness did not stem from service duties.

Teague said he thinks those "interested in helping the Government and helping the veteran" should acknowledge the abuses and try to reduce them. Attempts to excuse the abuses, he said, only aid detractors of the veterans program.

Only a small percentage of veterans are falsely saying they cannot afford to pay, Teague said, but only one such case in a community is enough "to give the whole veterans program a black eye."

"We have found some very flagrant cases" in the GAO report, he said. "I have just about reached a point where I am going to release some names."

Dr. Hart Van Riper, medical director of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, has urged the nation's doctors to speed up giving of Salk anti-polio shots to nearly 54,000,000 children and pregnant women on the priority list.

Van Riper, saying the situation might be described as a "medical emergency," yesterday released a letter he wrote to 200,000 physicians pleading with them to push the program before the 1956 polio season.

The letter, stating "co-operation of physicians in administering vaccine is now the key to the control" of the disease, added:

"If a large number of children are to receive at least two injections before the 1956 polio season, there can be no unreasonable delay in accelerating this program at once."

7th Fleet Chief and U.S. Envoy Inspect Defenses on Matsu

Adm. Ingersoll Says Reds Will Suffer 'Severe Case of Indigestion' if They Invade Island.

By HENRY R. LIBERMAN
New York Times Correspondent
(Distributed by the Associated Press)

MATSU, Feb. 9 (Delayed)—V. Adm. Stuart Ingersoll, commander of the United States Seventh Fleet, declared today the Chinese Communists might "suffer a severe case of indigestion" if they assaulted this Nationalist-held offshore island.

"It sure wouldn't be any pushover if they tried," he said. Ingersoll made the observation after inspecting aMtsu's strengthened defenses with Karl L. Rankin, United States ambassador to Nationalist China. Both were on their first trip to atMtsu, Key Island in a Nationalist offshore complex that flanks an advancing network of Red coastal fortifications and airfields. (Liberman and two Chinese newsmen were selected to accompany Adm. Ingersoll and Rankin on the tour.)

The Chinese Communists are continuing their buildup in this area, according to Maj. Gen. Hwa Hsin-chuan, 38-year-old Nationalist chief of the Matsu defense command. He said the Reds had been moving in more men, guns and supplies, adding that shells from 152 mm., Soviet-type howitzers had been fired Feb. 5 at Peikan island north of here.

"During the last three months the Communists have increased these guns from Huangchi to Tanghai (on the mainland) from 20 to 50," the Nationalist commander said. "They also have 76.2 mm. guns and 122 mm. guns as well as the 152 mm. howitzers."

Gen. Hwa estimated that the Communists had boosted their manpower by 50,000 to around 140,000 in the last three months. This is far in excess of what the Nationalists have in the Matsu complex.

Extension of Communist airfields is also giving the Reds a distance advantage over the Nationalists in terms of air power. "The Communists have the intention of attacking, but we don't know when," Gen. Hwa said. "They're stocking up, they're intensifying their air maneuvers, and some times their fishing boats disappear for a couple of days at a time. We assume the boats are being organized."

Ingersoll and Rankin had high praise for Hwa, who is credited with jacking up the Nationalist morale as well as improving Matsu's defenses. Hwa, a lean crisp-looking northern Chinese from Shensi province, has been here about a year.

During that time the Nationalists have been digging themselves in like moles, burying their command post, fire control centers and shelters underground in a maze of tunnels, trenches and supply dumps.

The landing beaches are studded with scullery obstacles consisting of twisted sections of rail jutting out of concrete bases.

Ingersoll expressed pleasure with the way things were going. "I am also very much impressed by what I've seen here," Rankin said after watching the Nationalists cover a landing beach with withering fire in an artillery and mortar exercise.

Rankin said he and Ingersoll were making a "routine" visit. He added he had intended to visit Matsu for a long time and had taken advantage of Ingersoll's first trip here since the latter assumed command of the Seventh Fleet last Dec. 18.

The trip underlined a continuous American interest in the Nationalist-held offshore islands, which also include the Quemoy complex about 150 miles down the Fukien coast. But there were no indications of any basic change in United States policy.

The official word here, in Taipei and all along the line is that the decision on helping to defend Quemoy and Matsu in case of attack is still up to President Eisenhower. Meanwhile, a United States military aid detachment is stationed on Matsu along with a similar detachment on Quemoy.

ECONOMIC DISTRESS ISSUES TO BE DISCUSSED IN ILLINOIS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Problems of areas in southern and central Illinois now in economic distress will be discussed in hearings later this month, Senator Paul H. Douglas, Dem., Ill., announced yesterday.

Senator Douglas, head of a Senate labor subcommittee on economically distressed areas, will conduct the hearings. They will be held at: Benld and Itasca, Feb. 24; Johnson City, Feb. 25 and Rosiclare and Mounds, Feb. 27.

TEMPORARY TEACHER EXAMINATION WAIVED

State Action Aimed at Relieving Shortage of Elementary Teachers.

A state examination for temporary certification of elementary school teachers has been waived, primarily to encourage more graduates of liberal arts colleges to enter teaching in St. Louis and Kansas City, state officials at Jefferson City said today.

Holders of bachelor of arts degrees who are approved for teaching jobs by local school authorities now may obtain one-year certificates without the test, the officials said.

Irvin F. Coyle, state director of teacher education and certification, said the "critical shortage of primary school teachers in the urban areas" prompted the change.

He emphasized, however, that there has been no alteration in the requirements a teacher must meet in order to obtain a permanent certificate.

The test which has been waived was not taken by all prospective teachers, but was given only to those who lacked all the necessary academic credits to be issued a regular two-year starting certificate, Coyle said.

This enabled these applicants to obtain a one-year certificate, so that they could teach while working to make up their academic deficiencies, he said.

He said the new system will be essentially the same—but without the test. Teachers who obtain the one-year certificate must make up four semester hours in deficient credits during that year before their certificate can be renewed, he explained.

After three years, Coyle went on, the teacher can receive a permanent certificate, provided all the requirements have been satisfied.

A similar system in which high school teaching applicants lacking complete credits may be certified without a test has been in effect for some time, he said.

For the most part, Coyle continued, the new arrangement will have its effect next school year, starting in September. He said no certificates have been issued thus far, but added that some St. Louis applicants probably would be certified soon.

He said dropping of the test was in line with the recent teacher recruitment drive by the St. Louis Board of Education, and that the decision had been taken after conferences had been held with school officials from St. Louis and elsewhere last December.

PUPILS GIVE $99 TO MOTHER OF 2 ILLINOIS FIRE VICTIMS

Pupils at Pocahontas Elementary School, about 50 miles east of East St. Louis in Bond county, today presented $99 to Mrs. Delomar Turner, two of whose children died in a fire at the family home in Old Ripley, Ill., Tuesday. Mrs. Turner, a Negro, is the mother of Jackie Turner, an eighth-grade pupil and the only member of his race at the school, about 4½ miles from the Turner home.

School principal James Kerner said that when youngsters at the school learned of the fire Wednesday morning, they asked if they could do something to help the family. Kerner suggested a voluntary contribution by any of the 250 pupils who wished to help.

Mrs. Turner is separated from her husband. She was hospitalized with burns, but has been released and is now staying with relatives in Edwardsville.

SUSMAN'S

1114 North Market

St. Louis, Missouri
Saturday, Jan. 28, 1956

Dear Neighbor:

Less than a decade ago there sprang up all over America a group of stores doing business on a revolutionary new merchandising principle. They located tremendous showrooms in low rental areas... by floors, fancy fixtures, and the like... and sold their merchandise at lower than retail list prices on a volume basis.

Five years ago, we at Susman's opened such a store here in St. Louis. We converted much of our huge warehouse space at 1114 North Market to showrooms and the people began pouring in.

In appreciation of this patronage which mushroomed our business into a tremendous savings center for the entire St. Louis area, we are holding our 5th Anniversary Sale. Here are examples of some of the values you'll find at Susman's. We cordially invite you and your friends to visit us. No discount card needed. Our low prices are plainly marked. Come in and find out what it means to "Save at Susman's."

Cordially yours,

CONTEST IS MOVED HERE

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 10 — Finals of the American Legion national high school oratorical contest will be held at St. Louis on April 16, Legion officials announced yesterday. Previously, the finals had been scheduled at Columbia, S.C. C. A. Tesch, national Americanism director, said the South Carolina American Legion asked that the contest be moved but did not give reasons for the request. The contest site in St. Louis has not been chosen.

SCHOOL BOARD ORDERS STUDY FOR NEW HEADQUARTERS SITE

Executive officers of the Board of Education were instructed yesterday to make recommendations on the possibilities of relocating the board's administrative headquarters at a more convenient site. The officers also were asked by a special committee of board members to report on whether a new headquarters could be established in existing board property. In addition, the officers were told to suggest means of consolidating administrative departments in a new center. Attorneys for the board said that the present board building at 911 Locust street could be sold, but not leased. Proposals to dispose of the building, which school officials have termed inadequate for present needs, have been made from time to time in past years.

ZOO'S SELADANGS DUE TO ARRIVE EARLY IN APRIL

The St. Louis Zoo's newly-acquired pair of seladangs should arrive here early in April from the National Zoo at Washington, Director George P. Vierheller said today. They were purchased for $3500. Vierheller said the seladangs, which are large bovines found in Southeast Asia, will be placed in an enclosure directly west of the antelope house. They are to be shipped to St. Louis by truck.

It has been more than 10 years since the zoo has displayed seladangs. These are particularly fine young specimens, Vierheller said, with the characteristic black coats and white stockings below the knee. Vierheller added that he was glad to report Harry the Indian rhinoceros, ailing a few days ago, was apparently doing fine now.

HAL BOYLE TO ADDRESS MISSOURI U. ALUMNI GROUP

Hal Boyle, Associated Press columnist and Pulitzer Prize winner, will be the speaker at the annual dinner of the University of Missouri Alumni Association of St. Louis at Hotel Statler tomorrow evening at 6:30 o'clock.

The School of Journalism, of which Boyle is an alumnus, will be honored at this year's banquet as other schools have been in the past. Frank Eschen, another alumnus and special events director for Post-Dispatch Stations KSD and KSD-TV, will be toastmaster.

Boyle will be a guest speaker tonight at 6:30 o'clock in the Melbourne Hotel at a meeting of the St. Louis chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism fraternity.

FIRST TRAFFIC TICKET, DIES

NEW YORK, Feb. 10 (AP)—"This is the first time I ever got a traffic ticket," an 80-year-old retired bookbinder told a judge yesterday. They were his last words.

CONGRESS PARTY SUPPORTS NEHRU'S NEUTRALITY STAND

AMRITSAR, India, Feb. 10 (AP)—The national committee of India's governing Congress party yesterday approved Prime Minister Nehru's policy of neutrality in the cold war.

Nehru told the committee the cold war was "not so much a struggle between Communism and anti-Communism, but more a struggle between two great powers—the United States and Russia."

One committee member tried to amend the resolution supporting Nehru's policies to include a declaration the government should give Portugal until the end of 1957 to quit Portuguese India. This proposal was rejected after Nehru expressed opposition on the ground that "a wise man does not tie his hands."

Nehru told the party leaders he "would not bow to terrorism and violence" in revising Indian state boundaries. He declared India's unity will be "maintained whatever happens" and that "those who fight in the streets will be met in the streets" by the government. He called the recent Bombay riots over plans to revise state boundaries along language lines "an astonishing debacle of the moral integrity of the nation."

Baghdad Pact Sentences.

BAGHDAD, Feb. 10 (AP)—An Egyptian and two Palestinians were sentenced yesterday to four years' imprisonment at hard labor for plotting disorders and bomb attacks on embassies of the Baghdad pact countries.

U.S. APOLOGETIC OVER LATE BID TO PAKISTAN ARMY

The New York Times News Service. (Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10—The State Department showed some embarrassment yesterday over the arrangements for a three-power military exercise in Bangkok Feb. 15.

A high official said it was hard to blame the Pakistan government for its refusal to participate on a single week's notice. "It was obviously too late," the official said.

The exercise, originally scheduled for two Jima as a purely United States operation, was transferred to Bangkok on the invitation of the Thai government. Between 6000 and 7000 United States Army, Navy, Marine and Air Force men will take part in the two-day demonstration along with ground forces from Thailand and the Philippines.

It is to be the first large-scale maneuver under the auspices of the Southeast Asia Collective Defense Treaty, which also includes Britain, France, Pakistan, Australia and New Zealand among its members. Feelings were ruffled in Karachi by the lateness of the Thai government's invitation, delivered only after arrangements for United States and Philippine participation had been completed.

TRIES TO PAY FINE WITH DO-IT-YOURSELF $10 BILL

IRVINGTON, N.J., Feb. 10 (UP)—George Ludovici's do-it-yourself hobby proved his undoing yesterday when he tried to pay a traffic fine with a sample of his handicraft—a counterfeit $10 bill.

Patrolman John Hughes thought the bill was a bit thick and looked closer. He saw that the bill featured a picture of George Washington, who normally graces $1 bills.

Ludovici admitted he had been making the bills and then told police that, for that matter, he was A.W.O.L. from the Army and the car that he was driving was stolen. He was held in $5000 bail.

HONDURAS BARS RED PARTY

TEGUCIGALPA, Feb. 10 (UP)—The Honduran government outlawed the Communist party and all forms of rebellious activities yesterday.

The government enacted a new defense law prohibiting the existence or organization of any association which opposes democratic order. Persons violating the law are subject to stiff penalties.

AN INVESTIGATION, PLEASE!

We call for a Congressional inquiry into the reasons why the National Labor Relations Board has delayed for five long months in ordering an election for the driver-salesmen of Coca-Cola Bottling Co. in St. Louis.

Reprinted at the left are portions of a letter sent this week to all U. S. Senators and Representatives, setting forth the facts in the case.

THESE ARE THE FACTS

Under established N.L.R.B. policy, the previous labor record of a company is a factor for consideration in judging the merits of a case before the Board.

In 1951, the N.L.R.B. found Coca-Cola Bottling Co. of St. Louis guilty of unfair labor practices in fighting its employees' attempts to join the Teamsters Union (Case 95 NLRB 45).

In 1955, this same governmental agency processed the company's charge of unfair labor practices against the union and filed suit in Federal Court on behalf of the company and against the union. This case was tried in Federal Court from Dec. 19 to Dec. 21, 1955.

WHAT THE COURT SAID

On Jan. 27, 1956, the Court issued its ruling on the case. It said: "Petitioner (the N.L.R.B.) does not have reasonable cause to believe that Respondent (Teamsters Local 688) has engaged or is now engaging in unfair labor practices within the meaning of Section 8(b)(4)(C) of the (Taft-Hartley) Act."

The Court further stated that "any intimidating tactics that may have been employed by Respondent (the union) in acquiring or insuring the support of some of the employees are irrelevant, for before any such tactics were used Respondent had gained the support of a clear majority of the employees in the unit."

"NO REASONABLE CAUSE"

By findings of the Federal Court, the N.L.R.B. did "not have reasonable cause to believe" the unfair labor practice charges made by the company.

The N.L.R.B. now has before it two further charges by the company that the union has engaged in unfair labor practices. If these charges are brought to court, it can delay an election for an indefinite time.

Yet the N.L.R.B. is empowered by the law to dismiss such charges administratively if it does not have reasonable cause to believe their validity.

PURPOSE OF THE ACT

The purpose of the Taft-Hartley Act is to ensure to employees the right to freely choose their collective bargaining agent in a secret ballot election under N.L.R.B. supervision.

Five months have elapsed since we filed a petition, on Sept. 2, 1955, for such an election, as the law provides.

We want such an election, because it is our democratic right under the law.

If the N.L.R.B. continues to delay in granting us this right, we urge a Congressional investigation to determine whether or not such delay is frustrating the spirit and purpose of the National Labor Relations Act, as amended.

U.S. JUDGE REVERSES SELF ON CONTEMPT

Acquits Woman Who Refused to Answer House Committee Question.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10 (AP)—A judge reversed himself today and acquitted a mother of four children of contempt of Congress.

United States District Judge Edward M. Curran found Mrs. Millie Markison, 37 years old, Silver Spring (Md.) housewife, guilty of contempt Jan. 31 for refusing to tell the House Committee on Un-American Activities whether she had ever worked for the Federal Government.

Today, after listening to brief arguments, Judge Curran granted a motion by Mrs. Markison's attorney, Charles E. Ford, for a judgment of acquittal despite his previous verdict. Judge Curran heard the case without a jury.

In refusing to answer the question when she appeared before the committee July 14, 1954, Mrs. Markison contended an answer might tend to incriminate her. In his original ruling, Judge Curran said the possibility of self-incrimination by answering the question was "too remote."

Supposing, Ford said, a girl with the initials M.M.—he said he drew them out of the thin air—needed a Government job and in order to get it falsely said she was 18 years old, whereas in fact she was younger and therefore ineligible.

Later, he said, still by way of example, the same girl gave her true age in applying for a job.

In that event, Ford said, she would have sworn falsely in one of the documents she left herself open for prosecution.

Assistant United States Attorney William Hitz, who prosecuted the case, conceded the hypothetical person mentioned by Ford might be able to claim the Fifth Amendment privilege against compulsory self-incrimination. But, he said, it was "regrettable" that a person could claim the privilege against possible self-incrimination.

BYRD TALKS OF SETTING UP PERMANENT ANTARCTIC BASE

AUCKLAND, N.Z., Feb. 10 (UP)—R. Adm. Richard E. Byrd returned to Christchurch, N.Z., today en route home from the Antarctic and said a permanent base may be established on the Antarctic coastline directly south of Australia.

In reply to a suggestion that all nations relinquish their Antarctic claims and work there under the United Nations, Byrd said, "We are studying this matter and haven't decided what step to take."

Byrd said the United States would work closely with Australia and New Zealand and consult them before taking any steps.

EIGHTEENTH BODY FOUND AFTER JAPAN AVALANCHE

UNAZUKI, Japan, Feb. 10 (AP)—Six rescue teams working in a raging blizzard late tonight recovered the eighteenth body from wreckage of a workers' dining hall engulfed by a snow slide that trapped 33 men.

Police said 12 men have been rescued alive from under tons of snow and debris. Two of them are seriously injured. Three others are missing and presumed dead. All are employees of Kansai Electric Power Co. in this mountain area 140 miles west of Tokyo.

The avalanche occurred when the workers were having tea in the dining hall. They had no warning.

EX-CONVICT SENTENCED TO 15 YEARS FOR BURGLARY

Otis L. Ruyle, former convict of the 2000 block of Senate street, was sentenced to 15 years in prison yesterday after a jury in Circuit Judge Francis E. Williams' court found him guilty of burglary. The sentence is the maximum penalty for the charge.

Ruyle, 29 years old, who works as a steamfitter, pleaded not guilty. Police testified they arrested him last March, 29 in the AFL Bakers' Union headquarters, 2615 Winnebago street, which had been looted and where attempts had been made to open a safe.

Former Columnist Dies.
NEW YORK, Feb. 10 (AP)—Mrs. Marguerite Hurter Schumacher, a former Chicago newspaper reporter and one-time syndicated columnist, died at Bellevue Hospital yesterday after suffering a stroke. She was 58 years old. Mrs. Schumacher began her career as a reporter for the Chicago Tribune after World War I.

Use d-CON as directed and GET RID OF RATS AND MICE FOREVER!

You don't have to be an expert—anyone can use clean, odorless d-CON!

Don't gamble with the 37 dread diseases known to be carried by rats and mice. Properly used, d-CON is safe and effective. It kills rats and mice in 24 hours. It is safe to use around children and pets. It is safe to use around food and drink. It is safe to use around furniture and drapery. It is safe to use around clothing and linens. It is safe to use around everything you own.

d-CON with L33-21 works where traps and poisons fail.

Rats are smart. At least one or two are always in the house. If you don't get rid of them, they will multiply. d-CON is odorless, tasteless, and causes no pain, rats and mice never realize that d-CON with L33-21 is in their food.

d-CON is GUARANTEED TO RID YOUR PLACE OF EVERY RAT AND MOUSE IN 15 DAYS—OR MONEY BACK.

DENIES LABOR BILLS ARE BOTTLED UP IN COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10 (UP)—A key Democrat today rejected charges by Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell that the House Education and Labor Committee has bottled up Administration labor bills.

Representative Augustine B. Kelley (Dem.), Pennsylvania, who occupies the number two seat among committee Democrats, said committee chairman Graham A. Barden (Dem.), North Carolina, simply has been too busy with a school construction bill to start hearings on other legislation.

Mitchell said yesterday he had asked House Republican leaders to intercede with Barden in the Labor Department's behalf to consider a number of Administration bills which Mitchell pictured as advantageous to labor.

DELAY ON NEW MODEL AUTO DRAWS RUSSIAN CRITICISM

MOSCOW, Feb. 10 (AP)—The newspaper Evening Moscow yesterday denounced the failure of Russia's automobile industry to produce a promised new model of the Moskvitch, the smallest and cheapest Soviet car. The model was announced more than a year ago.

The article, by an auto plant worker, V. Popov, said so far not one new model has been turned off the assembly line, although the Moskvitch plant had promised to be in full production by the opening of the twentieth Communist party Congress next Tuesday.

Popov blamed Moscow's Stalin auto works and the Molotov plant in Gorky for the failure. He said the stamping shops failed to produce 117 dies and 73 tools needed in turning out the new models.

U.S. TO SELL $65,800,000 IN FARM SURPLUS TO JAPAN

TOKYO, Feb. 10 (AP)—The United States signed an agreement to sell Japan $65,800,000 worth of surplus United States agricultural products.

United States Ambassador John M. Allison and Japanese Foreign Minister Mamoru Shigemitsu also exchanged notes indicating American willingness to furnish $15,000,000 in wheat and dried milk for Japanese school children.

The commodities involved in grains, $18,700,000 in cotton and the surplus purchase include $27,300,000 worth of wheat, $4,800,000 in barley, $65,400,000 in corn and other feed $2,700,000 in tobacco. It was estimated that $5,900,000 would be required for transportation from the United States.

'DEBT COUNSELING' FIRMS CRITICIZED

Some Are 'Downright Swindlers,' Says Better Business Bureau Man.

Most of the so-called "debt counseling" services operating in St. Louis provide little service and some are "downright swindlers," William C. Rosenbaum, manager of the Better Business Bureau investors division, told an aldermanic special committee investigating the services today.

Rosenbaum showed the committee a list of 70 complaints the bureau had received against just one of about seven "counseling" firms and said he had been unable to find any evidence the company had provided any services.

Service purportedly offered by such companies is to relieve debt-burdened wage-earners by assuming their debts and collecting a single weekly sum until all the obligations are paid off. The service customarily tacks on a 10 per cent fee for its work.

"Not all, but most of these concerns make sure they collect their 10 per cent, and their service ends there," Rosenbaum told the committee. "The victims, all of them in the lower economic brackets and most of them Negroes, frequently find themselves being dunned by the original creditors after they thought the debts had been consolidated and had paid the fees."

The special committee headed by Alderman T. H. Mayberry, Fourth Ward Democrat, was created under a resolution sponsored by Mayberry, calling for investigation of the debt agencies with a view to possible legislation either to prohibit or regulate them.

The agencies are known variously as "debt pro-raters,"

"debt-adjusters" and "debt counselors," Rosenbaum said. So notorious have their operations become, he continued, that most reputable business firms refuse to have any dealings with them.

A Better Business Bureau survey showed that 90 per cent of downtown firms felt the debt agencies gave no service at all, 70 per cent refused to deal with them, 87 per cent reported the agencies failed to make proper payments and all agreed that the agencies did not pay debts off in full, Rosenbaum reported. Rosenbaum said three states prohibit the debt adjusting services entirely, but added that in his opinion licensing and strict inspection would be better than outright prohibition.

Other members of the special committee are William C. Brady, DeWitte T. Lawson, John T. Curry and Joseph F. Kavanaugh, also Democrats, and George J. Grellner, Republican. Chairman Mayberry and Lawson are Negroes.

Truman tells why he fired MacArthur

President Truman and General MacArthur shown during their conference on Wake Island in October, 1950. The next April, following "a clear case of insubordination," Mr. Truman relieved MacArthur of his Far Eastern command.

In Sunday's installment of THE TRUMAN MEMOIRS, former President Truman tells why he fired General MacArthur as Far Eastern Commander during the Korean War. Mr. Truman tells how MacArthur was guilty of insubordination by challenging national policy. MacArthur bitterly replied to these words yesterday, stating that his removal may have been caused by his recommendation for a treason trial of an alleged spy ring responsible for stealing his top secret reports to Washington. The former President also tells about MacArthur's controversial letter to Joe Martin that challenged Truman's policy in Korea. For the dramatic details about Mr. Truman's clash with General MacArthur, read THE TRUMAN MEMOIRS

NEGRO SEKS NEW COURT ACTION IN ALABAMA. ROW

Wants $2000 Damages and Jailing of Trustees if They Don't Readmit Her.

By WAYNE PHILLIPS
The New York Times News Service.
(Copyright, 1955, by The New York Times Co.)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 10.—The trustees of the University of Alabama have been ordered to show why they should not be punished for disobeying a court order to admit a Negro student.

The student, Miss Autherine J. Lucy, 26 years old, was suspended by the board Monday after campus rioting in protest against her admission. The board said that the suspension was for her own safety and that of others at the all-white university in Tuscaloosa.

In requesting the United States District Court order yesterday Miss Lucy contended that adequate police protection was available to insure her safety and that of others, and that the suspension was a "cunning stratagem" for denying her right to attend the university.

She charged that the trustees had "intentionally permitted" the mob action in order to create an atmosphere of "riot and disorder and rebellion" as a "subterfuge" to keep her out. She asked for $2000 damages as a result of the suspension, and asked that the members of the board be jailed if they did not readmit her.

Her Second Suit.

In a separate suit Miss Lucy asked that the university be ordered to permit her the use of campus living facilities, including the dormitory, and to pay $1000 damages for being denied these facilities and forced to commute 58 miles from her home here.

The trustees had denied her the use of these facilities because this would "endanger the safety or health of students."

Miss Lucy's attorney, Arthur D. Shores, had withdrawn earlier in the day a court action demanding the admission of a second Negro woman student, Mrs. Polly Ann Hudson. Mrs. Hudson, whose admission had been ordered by the court at the same time as that of Miss Lucy, was barred by the trustees on the ground of her "moral record."

Shores said he was unable to carry on both Mrs. Hudson's and Miss Lucy's litigation at the same time. A request by Andrew J. Thomas, an attorney for the trustees, that the dismissal be with prejudice, which would prevent the case being reopened later, was denied by Judge Hobart Grooms.

Judge Grooms signed the contempt order after a one and one-half hour conference with Shores and Mrs. Constance Baker Motley, a member of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. He ordered that the 11 trustees, the dean of admissions, William F. Adams, and the president of the university, O. C. Carmichael, appear to answer the contempt charge on Feb. 29.

Four Outsiders Named.
Four persons not connected with the university but said to be participants in the rioting who had acted "in concert" with the board in keeping out Miss Lucy, also were named in the order. They were identified as R. E. Chambliss of Birmingham; Earl Watts, Ed Watts and Kenneth Thompson of Tuscaloosa, and accused of "inciting students to parade and demonstrate and to make speeches."

Chambliss has been described as a leader of the White Citizens Council in Birmingham. Earl and Ed Watts and Kenneth Thompson face disorderly conduct charges in Tuscaloosa city court Monday in connection with the rioting.

News of the new court action caused no immediate reaction at the University of Alabama. Although the violence and threats that reached their climax Monday have been traced to non-university elements that joined in what had begun as student demonstration.

Student groups have deplored the violence, and the general support segregation.

Negro groups here were reported to be distressed that the case was being pressed in the face of the mob violence. They were particularly disturbed that the issue of admitting Miss Lucy to a dormitory room and dining room—a very sensitive subject here—was being pressed before her admission to classrooms was settled.

They feel that the N.A.A.C.P. is pushing the issue in the face of a situation that daily is growing more explosive.

A rally of the White Citizens Council, a group opposed to integration, will be held tonight in Montgomery. Senator James O. Eastland (Dem.), Mississippi, where the council originates, and Ervin said their assignment includes a study of the

Miss Lucy Prepared to Return To Alabama U. and Seek Degree

Negro Says in Interview She Thinks She Can Stand Up Under Whatever Comes Up.

The New York Times News Service.
(Copyright, 1955, by The New York Times Co.)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 10.—What prompted a soft-spoken, former high school English teacher, already a graduate of a four-year college, to become the first Negro to attend classes as a student at the previously all-white University of Alabama?

Is she prepared to stand the pressure and stick it out until she earns a degree? Does she believe she is emotionally prepared to go back to the campus that she left Monday under police guard after a series of demonstrations at the 125-year-old Tuscaloosa institution?

This is the reply of Autherine Juana Lucy.

"I want to go to the university because I'm from Alabama. I want to earn a library science degree. I think that field offers broad opportunity for me."

"Right now I think I am prepared to go back to the university and go ahead with my classes. I hope I can stand up under whatever comes up. Right now I think I can do it."

Miss Lucy was born on a Marengo county farm in the heart of Alabama's Black Belt. The Black Belt is so called not because of the high proportion of Negroes, but because of the color of its soil.

Miss Lucy's Education. Miss Lucy, 26 years old, is the youngest of nine children. She attended Shiloh Junior High School in Marengo county through the tenth grade and Linden (Ala.) Academy through the last year of high school. She did two years of junior college work at Selma, Ala., then entered Miles College, a Methodist college for Negroes, in Birmingham. She graduated from Miles with a bachelor of science degree and a teaching certificate. She majored in English.

When did Miss Lucy first encounter racial prejudice? "I'd have to think about that a while," she said. "I don't remember being conscious of it when I was a child. My parents didn't talk about it."

"It hasn't been anything to really worry about," she explained. "It's just one of those things. I accepted it."

Does Miss Lucy consider herself a martyr as the first Negro student at Alabama after a successful three-year fight in federal courts?

"I feel first that it was a great victory for my race," she said. "I don't consider it a personal victory. I have no desire to upset anyone or force myself on anyone."

Decision on Enrollment.
Miss Lucy says she first decided to apply for enrollment at the university in the summer of 1954.

school segregation issue, but is not limited to that.

Senator George of Georgia, in whose office the meeting was held, said the committee is to survey the legislative field and make a report about Feb. 15.

Manitoba Students Send Protest to Alabama U.
WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 10 (AP)—Students at the University of Manitoba sent a telegram last night to the University of Alabama protesting against the trustees' decision to bar Autherine Lucy, Negro student, from classes.

The telegram, approved by a students' union meeting, said Manitoba university "officially protests the bigoted and unwelcome action of the University of Alabama by students of the University of Alabama and commends her for the fight for equality and human rights."

LAKE CITY, S. C., Feb. 10 (AP)—A group of business men, calling themselves the breakfast club, sent 30 dozen eggs to the egg-throwing student body of the University of Alabama yesterday with a note saying they "should be used by the students at Alabama as they see fit."

WATCHDOG GROUP IN COUNTY TO OK PROJECTS FEB. 29
Recommendations for this year's spending of funds from the $39,712,000 bond issue approved last Nov. 22 by St. Louis county voters will be made by the St. Louis County Citizens Public Works Advisory (Watchdog) Committee to the County Council next Feb. 29, it was announced yesterday.

The announcement by the executive committee of the watchdog group followed a meeting at which preliminary reports of the 10 subcommittees were received. Final reports from these subgroups will be made at another meeting next Thursday. Co-Chairman Donald L. Barnes Sr. said.

Under study by the subcommittees are recommendations by various county departments for issuance of $10,725,080 in bonds to finance projects this year. The recommendations must be approved by the subcommittee, the executive committee and the full 59-member committee before they are sent to the County Council for action.

OHIO JURY FINDS 6 RED LEADERS GUILTY, FREES 4

Verdict Follows a Week's Deliberations in Trial That Began Oct. 31.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 10 (AP)—Six Ohio Communist leaders were convicted today by a jury in a trial that began Oct. 31.

A jury returned the verdict after a week's deliberations, ending a trial which began Oct. 31.

It was the first time in 12 Smith act trials throughout the nation that a jury has acquitted defendants who did not renounce Communism in court.

The Cleveland defendants admitted Communist party membership prior to their indictment Nov. 9, 1953, but denied participating in any conspiracy.

Originally the indictment included 10 persons. After the testimony had been completed, the court held there was not sufficient evidence against David Katz, a bakery truck driver and husband of Mrs. Frieda Katz, one of the defendants acquitted today. He was acquitted by a directed verdict.

List of Convicted.
Those convicted were: Joseph Bradt, who was an Army commando in the second World War.

Mrs. Lucille Bethencourt, Lorain, O., a housewife, described as a party leader in that city.

George Kwatt, a war veteran who had fought with the Loyalists in the Spanish civil war.

Martin Chancy, war veteran and Communist party instructor.

Anthony Krechmar, known for years as a propagandist for the party in the Cleveland area.

Frank Hashmall, who had figured in incidents in Akron, Columbus and Cincinnati as a party leader, and now is on parole from an Ohio penitentiary sentence for false auto registration.

Those acquitted were Robert A. Campbell, called by the FBI a former educational director of the Communist party in Ohio; Joseph M. Dougherty, Steubenville, described as a party organizer in the steel mills of Lorain; Elvador C. Greenfield, Cleveland, described by the FBI as a former Communist chief of public relations in Ohio; and Mrs. Katz, described by the FBI as former secretary of the party in Cuyahoga county (Cleveland).

10-Year Terms Maximum.
Maximum penalty for conviction is 10 years in prison and a fine of $10,000.

The eight men and four women of the jury had been selected by a jury commission last Friday. Their actual deliberations amounted to about 57 hours, a record for such trials by nearly nine hours.

Judge Charles J. McNamee said he would defer sentence until March 23.

NEHRU REVEALS DETAILS OF SECOND 5-YEAR PLAN
NEW DELHI, Feb. 9 (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru's government today published the final draft of a 71-billion-rupee (about 15 billion dollars) second five-year plan to be started April 1.

The main goals are to increase India's national income by 25 per cent and create 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 new jobs. The plan calls for expenditure by the central and state governments of 48 billion rupees and investment in private industry of 23 billion rupees. Government experts are counting also on foreign aid of about eight billion rupees.

Expansion of industry, with emphasis on basic and heavy industries, mining and transport will claim 48 per cent of the government expenditures; social services, including housing, 20 per cent; irrigation and power development 18 per cent and agriculture 12 per cent.

ADMIRAL, TWO GENERALS ARRESTED IN PARAGUAY
FORMOSA, Argentina, Feb. 10 (UP)—The Paraguayan government has arrested a number of officers, including two generals and an admiral, believed linked with a threatened Peronist revolution, it was reported today.

Reports circulating in this border town identified the principal prisoners as Maj. Gen. Mario Cocca, Maj. Gen. Quintin Parini and R. Adm. Gabriel Patino. The reports linked the arrests with the revolt attempted in December by Epifanio Mendez Fleitas, one of the principal Paraguayan supporters of deposed Argentine dictator Juan D. Peron.

In addition to the arrests, reports reaching here mentioned the discovery in the Paraguayan provincial town of Santiago Cue of a large cache of arms believed to have been hidden by Mendez supporters.

FAR EAST, EIGHTH ARMY COMMANDER IS NAMED
SEOUL, Feb. 10 (AP)—Maj. Gen. John J. Binns was named chief of staff today for the joint commands of the United States Army forces in the Far East and the Eighth Army.

He succeeds Maj. Gen. John W. Harmon, who has been named to head the Joint United States Military Assistance group in Korea.

QUEEN PRESSES BUTTON, NIGERIA GETS ELECTRICITY

LAGOS, Nigeria, Feb. 10 (AP)—Queen Elizabeth II today touched a button that sent electricity surging across hundreds of miles in southern Nigeria.

Surrounded by the control machinery, she brought a new section of the Ijora power station into operation. The pressing of the button also lighted a huge sign "God Save the Queen."

The Queen also opened the Appa wharf at Atlantic terminal, a project that will enable fast-growing Lagos to accommodate hundreds of additional ships yearly.

It was a day of handshaking for the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh, who are on a royal tour of the big West African colony. Everywhere they paused, dozens of Nigerian notables—most in flowing white gowns—were presented to the royal couple.

TERMS RUSSIA, CHINA A HARMONIOUS TEAM

British M.P. Sees No Signs of Communist Split-Up 'as Yet.'

The Russians and the Red Chinese are operating as a smooth-running team and there is no evidence to support the probability of a split at present, it was asserted today by Desmond Donnelly, a member of the British Parliament.

Donnelly, who visited Red China in 1952 and 1954, is participating in the Midwest Residential World Affairs being held at Pere Marquette Lodge, Grafton, Ill., under the sponsorship of the St. Louis Council on World Affairs.

Between sessions of the seminar, which are conducted off the record, Donnelly said the co-operation of the Russians and Chinese was due partly to circumstances, partly to Western policy and partly to shrewd Russian leadership.

Speaking of the possibility of a break-up of the two countries, Donnelly said: "The ingredients are not there for a Tito as yet, but notice, please, that I qualify the statement by saying 'as yet.'"

"In our policy we have got to try to be a bit more adventurous and less rigid in our approach. We have got to try to convince the Chinese that the heart of America is not expansionist, the voice of Senator (William) Knowland."

"The Chinese think that Senator Knowland and Henry Lucie, the publisher, run America. It suits the Chinese Communist leaders to make their people think that, and eventually the leaders begin to believe it themselves."

"The United States must convince the countries of the Far East that America is fundamentally sound and solid and that America is not an instrument of dollar imperialism."

The 35-year-old British Laborite said in answer to a question regarding the motivating force behind Chinese Communism, that the force was a combination of nationalism and Communist doctrine.

"One motivates the other and they are essentially complementary," he said.

He expressed the view in an earlier interview that war danger had lessened "not because of any throw-out in the cold war but because of a growing realization that nuclear warfare would mean curtains for the human race."

Donnelly participated in a panel discussion today on the foreign policy of the Chinese government.

Other participants were Royden Dangerfield, director of the Government on Government and Public Affairs, and professor of political science at the University of Illinois; Hans Berger, chief legal adviser to the German Foreign Office in Bonn, and Dr. Peter H. Mandelartz, a lawyer and leader of the Christian Democratic Party in Oberhausen, Germany.

The panel opened its second day of the seminar on "The Outlook for Our China Policy." It will continue through Sunday.

John Carter Vincent, former chief of the State Department's division of Far Eastern affairs, opened the seminar last night with an address in which he said that the question of diplomatic recognition of communist China is one which must be faced by the United States.

This country's decision should be based, not on moral or emotional considerations, but simply on the issue of where America's best interests might lie. Vincent said.

He said Red China must agree to certain conditions regarding its future conduct before serious consideration can be given to admitting it to the United Nations.

FARM INCOME DROP POSSIBLE, RESERVE BANK HERE SAYS
The outlook for farmers in the Eighth Federal Reserve District for 1956 is a possible decline in total cash receipts but a better return for beef and pork producers, the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis reported today in its Monthly Review for February.

Severe adjustments appear certain for cotton, though not necessarily in 1956, the bank said. This stems from the possibility both of a smaller cotton crop and a sizeable drop in effective support levels. Together, these factors could result in a drop of one-fourth to one-third in cotton income compared with 1955, the report said.

NEW IMPROVED 1956 FILTER-FLO

G-E Automatic Washer Cleans and Recleans Your Wash Water to Give You Cleaner Clothes

Here's how the Filter-Flo Washing System works... Wash water circulates and filters at the rate of six gallons a minute to give you clean, bright clothes. As the washbasket continuously overflows, soap scum floats away. Sand settles out at the bottom of the washbasket. Lint is trapped in the filter which lets only cleansed, sudsy water flow back into the washbasket.

Your choice of Five G-E Mix-or-Match Colors... See the new General Electric Automatic washers in Canary Yellow, Turquoise Green, Petal Pink, Cadet Blue and Woodtone Brown. Also in white.

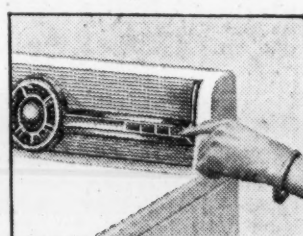

Here's Proof that the new G-E Filter-Flo washer washes clothes without leaving lint fuzz! After 11 washings in an ordinary washer, the sock at left was flecked with lint. After 11 washings the G-E way, an identical sock showed practically no lint.

Big Capacity, too. Over 50% more clothes capacity than many other automatics.

Activator* Washing. Action dips, flexes and cleanses clothes, piece by piece, gently and thoroughly washing them as though by hand.

Water Saver saves detergent and gallons of hot water when you do small loads.

5 Year Written Protection plan backs famous G-E dependability. 1 year warranty on entire washer and four additional years on Sealed-In Transmission parts.

ONLY $32.95 DELIVERS AND INSTALLS THE G-E FILTER-FLO

With Matching Dryer

The new 1956 G-E Dryer does more than just dry clothes. Now, G-E Automatic Control adjusts drying time and temperature to condition of the clothes... as they dry! Also damp-dries, sprinkles and fluffs clothes automatically. Needs no special wiring.

DEFIANCE IN ALGIERS

Algerian demonstrator booting wreath from war memorial in Algiers in midst of disorder touched off by arrival of French Premier Guy Mollet on Monday. Police lines protected Mollet as he placed the wreath on the monument but an hour later a member of the mob broke through the lines and kicked the flowers away. Earlier, the demonstrators, many of them French veterans, subjected Mollet to a barrage of rotten fruit and stones in protest against his efforts to placate dissident nationalists.

TREAT FOR VISITOR

Reaching for a sweetmeat, Dag Hammarskjöld, secretary general of the United Nations, finds himself rewarded with a ceremonial dividend while being welcomed to the Indian village of Faridabad, near New Delhi. While the visitor reaches for platter, woman places tilak on his forehead. The tilak is the mark, usually red, which is the traditional token of respect for the wearer.

POSTAL EXPERIMENT

Mrs. Alberta C. Moran trying out experimental mail box which the Post Office Department hopes will be a boon to burdened patrons. Light pressure on pedal opens lid on box, which was set up yesterday at Washington's National Airport. Further installations will be made if the pilot model proves satisfactory.

SHAKY PROCEDURE

Camera tremor, the bane of professional and amateur photographers, lends realism to earthquake picture taken at Calexico, Calif., yesterday by Jay Auslander Jr. of the El Centro Post Press. He was in a super market taking pictures of damage done in two earlier quakes when the third temblor of the day hit the town.

Whimsey That's Just Terribly Hungarian

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.

FERENC MOLNAR'S "The Good Fairy" used to be a great favorite of mine some 25 years ago, simply as a delight to read. This tale of a decidedly pixie young lady who thrusts herself peremptorily into other people's lives in order to be a sort of ministering angel to them, seemed at the time to be charming and tender and witty and terribly Hungarian.

JOHN CROSBY

Seeing it acted for the first time the other day on Hallmark Playhouse with Julie Harris as the pixilated lady, it still seemed terribly Hungarian, but, I'm afraid, none of the other adjectives quite qualified. In this play, Miss Harris was called on to tantalize an importunate Lothario with all sorts of unreasonable whims and fancies, to drive an ineffectual but honest lawyer to the edge of distraction, and to toy with the affections of a lovesick waiter.

ALL IN ALL, she makes quite a mess of everything, and it occurred to me that all these men, far from being charmed, would have been just plain exasperated by this moonstruck little baggage. I know I was. Either my arteries are hardening or the play's arteries are.

That's the trouble with whimsy. In one generation it is enchanting; in the next, it is ridiculous. Then, after an interval of 25 years or so at the back of the shelf, during which its values and manners cease to be absurd and become just quaint, it emerges as charming and delightful again. Perhaps "The Good Fairy" should be laid away in mothballs for a couple of decades.

MISS HARRIS, one of our most competent actresses, floundered about with great authority, her eyes big, bewitched and flashing, but I rather got the idea that she feels more at home in the armor of Joan of Arc whom she is now playing in "The Lark." As an amorous millionaire, Cyril Ritchard had not nearly enough to do to exercise his great comedy talents. In fact, the only one who emerged with any great honor was Walter Slezak, who as an overwhelmingly scrupulous lawyer was both amusing and touching.

The production, which, in color, was opulent, was the latest of Maurice Evans' spectaculars for Hallmark. The next one, in about six weeks, will be Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew" with Evans as the shrew-tamer and Lilli Palmer as the shrew.

OF COURSE, in a way, a little whimsy comes as a happy respite to all the violence and threats of violence of which there seems to have been an awful lot in the drama shown. On "U.S. Steel Hour" recently, for example, there was John Kerr, one of our better young actors, being pursued and almost caught by a lynch mob for a murder he didn't commit. This one dipped its toe tentatively into psychiatry—the young man getting a bit of a thrill out of the attentions of a lynch mob because no one had ever paid much heed to him before—but in general it was thriller stuff for the sake of the thrills and not at all the sort of role young Kerr should get mixed up in.

Then there was Kraft Theater's play "Five Minutes to Live" with Basil Rathbone and Richard Shepherd. This one started out promisingly enough as long as these two thugs, the one suave, the other macabre, were discussing a bank heist in unusually literate terms. It was only when the actual rough stuff began that it started losing anything resembling originality and degenerated into one of those ordinary suspense things. The trouble is that the innocent folk in these affairs are so inevitably rescued at the last second that there isn't any real suspense.

THERE IS A WAY for suspense dramas to hold your attention throughout as Robert E. Sherwood did in "The Petrified Forest" where you get so intrigued with the personalities and background of both victims and oppressors that you care deeply about what happens to them. But character and motivation are in short supply on television drama these days. It's a pity.

Job for Older Wife

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

ONE wife out of every four succeeds nowadays in earning some money outside the home. The other three out of every four would probably be glad to do so if they could. Mrs. Q. is particularly eager to increase the family's income.

DR. PAUL POPENOE

"In a few weeks, the youngest of our three children will be in school all day," she informs me. "I can therefore dispose of some spare time. Of course, there are plenty of things I could do at home, but we need money even more than the living room needs cleaning or the kitchen needs painting."

"Unfortunately, I am not young. I married very late in life, and I understand that I am way beyond the age that business and industry will accept in a woman. But there must be some way in which I could make some money."

THERE ARE DOZENS of ways, Mrs. Q. Age itself has very little to do with this. It's much more a question of personality—that is, of your character, attitude toward others, appearance. With a serious shortage all over the continent of teachers, nurses and domestic help, as well as many other kinds of help, it will be your own fault if you can't find something to do.

Practical nursing pays well, and you can sometimes fix your own hours. In larger communities you will find training courses that are free or cost very little. Phone your board of education and the superintendent of nurses in any hospital.

EVERY AUTHORITY on the subject will warn you to pay no attention to advertisements that offer you employment at home and require you to buy a kit or material of some sort or to pay for training. But there are some jobs that can be done at home. There are books and pamphlets you can get, perhaps from the public library, that will give you detailed information on home jobs and on how to find jobs outside home.

Don't overlook the so-called domestic services. Many women refuse to consider these, but they are sometimes the best prospect. Many homes are so badly in need of help to take care of children or aid in other ways, that they are willing to be very reasonable in letting you fix your own hours and are prepared to pay well if you can really provide what they want.

Even Purple Mice at the Home Show

Observer Observes It All, Including Electric Eye to Turn Off the TV Set

By John Keasler

OUT to the Builders Home Show we went, armed ourselves with a two-way language guide and an interpreter and pitched in.

There was Flexalium, Permutal, Metalt and Alwinite! Barmatic, Fiberglass, Insul-Wool and Color-lite! Lu-Glad, Dra-Cool, Accordoid and Flexalite! And purple mice.

Cook an egg in 20 seconds by Microwave! Bake a potato in four minutes! Dump the debris down the bang on now, Insinkerator Garbage Disposer! A handy setting, I mean to tell you. But we kept our head and bring tidings.

Modern man now can turn the television set on or off without getting up. You just roll in your easy chair with a little flashlight gadget—aim the beam at the right place, and bipp! An electric eye changes channels, or turns the set right off; does everything but go out and open another beer.

THERE were by-standers who predicted this would spell doom for the television commercial as an institution. Personally, we go along with the theory that in warfare each new offensive weapon is met with a new defense. (Electric eyes on viewers?)

But enough of pessimism. The Home Show out at the Arena will last through Sunday, 2 p.m. to 10:30 p.m., and nobody who's seen it can deny we seem to be getting more modern as time goes by.

There are well over 100 exhibitors in this tenth annual show under the auspices of the Home Builders Association of Greater St. Louis.

Displays give a cross section of the newest in homes, accessories, appliances, prefabricated swimming pools, foolproof sand piles, all sorts of things, including a booth displaying the Webster's New International

AN ELECTRIC EYE CHANGES CHANNELS OR TURNS THE SET RIGHT OFF; DOES EVERYTHING BUT GO OUT AND OPEN ANOTHER BEER.

Dictionary although I am almost sure no irony was intended in this last. Not real sure, but almost sure.

The Tappan Electronic Range was attracting a great deal of attention; it cooks with high frequency radio energy (microwave) which produces a result weird to traditionalists who are so used to burning themselves on the stove they rather expect it.

In this microwave cooking, nothing in the oven gets hot but the food. A roast can be sizzling away and you can put your hand right in the oven, at no charge, and feel no heat. $1240.

Mulling this over, we watched a robot for a while at an electrical display: the robot was painted up like a joy soldier and was all wired up and moving jerkily around the platform while a recording told of the wonders displayed.

"Harry Rose," the robot said, giving us his card and sticking out his hand at the end of the lecture. Making sure we weren't grounded, we shook it, numbly. Rose turned out to be a professional mechanical man. He had been a robot for some 30 years. Once he was watching a robot at a show. "I decided I had the talent for it," he said. He can go for 35 minutes without blinking his eyes. When he finally does, in a broad wink, people leap about in surprise.

You can get a Jacuzzi hydro-massage by putting a machine in your bathtub. "All right, why are those mice in that treadmill pink, green and purple?" we demanded, finally, at the colored mouse booth. The man gave us some literature. Turned out he was in the pest exterminating game, and the dyed mice attracted interest to his booth. Those mice should stand on the Fifth amendment.

THE evolution of the St. Louis home is traced in a series of lighted color displays, down through the decades and culminating in a very skillfully done scale model exhibit of contemporary architecture done by Washington University architectural students. (First prize went to Sam Darwick, a student from University City.)

Outside, a full-scale "Display Home" is open for tours.

A man was selling prints of paintings at one booth. "Old Masters, Six for $1," the sign said. "Will Not Fade."

Pausing only to glance at the Delcomatic Garage Door Opener, Fernaseal Tri-Slide Aluminum Combination Window and to stick our hand back in the oven we went on back down to the electric eye television.

"Got him!" said a spectator who had turned off a comedian, shooting from the hip. Progress is rampant.

Are You a Part-Time Beauty?

ARE you a part-time beauty? If you are, you're making yourself so much more difficult for yourself than if you put good looks on a full-time basis.

The idea that it's possible to look dazzling on occasion, and no more than acceptable, or worse, at other times, is a mistaken notion. The skin that gets meticulous treatment once in a while, and neglect the rest of the time, is by no means what skin can be as a result of daily beauty care.

And it's quite a chore to make it look even half as good for the special occasion. Hair that isn't shampooed, brushed, set, and cut often enough can't look its best when the special time comes, despite the full treatment. A wardrobe that lags behind in style, quality and repair belongs to the girl who never has anything to wear when she receives the most exciting invitation—but she's not too likely to receive it if she's been seen down-at-the-heel.

Beauty and grooming are far less trouble if effort is constant. It hardly seems like effort when everyday beauty routine is established—you perform beauty rites as a matter of course while more important thoughts claim your attention. Grooming that's a habit avoids the scramble when snaps need replacing, hems tacking up, and blouses pressing—and there's no time to bother.

And when you're always turned out nicely, in the simple at-home clothes that are so attractive today as well as in those you wear away from home, you need never suffer embarrassment or try to correct a bad impression.

Once you become a full-time beauty, more reward is in store. You look prettier in your off moments than you once did when you took extra pains.

Sea Island Cotton

Sea Island cotton is a popular fabric for cotton dresses, blouses, and winter resort clothes. This fabric is sheerer than broadcloth but equally as crisp. One blouse designed by Ship 'n Shore has a new wide wing collar. Another features large pearl disc buttons for the front closing. Other easy-to-laundry fabrics include a pebble ribbed cotton that looks like faille and is liked for blouses with matching skirts.

Let's Explore Your Mind

By Dr. Albert E. Wiggam

1. DO PEOPLE'S FEET OFTEN ACTUALLY KILL THEM? YES ☐ NO ☐ 2-10

2. CAN YOU LEARN WHILE ASLEEP? YOUR OPINION

3. MANY READERS ASK, "WHAT IS THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN A NEUROTIC AND A PSYCHOTIC?" YOUR OPINION

Answer to Question 1. YES, when they carry them out in front of a speeding automobile, says Los Angeles Police Chief Parker. Out of the 100 persons killed daily by autos in the United States, at least one-third are pedestrians. This is the current rate in Los Angeles, but in some cities it is nearly two-thirds. People literally walk to their death. When I see a woman with three small children cross in heavy traffic between inter-sections, I doubt that the late William M. Wheeler was right when he "sometimes thought humans were more intelligent than ants."

Answer to Question 2. Doubtful. Several experiments have indicated that if you play a record in the presence of a sleeping person, he will learn what he has "heard." But, psychologists C. W. Simon and W. H. Emmons point out in "Psychological Bulletin" that the experimenters have failed to make sure the "sleeper" was really asleep. They say many persons wake up in the night, perform several rational acts and recall nothing about them later. Also, we often think of things when half awake but think we're asleep. Professors still believe students learn less while asleep. They ought to know.

Answer to Question 3. The Hollywood Reporter comes up with this: "The neurotic builds castles in the air, the psychotic lives in them, the psychiatrist collect rent on them." The consulting psychologist also collects considerable rent. Both are justified. Anyhow, it makes little difference to the patient. Both are mentally ill and need help.

Points for Parents

The New Films

By Edward Kosmal

FRENCH film star Gerard Philipe, whose screen past includes a number of virile roles ("Devil in the Flesh" and "Fanfan the Tulip"), sets a new high—or low—with amour on a mass scale in "LOVER BOY" at the SHADY OAK.

Basically, "Lover Boy," adapted from Louis Hemon's novel, "Monsieur Ripois and Nemesis," is a tale of five women in the life of Philipe, who portrays Andre Ripois, a Frenchman who literally loves London. As a philandering husband he recounts his sordid tale in flashbacks that encompass somewhat more than the usual Gallic candor. His confession of past indiscretions is a device Philipe unsuccessfully employs to win over his most recent "true" love, Natasha Parry, who conveniently is a friend of the wandering mate's estranged wife. The Frenchman's prey come from a melange of social, economic and intellectual levels, and the lover boy is not above resorting to a trite routine to ensnare some of the more gullible victims. In the end a bit of emotional histrionics proves fatal not to a maiden but the master.

The Franco-British production has some fine acting talent, which besides Philipe includes Margaret Johnston, Germaine Montero, Joan Greenwood and Valerie Hobson, along with the beautiful newcomer, Miss Parry. And the standard of excellence, too, extends behind the scenes, with Rene Clement as director and Paul Graetz as producer. The story, however, is another tale built on not-so-hot standards.

This comedy-drama is Philipe's first English-speaking role, and his French-flavored speech finds itself at home in the intimate surroundings.

Wine, Women and Wichita

Careful, friend. You'll have to stand clear of the line of fire to get a safe look at "WICHITA" at the FOX. Seems the ranch hands from the Big W have gone plumb loco. After the wine and women, Wichita comes next and the high flying cow pokes proceed to shoot up the frontier town by moonlight. But fear not, for when the gun smoke and dust settle, you can bet that Wyatt Earp will have the situation under control.

Not a great Western—nor even near great, for that matter—"Wichita," nevertheless, could safely carry a money-back guarantee to gratify the demands of virtually any and all horse opera addicts.

Plotwise, Earp, reluctant to be the town's marshal, shies from the job after winning strong support for the post. He garners the backing the hard way, foiling a three-man bank holdup by firing only three shots. However, the straight shooter undergoes a change of heart during the frenzied night spree. As the cow town's law enforcement officer, Earp is forced to tangle with an assortment of characters, from disgruntled ranch hands out to get him to a saloon keeper who entertains the same notion.

Joel McCrea wears the marshal's shoes, and Vera Miles supplies the heart interest. Others in the cast worthy of mention include Edgar Buchanan as the designing saloon keeper and Keith Larsen in the role of Bat Masterson.

Pictorially, the CinemaScope Technicolor production affords viewers a few eye-catching scenes. But the limited number cannot be attributed as a failing of the camera crew, for Wichita and environs of the 1870s did not abound in scenic splendor. And even transplanting the booming town to California for filming does not remedy the shortcomings.

'Putting It Off'

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D.

OFTEN the occasion arises when I must say: "Your life is in your own hands."

For example, a diabetic can live out a normal life span if he is properly diet-and-insulin conscious. And a man with "indigestion" has a better chance of surviving if he gets to a doctor early enough for diagnosis and treatment. Cancer of the stomach or bowel waits for no man. It thrives on procrastination.

Mention any of man's enemies in the form of disease or accident; often the patient himself is the principal factor in preparing his defense against extinction. Too many of us are "shuffled off" prematurely and unnecessarily. Therefore we doctors keep asking that you come to us in time. And after you have come for advice, we hope you will follow it.

THESE THOUGHTS came to mind yesterday when I met a 49-year-old man who was driving to Key West for a month's vacation. He was with his wife and two fine young children.

"You're a doctor, aren't you," he said. "I spotted your license plates." As the gas station attendant serviced his car, he gave me a capsule-history of himself.

"Yes-sir," he said, "I'm heading south. I feel like a new man in the sun." He took a small container out of his pocket, opened it and showed me about a dozen nitroglycerine tablets. "I won't need these in a few days. When I reach warm weather, I never have pains in my chest. Feel like a new man. I'm a fool to stay up north."

I asked him why he didn't move south permanently.

"I have every reason to," he said. "I've had angina pectoris for two years now. My doctor has advised me to live in a warm climate. I have a bad family history. One brother died at 50 of angina. Another died at 32 of coronary thrombosis. There isn't a thing to keep me up north."

"My wife is a wonderful sport. She's willing to pick up for my sake and start all over. Then, of course, there are the children. They need a father. But in spite of all these good reasons for making the change, I keep putting it off. I just keep hoping it won't be too late."

'Frozen Sleep' for Heart Surgery

Minnesota U. Doctors Use Lowered Temperature, Mechanical Pump to Perform Operations

By Edwin Diamond

The writer of the following article was permitted by surgeons to witness the two pioneering operations described below from start to finish, at the University of Minnesota Hospital in Minneapolis.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 10 (INS)

A N ice-cold rubber blanket puts a teen-aged girl into a state of "frozen sleep" while a fatal heart defect is repaired.

A mechanical pump takes over the functions of a six-year-old boy's heart and lungs while surgeons patch a hole in the wall of his "idled" heart.

These are some of the achievements in the medical wonderland a visitor can see through the operating room looking glass at the University of Minnesota. This is the work of Minnesota's heart-menders—scientists whose surgical skill and pioneering research have given medicine new weapons in the war against death.

"Frozen sleep" and "idle" heart techniques have helped save the lives of children with congenital and nearly always fatal heart defects such as leaks between the chambers, clogged arteries, and stoppage valves. "Frozen sleep" is technically known as hypothermia—sub-normal temperature. It has also been called artificial hibernation. The surgeon, in order to operate on the heart, literally puts the patient on ice and into "cold storage."

Minnesota's Dr. Floyd John Lewis uses rubberized blankets filled with a numbing-cold mixture of alcohol to make the patient's body temperature drop rapidly from the normal 98.6 degrees to as low as 70 or 80 degrees.

This slows down the body's processes so that the tissues can get along with less blood and oxygen for a precious few minutes while the heart—the vital body pump—is disconnected.

This unhooking is done by clamping and tying off the blood vessels leading to the heart. This makes the heart pump run dry and allows the surgeon to work unimpeded on the defective area.

The idle heart technique, developed by Drs. C. Walton Lillib, Morley Cohen and Herbert Warden, is another way of giving surgeons a dry heart to work on.

It is technically called "controlled cross circulation." Originally the heart and lungs of a second person—usually a parent or relative—were borrowed to do the pumping and breathing for the patient.

This is done by linking together the blood streams of the donor and the patient with the aid of tape and plastic tubes. The patient's heart and lungs are by-passed by the blood and allowed to idle while the donor takes over their functions. Vein blood, deficient in oxygen, is directed around the child's heart to the donor's lungs.

Then after it picks up life-sustaining oxygen there, the enriched blood is returned around the heart detour back to the patient's arteries for distribution to the body.

A mechanical pump facilitates this movement. New refinements have enabled surgeons to dispense with the human donor and substitute a biological oxygenator or dog's lung for the pumping operation.

HERE is how these two operations look through the operating amphitheater plate glass:

A teen-aged girl—let's call her Mary—has a congenitally clogged heart valve. As a compensation her heart muscle is unusually enlarged. Both conditions can lead to death.

Mary is given a light anesthetic and then eased between the folds of a special blanket—two layers of canvas with sections of rubber tubing. An alcoholic mixture, like refrigerator coolant, is sent through the tubing.

Two hours later, her temperature at 80 degrees and skin a waxen-white, Mary is wheeled into the operating room. With the gleaming tray of surgical knives at his elbow, Dr. Lewis makes the first "butterfly incision." This is a W-shaped cut which spares any later-life disfigurement.

The surgical team works rapidly and silently—the chest cavity is exposed. The lungs and heart come into view as the layers of skin, tissue and muscle are progressively folded back.

The heart movement is barely discernable as the patient sleeps in the "frozen zone" between life and death.

The last and biggest blood vessel is clamped and tied off—the heart is now dry and the surgeons have eight minutes to work. This is considered the maximum time the heart pump can be unhooked.

Dr. Lewis works now inside the heart, trying to get a long, flexible surgical tool up through the heart into the neck of the clogged valve. One minute.

A young interne notes Mary's blood pressure and pulse rate, writes the figures down in large letters on a piece of paper and holds it up shoulder high where Dr. Lewis can see it. Four minutes.

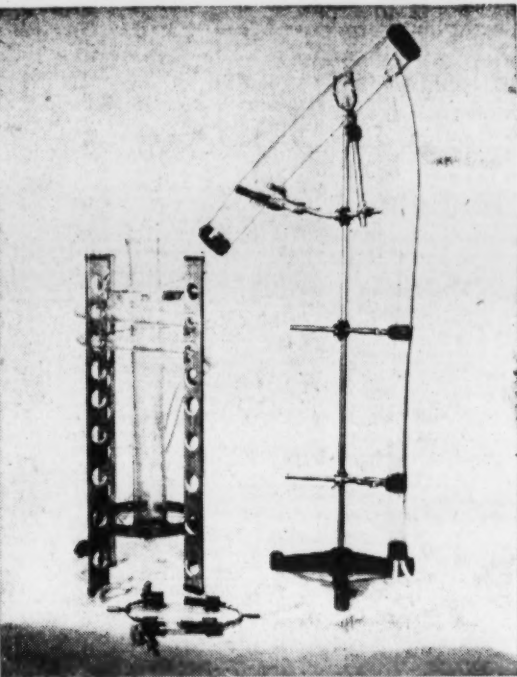

MORE probing, this time with the rubber-gloved index finger.

The clogged valve is reached, "reamed out." Seven minutes. The surgeons must get out and get out quickly. Eight minutes. Some of the clamps are removed.

The heart, dry for eight minutes, must be made to pump again. Dr. Lewis massages it with his hands trying to set up the rhythmic beat again. He gets a "fibrillation" or off-beating.

A spoken command and two internes wheel in an electric shock machine.

A cathode is placed on the

THE ARTIFICIAL OXYGENATOR, WHICH DOES THE PUMPING AND BREATHING FOR PATIENTS DURING HEART SURGERY, A TECHNIQUE ALSO USED AT THE UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA HOSPITAL.

heart muscle and a quick shock wave causes the muscle to jerk violently. More hand massaging. The heart starts to beat again "in time."

The incision is closed. A large bathful full of heated water is brought in the room. Mary is placed in it, to be brought back from her cold-storage hibernation.

IN controlled cross-circulation techniques, there is no time limit for working but the link-up surgery is delicate and dangerous.

Jack, 6, has had an interventricular septum defect—a hole in the heart walls separating the pumping chambers—since birth. He has been in the hospital almost continuously since he was six months old and his parents were never sure when they would see him again.

Two teams assemble in the operating room. One, under Dr. Lillib, will open the heart and sew up the hole. The other, under Dr. Warden, is gathered around a "Rube Goldberg" type circuit of tubes, pipes, electric pumps and coils.

They call themselves "engineers." Their job is to see to it that this mechanical circuit plus a dog's lungs will be able to pump and breath for Jack.

The boy is wheeled into the room; the anesthesiologist gently lowers a mask over his face. A chest incision is made between the ribs. Skin is folded back. The pericardial sac is exposed. On the right side of the heart two large veins that return the body blood to the heart are loosely looped with tape—ready to be tied.

Then two small slits are made —one in the jugular vein at the base of the neck and the other in the subclavian artery, main channel to the left arm.

Flexible plastic tubes running to the "engineers" circuit are inserted into these slits and forced into the main channels leading to and from the heart.

From the next room a freshly removed and sterilized dog's lung is hooked into the circuit; electric pumps are turned on; the tapes are tightened. The heart, still beating, empties of blood.

Jack's vein blood, instead of going through his heart and lungs, races through the circuit of coils, tubes and dog's lung, by-passes the heart and returns freshened to his body.

The lungs, not needed now, are collapsed. Dr. Lillib moves in on the unobstructed dry heart and finds the hole.

It is the size of a half-dollar and too big to sew up. A patch of special synthetic material—much like a tire patch in size—is placed over the hole and stitched on.

Deft hands flash about as the patch—which has to be good enough to last 70 more years at least—is sewed on.

But a "bug" develops in the circuit and the doctors have to get out fast again. The tapes holding back the vein blood are released, the detour closed, Jack's lungs and heart are functioning again.

The lungs fill with air. The heart moves the blood through the body.

Minnesota's heart-menders have given two more children a "new" heart and the chance for a long, full and normal life.

Contract Bridge

By Josephine Culbertson

ONE OF the most remarkable facts about bridge is the extent to which the opening lead is apt to affect the whole course of play. Here's an illustration:

South dealer. Both sides vulnerable.

Q9432	65
832	J976
KQ9	1085
K7	1432
NORTH	EAST
AK4	65
7632	J976
Q1096	1085
SOUTH	WEST

The bidding:
South 1NT West 2♠ East 2♠
South Pass West Pass East Pass
South Pass West Pass East Pass

In view of the result, North-South would have been better off in this case without the Slamman Convention (North's takeout to two clubs) that located the excellent major-suit fit. A three-notrump contract would have been practically foolproof, whereas South could and did lose out as four spades.

West did not select the lead that would be chosen without a second thought by most players—that is, he did not lay down the king of hearts. He elected to open a diamond. Dummy won and declarer promptly tried out the trump finesse. West won and led another diamond. This, too, was won in dummy, and after drawing another round of trumps, South led a heart toward his own hand, apparently with the idea that he would have to find A-J or K-J at his right. The heart ten forced the king, but West simply exited, and South eventually had to lose two more heart tricks.

South neglected a vital move before touching the heart suit: to strip out the diamonds and clubs from both hands before leading the heart to his own ten-spot. Had he done this, the defenders would have been helpless.

Getting back to the opening lead, observe how easy it would have been for declarer if West had opened the heart king. He could shift, of course, but South would have no other play except to lead a heart from dummy and put in his own ten on the sound supposition that West had led from the A-K but did not necessarily have the jack.

Flavorful Idea. Finishing up that catchup bottle! Then make some French dressing in the bottle. The last little bits of catchup in the container will add flavor to your dressing.

Today's Brain Game

HERE is a "water" quiz. Three correct answers is excellent.

1. What do we call the treatment in which water is used to cure injuries?
2. In which state is Delaware Water Gap?
3. Who wrote the children's classic, "The Water Babies"?

4. Where was the last battle of the Napoleonic wars fought?

5. Is the watermelon native to the United States or Africa?

Answers:
1—Hydrotherapy. 2—Pennsylvania. 3—Charles Kingsley. 4—Waterloo, Belgium. 5—Africa.

Vacations in Arizona For Several St. Louisans

By a Special Correspondent.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 10.

PHOENIX, long a winter resort, has become so popular in recent years that the hotels, inns and guest ranches can't keep up with the crowd. Vacationers seeking sunshine are building their own houses so fast there soon won't be any open desert left!

The Arizona Biltmore has always attracted St. Louisans. The Albert Kellers are there for their annual stay, and last Saturday gave a luncheon party at the famous hotel. The hotel was built by Frank Lloyd Wright, whose own home is near here, and the desert is blossoming with many of his fascinating and interestingly designed houses. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jackson Johnson and her daughter, Mrs. Bradford Shinkle.

Camelback Inn, a half-hour drive from the city in the Paradise valley area, has quite a large St. Louis colony. Mr. and Mrs. George McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. William Marre, Dr. and Mrs. William Becke, and Mr. and Mrs. Dale Fahrendorf arrived several days ago. Mrs. Frank J. V. Krebs and her daughter, Mrs. Hiram Norcross Jr., who have been there for the last two weeks, will return to St. Louis Monday. Mrs. Frederick H. Deibel arrived Thursday and will remain till the end of March. The inn has its own tennis courts and corral, and across the road is the new Paradise Valley Golf Club. Buffet luncheon served beside the pool is one of the daily features of Camelback.

St. Louisans View National Golf Match.

LAST Sunday was the final day of the Phoenix National Open Golf Tournament, played at the Phoenix Country Club. Young Jim Blair, son of Missouri's Lt. Gov. James T. Blair Jr., was the dark horse of the tournament, and gave the winner, Cary Middlecoff, quite a run for his money. St. Louisans following the golf with much interest were the Horace Pomeroy, who formerly lived in Wydown terrace and now make their home here, and the John J. MacCarthys. The MacCarthys recently bought a winter home here and have had as their guest this last week Mr. MacCarthy's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Barber, of the Congress Hotel.

Next to the MacCarthys, at El Estribo Ranch, is Mrs. Chauncey P. Heath, whose daughter, Mrs. Edith Erker, has just returned to St. Louis. Mr. Heath will join his wife the end of the month. W. Finley McElroy Jr. has been at El Estribo this week and will fly back to St. Louis in a few days. His cousins, Dr. and Mrs. James Emmert, and Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Obeare former St. Louisans who are now permanent Phoenix residents.

One of the most interesting building sites in the Paradise valley will be the future home of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. P. Hamilton. They are in the throes of leveling off the top of a small foothill of Camelback mountain so they can build their new house.

Fishing at Lake Mead a Tourist Attraction.

DISTANCES out in this vast western country (where the skies are always, or almost always, blue) mean so little that visitors think nothing of driving miles up to Mead lake for fishing. Fishing enthusiasts are the Adrian Bakers and Mr. and Mrs. John J. Smith. Mr. Baker preceded his wife out here to have a real fishing expedition with Robert Sebree. Mr. and Mrs. Sebree (she was Abby Lewis of St. Louis) are now permanent residents of Arizona.

The Bakers, Smiths and the Francis Sowards are staying together at The Sands, in Phoenix. Mrs. Goronyou O. Brown came west with them two weeks ago, but left for home last Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mallinckrodt are expected at Camelback Tuesday, and Mr. and Mrs. George Sardi will arrive next week to join Mrs. Hiram Norcross Sr., of Tyrone, Ark. The Richard Walkes have reservations later in the season at the Royal Palms.

For those who don't want to ride into the mountains or sun-bathe by the pools, Phoenix offers plenty of indoor sports. There are wonderful craft shops and sports shops in the charming suburb of Scottsdale; there is a "winter" theater putting on new plays each week, and a course in how to hunt for uranium is being offered at Phoenix College. St. Louisans, westward bound, bring your Geiger counters with you.

Miss Cain To Be Married Tonight.

THE marriage of Miss Sibyl-Anne Cain to William O'Neill Beauchamp will take place at 8 o'clock tonight at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Claude B. Cain, 5736 Bartmer avenue. The Rev. Emil Clifford Hartman, pastor of First Church of Religious Science, will perform the ceremony by candlelight before an improvised altar of greenery and white flowers.

The bride will wear a white gown with a satin bodice and terrace-length tiered tulle skirt. A lace headpiece will hold her fingertip veil, and she will carry a heart-shaped bouquet of white orchids in keeping with the Valentine season.

Serving as the bride's only attendant will be Miss Joy Schultz. She will be in melon-colored crystal tulle taffeta and will hold a bouquet of slipper orchids, roses and variegated ivy.

Mr. Beauchamp is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Beauchamp, who will be here from their home in Salem, Mo. The bridegroom has asked his brother-in-law, Charles Shackelford, of St. Louis, to serve as best man.

Wedding guests will remain at the Cain home for a reception. The bride and bridegroom, after a short wedding trip, will live here. Mr. Beauchamp, who for the past three years has been attending St. Louis University, will continue his studies there.

Mrs. Walter R. Mayne, 7 Picardy lane, Ladue, has returned from New York where she was the guest for three weeks of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Kridel (Margaret Mayne). The Kridels became the parents Jan. 18 of a son whom they have named Geoffrey Mayne.

Travelogue at Artists' Guild.

THE ST. LOUIS ARTISTS' GUILD will present the third lecture in a series of travelogues Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Guild theater, 812 Union boulevard. The subject will be "Gardens and the People of Japan," presented by J. Edward Kilder Jr., who will accompany his talk with colored slides. Miss Mary Powell is chairman for the travelogue series, now in its third consecutive year.

Host and hostesses for the reception to be held in the galleries after the program are Dr. and Mrs. Lewis E. Hahn, Mrs. Fred Green Carpenter and Miss Eugenia Hart.

To Travel Abroad

MISS JANET DUDLEY CROWELL, WHO WILL MAKE A TOUR OF EUROPE THIS SUMMER WITH A GROUP OF SMITH COLLEGE CLASSMATES, AMONG THEM WILL BE ANOTHER ST. LOUISAN, MISS MARY JOHN WILSON, DAUGHTER OF MR. AND MRS. JOHN L. WILSON, 32 PORTLAND PLACE. MISS CROWELL'S PARENTS ARE MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM D. CROWELL, 12 PORTLAND PLACE.

Mid-February Panhellenic Activities

A CAMPUS recently opened to national sororities, the University of Houston, Texas, has held several installations this month. Alpha Delta Pi and Phi Mu have announced new chapters there. Alpha Chi Omega will hold installation services today. Alpha Phi will install its Gamma Lambda chapter tomorrow with initiation services in the Guild Room of St. John, The Divine Church in the morning. There will be an installation banquet in the evening at the Lakeside Country Club and a reception for Panhellenic representatives and faculty members Sunday afternoon at the Houston Club.

Mrs. Benjamin C. Lewis of Indianapolis, member of the Grand Council of Pi Beta Phi and director of rushing and pledge training, will be guest of honor at a noon meeting of St. Louis alumnae of the sorority Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Pollard Scholz, 235 Blackmer place, Webster Groves. ## My Day

Reminder of World Day Of Prayer

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NAHUNTA, Ga. MUST mention now that Feb. 17 is the date this year on which World Day of Prayer will be observed. The sponsor of this day in the United States is the General Department of United Church Women of the National Council of the Churches of Christ.

The purpose of the day is to unite all Christians in a bond of prayer, and this will be the seventieth year of the observance in the United States. Thousands of communities will participate.

I LIKE particularly a prayer that was written by one of our Indian chiefs, Chief Yellow Lark. It reads: "O, Great Spirit: whose voice I hear in the winds, and whose breath gives life to all the world, hear me, I come before you, one of your many children. I am small and weak. I need your strength and wisdom."

"Let me walk in beauty and make my eyes ever behold the red and purple sunset. Make my hands respect the things you have made, my ears sharp to hear your voice. Make me wise, so that I may know the things you have taught my people, the lesson you have hidden in every leaf and rock."

"I seek strength not to be superior to my brothers, but to be able to fight my greatest enemy—myself. Make me come to you with clean hands and straight eyes, so when life fades as a fading sunset, my spirit may come to you without shame."

IN 1955 the World Day of Prayer was observed in 134 countries, and each year the National World Day of Prayer Committee offers a service prepared by authors of one of the co-operating countries. This year the service comes from Cook Training School for Indian Christian leaders, Phoenix, Ariz. The service begins with a call to prayer which is taken from the 50th Psalm.

"The mighty one, God the Lord, speaks and summons the earth from the rising of the sun to its setting." And it goes on to say, "He speaks to each of us and to us all. We are of many races and tribes. Yet of one world. We speak in varied tongues. But with one understanding. We pray with unflinching hope. And to one guide and shepherd."

The World Day of Prayer certainly emphasizes the fact in the very form of its service that God is the God of all men and that all prayers are received by Him. There are different hours for observances in different parts of the world, but this is one of the ways in which we can emphasize the unity of the family of man and pray for a growth in the will to peace based on understanding and confidence in all men.

Women's Clubs

'Forum for Women Who Work'

By Fay Profilet

MISS HAZEL PALMER... FIRST VICE PRESIDENT OF THE NATIONAL FEDERATION OF BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONAL WOMEN'S CLUBS.

THE National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs will sponsor "Forum for Women Who Work," next Friday at 8 p.m. in the Gold room of the Sheraton-Jefferson Hotel. The program will be free of charge to interested women in the St. Louis area. Miss Hazel Palmer, Sedalia, Mo., first vice president of the national federation, will preside. National federation president is Miss Marguerite Rawalt, Washington.

Forum speakers will include Dr. Sylvia Sorkin, St. Louis, personnel consultant, and national education and vocations chairman of the Business and Professional Women's Federation; Mrs. Charlotte Adams and Mrs. Catherine Finerty both of New York, housekeeping and beauty editor, respectively, of "Charm" magazine; and Thomas Ballantine, Louisville, Ky., chairman of the education committee of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

An hour before the forum there will be a dutch treat coffee hour in the ivory room of the hotel. A feature of the evening will be a half-hour fashion show by Famous-Barr showing styles suitable for business and professional women.

Miss Alberta Meyer, Jefferson City, president of Missouri State Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, will head the hostess committee to be composed of the following representing the various clubs in this area: Mrs. E. J. Merritt Jr., and Mrs. Walter Kohring, St. Louis; Mrs. R. Dan Boley and Miss Maude Priest, St. Louis county; Mrs. Willis Hutchison and Mrs. Joseph Saputo, Bellefontaine Neighbors; Mrs. Robert A. Suchy and Mrs. Charles M. Alloway, North St. Louis; and Miss Alberta Meyer and Miss Lorraine Beck, South Side.

Mrs. May Carle Moore is co-ordinating the distribution of tickets and Miss Rosamond Smith is in charge of the publicity.

Tea, Art Exhibit.

THE Twentieth Century Art Club will have a reciprocity tea, a program and art exhibit by its members Monday, 2:30 p.m. in one of the galleries of the City Art Museum. Guests will include the presidents and a club member from each of the Eighth District Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs, district officers and chairmen and state officers and chairmen.

For the first time since the club was organized in 1904, the group will have an exhibit of paintings by members open to the public. More than 50 paintings to be on display will remain on exhibition for the balance of this month.

Mrs. Clark Cox is president of the club. The program will feature a skit, "The Beau of Bath," to be presented by Mrs. Henry Lyons, Mrs. Melvin M. Peavy and Mrs. Flavius G. Pernoud Jr. Miss Jacquelin Amber of the museum staff will discuss, "Art in Missouri." During the tea to follow the program, Mrs. Wilda Lewis Coffey will play harp selections. Tea table decorations have been designed by Miss Hazel Howe. Serving will be Mrs. Charles A. Jones, Mrs. Edward P. Hück, Mrs. H. H. McIntyre, Mrs. Alfred L. Boisaukin and Mrs. Eben T. Bradbury.

The exhibitors are Mrs. Cox, Mrs. William A. Knop, Mrs. James S. Ruck, Mrs. Walter Kirchner, Mrs. Gustav F. Goetsch, Mrs. W. C. Ralston, Mrs. Arnold J. Hecker, Mrs. Pernoud, Mrs. L. L. Bergfeld, Mrs. R. Lewis Vollmar and Mrs. T. E. Francis.

The Helpers of the Holy Souls Auxiliary will give a Valentine card party Tuesday at 1 p.m. at Hotel Kings-Way. Mrs. T. J. Finan and Mrs. William Fahey are chairmen.

Fort San Carlos Chapter, D.A.R., will meet Tuesday at 1:30 p.m. at Jefferson Memorial. There will be a program on "Colonial St. Louis," by Mrs. Frank Kirtz. Afterward guests will be entertained at tea at the home of Mrs. John Gross, 15 Portland place. Co-hostesses will be Mrs. J. F. DeBolt, Mrs. Elliott Miller and Mrs. Malvin Millsap.

The N. R. Mothers' and Babies' Welfare Society will observe its annual Research Fund day Monday at the Y.M.H.A. Luncheon will be served at 12:30 p.m. and will be followed by cards and games. Mrs. Ben Gomborg is chairman of the Frances D. Israel Research Fund, named in honor of Mrs. David Israel, president emerita of the organization. The Research Fund created a program for obstetrical study at the Jewish Hospital Medical Center. Mrs. Solon Harris, co-chairman of the fund, is in charge of the afternoon, and Mrs. E. L. Schimmel will serve as hospitality chairman. The monthly board meeting of the N. R. Society will be held the same day at 10:30 a.m. at the Y.M.H.A.

St. Louis Alumnae Chapter of Mu Phi Epsilon, national music sorority, will give a program Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. at the home of Mrs. Jules A. Gewinner, 500 Crofton avenue, Webster Groves. Mrs. Irl L. Johnson, Mrs. Roy H. Milligan, Miss Marietta Schumacher and Miss Louise Wright will assist the hostess.

The Weavers' Guild of St. Louis will meet tomorrow at 2 p.m. at the Artists' Guild. Mrs. June Barnett will give a program on "Sizes and Settings of Yarns." Tea will be served after the program. Guests may attend.

The Tuesday Literary Club of Clayton will meet for luncheon Tuesday at 12:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Lew Moeller, 203 North Meramec avenue. Mrs. Carl Burris will speak on "Nobel Prize Science Winners."

St. Luke's Church Altar Society will give a card party tonight at 8 o'clock, in the school hall, 1414 Bellevue avenue, Richmond Heights.

Martha Carr's OPINION

Today's column is devoted to teen-agers who are invited to submit their problems to Martha Carr.

Dear Martha

RECENTLY I had a party and invited a boy I had been going out with. He said he would be there for sure. He didn't come and he told a friend he didn't even plan to come. Later when I asked him, he gave a flimsy excuse.

One of his friends then asked me to go out and I did because I was mad and was trying to forget this first boy, but it seems I can't. Now he has been telling everyone that he still likes me. I haven't said one word to him for a month and he ignores me. Honestly, I really like him and he knows I do. If he does like me, why doesn't he tell me and not everyone else?

CRAZY MIXED-UP KID.

Maybe you've made it too obvious that you like him a lot and he's either running the other way or is taking you for granted and figures you'll be glad to see him if he takes a notion to come around. Go ahead and date other boys and have a good time. You can if you only make yourself stop brooding about this one. He'll come back a lot sooner if he realizes that you're popular with the other fellows and if you have enough pride not to act hurt because he ignores you.

Dear Martha:

I MET A BOY AT A PARTY. He now likes me and wants me to go steady with him. I don't like him and don't even want him to call me. How can I let him know this without seeing him again? I am 14 years old.

TROUBLED.

Just wait until he telephones again and then—if you're sure you want nothing to do with him—you'll have to tell him. But don't be too hasty. You can make excuses not to go out with him if you wish, but why be discourteous and hurt his feelings? Maybe if you're real honest with yourself and your attitude toward him you'll find that he does have some good qualities.

IN ANSWER TO One Seeking Advice: A girl properly speaks first. So don't hesitate to smile and nod to any boy in school who may be in one of your classes even though you haven't been formally introduced.

How about a Valentine party for the crowd? Or a February Leap Year party? Martha Carr's special leaflets will help you plan. Be sure to include a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

Let Husband Give

By Ruth Millett

SOME women seem to think that the more they do for a man and the more they do without for him the more they will be loved and appreciated.

It doesn't often turn out that way. A man feels much more pleased with a woman when he is pleased with himself because he has done something for her. When she has done something for him he knows he owes her gratitude.

So the woman with the understanding heart never out-gives her husband. She is careful to see that he is given plenty of opportunities for doing things to please her.

This has to be subtly done. She can't just demand the things she expects of her husband. What she demands, she may get. But doing just what is obviously expected of him doesn't make a man feel pleased with himself.

WHAT A WOMAN HAS TO DO is make opportunities for a man to see for himself that if he did this or that he would surprise and please the woman in his life.

The feeling that he has thought these things up himself is what gives him a feeling of pleasure and satisfaction. The disillusioned woman who complains of how much she has done for her husband through the years and how little he appreciates her sacrifices ought to ask herself one question: "What have I let him do for me?"

If she has fallen down there, then she shouldn't be surprised that she isn't as loved and cherished as she would like to be.

A woman usually ends up by being taken for granted—sometimes even resented—if what she does for a man isn't balanced by what he does for her.

Beauty After 40

By Edyth Thornton McLeod

BECAUSE you have passed your fortieth birthday just recently or a long time ago, you need have no fear of being out of the beauty picture. Happy, successful, clever women everywhere prove my statement that your after-forty life can be a most interesting and rewarding time.

So if you are 40, 50, 60 or more you know that nothing can change the number of your years but you can, by the wise use of food control, clothes, colors and cosmetics make real beauty the measure of your charm. You can improve mentally by being actively interested in many things, among which is having a hobby.

Be your age but don't look it. When you enter the fourth period of life you certainly should have developed a protective quality to make it possible for you to laugh at things that once made you weep! That, my dears, is real maturity!

Don't be horrified when you look into the mirror and suddenly see the reflection of maturity. Don't retire into a shell and draw about you a mental fog.

The average woman has more time for herself after 40 than ever before in her life. I agree, some women do rust out of life because they simply refuse to be interested in the fullness of mature life.

Take a good look at yourself. You know that there are many things you can do to improve any defect of figure, face and posture. You can improve your mental outlook and cultivate your sense of humor. You're going to need it!

Q. "A friend and I had an argument. Will you settle it for us? She says that so called 'vegetable rinses' are dyes just like any other. I think, however, that there is a difference."

A. You are right. A vegetable rinse is not a dye and washes out with each shampoo.

Your Food Problems A Cake for Valentine's Day

By Edith M. Barber

A VALENTINE DESSERT IS THIS DECORATIVE HEART-SHAPED CAKE, DESIGNED TO CAPTURE THE HEARTS AND WIN THE PRAISE OF OLD AND YOUNG ALIKE.

EVER since the card counters stored away their stock of Christmas greetings they have been warning us that the Feast of St. Valentine will be the next to be celebrated.

This interim since the holidays has perhaps made us feel ready for a bit of entertaining. This may be for the children or for ourselves.

For a party around Valentine's Day we usually bring out heart-shaped molds that are suitable for a molded salad. Some of these may also be used as baking pans. If your mold is deep a lower temperature than usual should be used for the cake and it will take about an hour to bake. Layers of any shape take about the same length of time.

The most satisfactory frosting for a cake of this type is one made by the double-boiler method. The results are certain if the ingredients are beaten over rapidly boiling water. Then there will be no crystals to make the frosting sugary.

A few drops of delicate coloring may be added to the mixture, if you like, or the white-vanilla-flavored frosting may be garnished with candied cherries, or with small, heart-shaped candies.

Valentine Cake.

Two and one-half cups sifted flour, two and one-half teaspoons double-acting baking powder, three-fourths teaspoon salt, three-fourths cup shortening, one and one-half cups sugar, two teaspoons vanilla extract, three eggs, two-thirds cup milk.

Sift first three ingredients together and set aside for later use. Cream shortening, sugar and vanilla together until fluffy. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Add flour mixture alternately with milk. Beat batter one-half minute. Turn into two well-greased and lightly floured, round nine-inch layer cake pans, or into two heart-shaped layer cake pans, having the same capacity. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (375 degrees F.) 30 minutes. Cool 10 minutes. Turn out onto a wire cake cooler to finish cooling. Frost with Seven-Minute Frosting. Yield: Two nine-inch layers.

Seven-Minute Frosting.

Two egg whites, unbeaten; one and one-half cups sugar, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one-fourth cup water, one teaspoon vanilla extract, few drops red vegetable coloring (optional), one-fourth cup red glacé cherries, one-fourth cup finely chopped almonds.

Combine first four ingredients in top part of the double boiler. Set over rapidly boiling water. Beat with electric beater at full speed or a rotary beater for seven minutes or until frosting stands in stiff peaks. Remove from stove. Add vanilla. Add red vegetable coloring until desired shade is reached. Continue beating one minute or until mixture stands in stiff peaks. Add cherries and almonds to one cup of the frosting and spread between layers. Frost top and sides with remaining frosting. Decorate as desired with red heart-shaped candies or candied cherries.

Gossip From Hollywood

By Sheila Graham

HOLLYWOOD. WANDA HENDRIX, who gave up her career when she married Jim Stack—Bob's brother—is in a mood to go back to work. . . . Ditto Hedy Lamarr, who has been staying recently at the Bel Air Hotel. Her millionaire mate, Howard Lee, has a reservation for an impending stay at the Beverly Hills Hotel. There seems to be a conclusion to be drawn. Expectant mother Yvonne De Carlo has resumed her interrupted honeymoon by "Death of a Scoundrel" and is sunning with groom Bob Morgan at La Quinta. . . . Deborah Kerr is also hibernating there.

David Lewin of the London Daily Express, quoting the late Sir Alexander Korda: "They threw me out of Hollywood—when you leave Hollywood." . . . But pixie Leslie Caron, "just loafing in Paris," writes of homesickness for our town. She'll be back in the spring for "Gigi" at Metro. . . . And Orson Welles' buddies tell me he will be in our milling midst very soon now.

ARLENE DAHL's co-star in "Portrait in Smoke," Phil Carey, will be a father for the third time, in March. . . . Michael Pate, Australian actor with a good part in "The Revolt of Mamie Stover," becomes an American citizen in June. . . . Yul Brynner always warms up before a scene by roaring like a wounded lion. Says Yul: "It relaxes me!"

From Tyrone Power to Robert Preston to Charles Boyer. Not bad for a 19-year-old miss—Susan Kohner, who did a play with Ty, was on television with Robert, and then started a Four-Star Playhouse telefilm with Charles.

Lana Turner, resting after the flight from Acapulco, is getting ready for her next at Metro, "My Most Intimate Friend," with Ava Gardner—if Ava can be induced to return here from Spain.

JERRY WALD has the promise of Mel Ferrer and Dorothy McGuire to reactivate their actors company. Jerry is hoping to persuade Huntington Hartford to come in on the deal with his beautiful but usually unused theater in Hollywood.

GREBE-FISCHER OLDS ALLOWS $1456 ON 1952 DODGE

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 10 (G-F) On another of their fabulous trades GREBE-FISCHER OLDSMOBILE, 3400 S. Kingshighway gave Mr. William Borchardt, 140 St. Gregory Dr., $1456 for his 1952 Dodge. Why don't you stop and get one of the Flying Dutchmen deals and rocket out in a new Oldsmobile.

Gossiping Has Chain Reaction

DO YOU want to be talked about? If the talk is appreciative, of course there are times when you do. But to be gossiped about is something else again. You're asking for it if you indulge in gossip yourself.

Gossiping touches off a chain reaction. The word goes around, and your name is involved with the rest. Others have less conscience than what they say about you when they know you're careless about what you say about someone else. And a wary feeling toward you develops from fear of your gossiping tongue.

One of the finest compliments your charm can deserve is to have someone say of you, "I've never heard her say an unkind word about anybody." This goes far deeper than a mere tribute to a restrained tongue. It means that you have achieved the poise and confidence that brings with them breadth of mind and generous attitudes. It's the uncertain person who's petty, who gossips in the hope of raising self-esteem. Bigger people have bigger things to think about.

As your own charm grows, you learn to stop gossip. First of all, put in a kind word even if you must interrupt. A wise person can stop gossipers in their tracks with the remark, "Why, she always speaks kindly of you!"

It's always possible to avoid listening to anything you don't want to hear without offending anyone. You can do it by changing the subject to something impersonal, and interesting enough to make the gossip seem unimportant. You're teaching the would-be gossip a lesson, but you're so graceful about it it's a lesson she's willing to learn.

Four-Egg Baked Custard

Ingredients: Four medium-sized or large eggs, one-third cup sugar, one-fourth teaspoon salt, two and one-half cups milk, one-half teaspoon vanilla, grated nutmeg.

Method: Beat eggs in mixing bowl enough to combine yolks and whites. Add sugar, salt, milk and vanilla; stir enough to dissolve sugar. Strain into six to eight custard cups (each about five ounces). Sprinkle with nutmeg. Place cups in pan; pour boiling water into pan so water comes to about the level of the custard mixture. Bake in a moderate (350 degrees) oven 40 to 50 minutes, or until a silver knife inserted almost at the center comes out clean. Remove from pan of water at once and place cups in cold water. Cool, then chill. Custard may be served in cups or unmolded. Nice with a sauce made from canned sweet dark cherries. Makes six to eight servings.

Discolored Fixtures
Plumbing fixtures that have become discolored due to hard water can be cleaned with a cloth first dipped in peroxide and then coated with cream of tartar. Sprinkle some cleaning powder on and rub the cloth over the stain. Let the polish remain on the fixture for about an hour and then rinse with clear water.

REMOVES SOAP SCUM
Full tub of wash water circulates and filters five times during the wash cycle without wasting water or detergent. As the Filter-Flo system circulates the water, sand settles out the bottom of the washbasket, soap suds float away, and lint is trapped in the filter which lets only cleansed sudsy water flow back into the washbasket.

Uncle Ray's Column

By Ramon Coffman

MOST of us never have seen "red snow," but there are times when a field of snow looks red, indeed. Some persons who see such a sight suppose that it has been stained by blood.

The truth is that the red color comes from tiny animals which form colonies in the snow. These animals are known by a name which means "bloodberries." They are so small that 500 of them, side by side, would measure only an inch.

Without a microscope, our eyes would fail to see one of them. They become plain enough, however, when several million occupy an area of a few square yards. The colonies form after the snow has fallen.

Among the very small "animals" which float on salt water are the so-called "night lights." Their name is explained by the fact that they glow in the dark. Their light is blue at times, and green at other times. The blue color ("a sudden flashing light") is observed when the sea is wavy, or when the water is broken by the passage of a vessel.

Twenty-five night lights, close together, would cover one square inch. A square mile, covered that thickly, would contain about 3,700,000,000 of them.

The coloring of a night light changes in the daytime. Then it becomes orange or red. When a vessel passes through a day-time "red" the water looks something like tomato soup.

pulled myself up with."

The prospectus from Harvard indicated that, come spring, Robert would have to take tests in 16 subjects; since some of these were only sketchily taught at Estabrook, she gathered the textbooks around her and instructed him herself. The studies brought them close together.

She was grateful that she had the work with Robert to absorb her time. Abraham seemed grateful that every day brought new law cases to keep him occupied. One day in December he returned from the courts at Bloomington with a bemused expression on his face. Over dinner he told her the story.

"Mary, you remember Jesse Fell, who owns the Bloomington Pantograph, maybe the smartest man I ever met. He said to me, 'Lincoln, I have been East as far as Boston. New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan and Indiana; and everywhere I hear you talked about. Very frequently I have been asked, 'Who is this man Lincoln, of your state, canvassing in opposition to Senator Douglas?' I told them we had two giants in Illinois instead of one: that Douglas was the little one, as they all knew, but that you were the big one, which they didn't know. I have a decided impression that if your efforts on the slavery question can be sufficiently brought before the people you can be made a formidable candidate for the presidency."

She laid down her fork, raised her glass of water to the air and cried, "Hallelujah!"

"He thinks that what the Republican party needs to insure success in 1860 is a man committed against slavery aggression, with no record to defend and no radicalism," he says. "He should be a man of popular origin. He asked me to write him the story of my life so he could send it East and have it published."

"Good," Mary said. "Now, Mary, I'm not going to write the article. In all candor I had to tell Fell that I don't feel myself fit for the presidency."

She raised her eyebrows in disbelief. He continued in a humble tone, "Fell paid me a handsome compliment, and I admit I'd like to be President, but it is only horse sense to keep our ambition within attainable limits."

Love Is Eternal

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

DOUGLAS agreed to debate Lincoln in seven Illinois towns. From their very first encounter it became apparent that his strategy was to place Lincoln in an extreme abolitionist attitude. Mary followed Abraham by the newspaper reports as he traced a pattern across the valleys and prairies of Illinois, on horseback, in carriages, on railroads, in boats, speaking in rapid succession from Monticello to Mattoon, from Hillsboro to Edwardsville, from Highland to Greenville.

At the end of September Abraham managed to get home for a weekend. He had no slippers but the Republican Club came marching down the street headed by a band, assembling almost a thousand strong in front of the house. Abraham linked his arm through Mary's and the two of them went out on the front porch to acknowledge the cheers. The three boys looked on from the upstairs windows. Abraham assured their friends that the prospects were good for the triumph of the principles that were so dear to all of them.

Mary watched the faces of the people as they followed his words, felt the warmth of the community as it flowed outward toward Abraham and herself. She was tremendously moved. It was almost like repatriation; once again she felt close to the town where so often she had thought herself unhappy and unwanted.

Mary went to Alton to attend the final Lincoln-Douglas debate. When Stephen Douglas rose and began his speech, his voice was strained and hoarse. He seemed nervous as he strode up and down the platform, but his argument was well organized. The Government had been established by white men for the benefit of white men and their posterity. The signers of the Declaration of Independence had no reference to Negroes when they declared all men to be created equal; they were alluding to white men and none others. There was no power under our system of Government which had the right to force a Constitution on unwilling people, and if the people of Kansas wanted a slave state they had a right to form such a state and he would let them come into the Union with slavery or without, because it was their business and not his. Lincoln, in declaring the "house divided" doctrine, had insisted that the Government could not endure permanently divided into slave and free states, and consequently he invited disunion. His election would be an invitation to war.

Half the crowd cheered him lustily when he finished and took his seat.

ABRAHAM took off his coat, and quickly went to the heart of the conflict: "At Galesburg the other day, I said in answer to Douglas that three years ago there never had been a man, so far as I knew in the whole world, who had said that the Declaration of Independence did not include Negroes in the term 'all men.' I believe the first man who ever said it was Chief Justice Taney in the Dred Scott case, and the next to him was our friend Stephen A. Douglas. When this new principle is brought forward I combat it as taking away from the Negro the right of ever striving to be a man."

He accused Douglas of reviving the slavery agitation in 1854 by demanding the repeal of the Missouri Compromise; he asked why Douglas had felt driven to the necessity of introducing a new policy in regard to slavery, whereas "we might, by arresting the further spread of it, put it where the public mind should rest in the belief that it was in the course of ultimate extinction." He maintained that all troubles in relation to slavery arose from an endeavor to spread it.

"The real issue between Douglas and myself is the sentiment of one class that looks upon the institution of slavery as a wrong, and of another class that does not look upon it as a wrong. Judge Douglas says he 'doesn't care whether slavery is voted up or voted down.' Any

No Really Cold Weather Ahead

No sign of really cold weather is on the horizon, a smiling weatherman, Harry F. Wahlgren, reported today. "If only the temperature would continue to stay above freezing, I'd have less snow to shovel at home and fewer brickbats to dodge at the office," he added wistfully.

The high reading of 43 yesterday is expected to be matched again tomorrow, with the prospect of even warmer weather Sunday. "Nothing is likely to approach the record and he very nearly fell. Seeing a flash of pain on his face, Mary asked:

"Are you all right?"

"He smiled. 'It was a slip, not a fall.'"

"Then you think there is some chance for us in the future?"

He was silent for a long time. "The fight must go on, Mary. Douglas managed to be supported as the instrument both to break down and to uphold the slave power. No ingenuity can keep up this double position. I have an abiding faith that we shall beat him in the long run."

She slipped her hand into his, felt the return pressure as
